Lot Number	Title & Description
1	73" Lifesize YouFine 3-Tone Bronze Mermaid & Sea Fish Fountain Sculpture with Verdigris Shells - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight:54 lbs 8 oz. Size: 73 1/2" Tall, 36" Wide, 24" Deep. Magnificent 73.5-inch lifesize 3-tone bronze mermaid fountain sculpture from the renowned YouFine Art Sculpture foundry. Expertly cast using the traditional lost-wax method, this heirloom-quality masterpiece features a striking multi-colored patina, contrasting polished gold-bronze flesh with deep charcoal-scaled details and vibrant verdigris shell basins. Plumbed for functional use as a dynamic water feature, water pumps internally through the sculpture to cascade from the handheld conch into the large scalloped torso shell before flowing beautifully into your pool or pond basin below. Complete with the authentic "Y.R." foundry stamp incised directly into the heavy ocean-wave base, this majestic marine statement piece brings timeless classical elegance and soothing acoustic ambiance to any high-end architectural setting.
2	12" Mariam Jasper Sphere with Hand-Carved African Wooden Unity Stand Interlocking Sculpture - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 85 lbs Size: 12" Orb. This museum-scale 12-inch statement sphere is crafted from solid, high-grade Mariam Stone, also known as Calligraphy Fossil Jasper or Coquina Limestone. Mined from the Himalayan region, this 85-pound centerpiece features an incredibly intricate, high-gloss polished surface showcasing naturally formed shell fragments that look like flowing ancient script against a rich, iron-bearing dark matrix. A masterpiece of this size and dense quality is highly uncommon, making it an exceptional acquisition for high-end interior design galleries, mineral collectors, or crystal enthusiasts looking for an unforgettable focal point. It comes complete with its custom, heavy-duty interlocking hand-carved wooden tripod display stand to safely anchor its massive presence.
3	Florida Fossil Coral Rock Matrix with Agatized Coral - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 104 Lbs. Size: 21" x 17" x 11" - created 20 to 38 million years ago during the Oligocene and Miocene epochs when ancient shallow marine reefs were covered by silica-rich sediments. Acidic, silica-laden groundwater slowly dissolved the original calcium carbonate coral skeletons, replacing them with microcrystalline quartz known as chalcedony or agate. Many specimens form hollow geodes or cavities lined with sparkling druzy quartz, botryoidal agate layers, or preserved coral septa and corallites. Iron oxides and trace minerals impart shades of white, gray, brown, red, black, and blue.
4	Vintage Indonesian Recycled Rice Field Plow Wood 3-Tier Standing Display Shelf Rustic Accent Bookcase - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Size: 52" ta' x 34" wide x 17" deep - This unique three-tier display shelf is handcrafted from authentic recycled Indonesian rice field plows, giving the rich hardwood an incredible natural grain, weathered character, and historical story. The rustic stand features a warm, deep brown finish and distinctive arched side handles that highlight its antique agricultural origins. Perfect as an accent bookcase, plant stand, or bathroom organizer, this sturdy piece brings sustainable, eco-friendly heritage and old-world charm to any home decor style.

107	John E. Thursby "False Progress" Surrealist Framed Original Oil Painting (37.25" x 49.25") - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Size: Stunning, thought-provoking original oil painting titled "False Progress" by award-winning Florida artist John E. Thursby. This captivating masterpiece showcases Thursby's incredible skill in figurative pop-surrealism, blending meticulous detail with sharp, satirical commentary on legal and societal structures. The artwork features a grand depiction of the Supreme Court building juxtaposed with prehistoric dinosaurs and a reverse evolution timeline, offering a powerful, surrealist critique of regression. measuring a substantial 37 1/4 inches by 49 1/4 inches in a clean, natural wood frame a, vibrant and conversation-starting fine art piece. To clarify how the title was determined, it comes directly from the historical context of a lawsuit involving the artist himself. The painting references a specific 1983 legal battle that went all the way up to the Supreme Court of Texas, titled John Thursby v. Honorable Thomas J. Stovall, Jr. Thursby used his signature colorful and surrealistic style to playfully satirize his real-life experiences with the legal system The grand classical building represents the high court where his case took place.The line of people marching toward the entrance captures the slow, winding process of the justice system. By placing massive Tyrannosaurus Rexes next to a diagram of human evolution marching in the same direction, the artist is making a humorous point about how ancient, slow, or "dinosaur-like" the legal system can feel.

133	Framed Shale Rock Matrix of 50 Million Year Old Fish Fossils - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Size: 33 1/2" X 37" framed. The multi-specimen slab contains a beautifully preserved ecosystem from the ancient subtropical Fossil Lake of Wyoming, dating back roughly fifty million years. The specific fish varieties showcased on the panel highlight distinct ecological roles from the Eocene Epoch. Priscacara The distinct, deep-bodied fish with prominent spiny fins near the top left resembles a modern-day bluegill or sunfish. This genus belongs to an extinct group of temperate bass. The stouter variety seen here is likely Priscacara serrata, a prized find for collectors that makes up less than one percent of the fossils recovered from the formation. Its heavy dorsal spines served as a natural defense against larger predators, while its specialized rear grinding plates allowed it to crush the shells of snails, crabs, and small crustaceans along the lake floor. Knightia The slender, streamlined fish scattered across the panel are Knightia, a schooling relative of modern herrings and sardines. As the most abundant fish in the Green River Formation, Knightia served as the primary feeder fish of the ancient lake ecosystem, supporting larger predatory species. They are so famous for their numbers and beautiful preservation that Knightia is designated as the state fossil of Wyoming. Diplomystus The larger, elongated fish towards the bottom center is a Diplomystus, another extinct relative of herrings and sardines. This predator is easily recognized by its aggressively upturned jaw line, an evolutionary adaptation perfect for surface feeding. Diplomystus frequently hunted smaller schooling fish like Knightia by striking from beneath, and fossils are occasionally discovered with a smaller fish still preserved inside their mouths. The fine-grained limestone matrix provides incredible preservation detail, showing intact skeletal rays, vertebrae, and delicate fin structures that make these prehistoric specimens highly valued.

135	Fossilized Crinoid Rock Plate - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 24 lbs 10 oz. Size: 20" x 9 1/2" x 4" A crinoid fossil slab is a rock plate preserving the remains of crinoids—ancient, marine animals commonly known as "sea lilies". Despite their flower-like appearance, crinoids are echinoderms (related to starfish, sea urchins, and sand dollars). Despite often being nicknamed "sea lilies" due to their flower-like crown and long stalk, they are active animals that first appeared over 540 million years ago. Slabs frequently display segmented stem rings (called ossicles or "Indian beads"), star-shaped columnals (Pentacrinites), root-like holdfasts, and occasionally the delicate flower-like crown (calyx) and arms (pinnules). Morocco is famous for massive Scyphocrinites elegans and Devonian/Ordovician plates mined from deep subterranean shafts.

291	Index Fossils of North America and 1877 Vol IV Paleontology Wheeler Survey Books - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 12 lb 3 oz, Size: Gray Cover With No Print, This 11 3/4" X 9 1/4" X 2" exceptional volume is a complete first edition copy of Edward Drinker Cope's 1877 Report Upon the Extinct Vertebrata Obtained in New Mexico by Parties of the Expedition of 1874, issued as Part II of Volume IV of the United States Geographical Surveys West of the One Hundredth Meridian under First Lieutenant George M. Wheeler. Professionally rebound in a highly durable grey woven institutional library cloth, the interior pages remain bright and remarkably clean, carrying a faint, historically significant Geological Survey Library blind-embossed stamp. This monumental paleontological work features all 62 of its highly detailed, full-page monochrome lithographic plates meticulously printed by T. Sinclair and Son of Philadelphia. The plates showcase foundational geological and anatomical illustrations of prehistoric American fauna, including beautifully preserved specimens of Typothorax armored reptiles, early mammalian teeth and skeletal structures of Coryphodon obliquus and Coryphodon radians, fossilized coprolites, shark teeth, and the ancient antler fragments of Dicrocerus furcatus, making this a complete and exceptionally preserved piece of American scientific exploration history. Blue Cover Title On Spine, This 11" X 7 7/8" X 2 1/8" remarkably crisp, tight copy of the absolute bible of North American paleontology and stratigraphy: Shimer and Shrock's monumental Index Fossils of North America. Originally compiled as a comprehensive overhaul of Grabau and Shimer's pioneering work, this definitive reference text contains hundreds of pages of beautifully detailed, diagnostic scientific plates mapping out microscopic Protozoa, Echinodermata, Brachiopods, and ancient fossil plants. It remains an essential, authoritative identification guide used by professional geologists, paleontologists, and serious fossil collectors alike. This particular copy boasts exceptional provenance and individual character. It was once part of the academic library of Ronald E. Bartholomew, a dedicated Ohio-based collector or geologist. The volume features clean vintage identifiers, including a raised Dymo name label on the inside cover, a small typed address block on the flyleaf, and a crisp, subtle custom library blind stamp pressed cleanly into the title and copyright pages. The blue cloth boards are sturdy with square corners, the binding is rock-solid, and the interior pages and detailed plates remain bright, sharp, and free of writing. A foundational, investment-grade cornerstone text for any geology library or natural history collection.

347	Signed 2001 Florida Highwaymen Art Book Gary Monroe Mary Ann Carroll Willie Reagan Inscriptions - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 1 lb 14 oz, Size See Photos. collectible 2001 first edition hardcover of Gary Monroe's "The Highwaymen: Florida's African-American Landscape Painters" is a highly desirable piece of Southern art history. It features multiple authentic hand-signed personal inscriptions dated October 1, 2005, from two historic, original members of the collective: Willie Reagan and Mary Ann Carroll, famously celebrated as the "First Lady" and only female artist of the group. Published by the University Press of Florida, the volume showcases 63 full-color reproductions highlighting the vibrant, fast-painted tropical landscapes that came to define twentieth-century Florida folk art. It is in excellent, well-preserved condition, making it a stellar addition for serious art historians, regional book collectors, or fans of the historic Highwaymen movement.
348	Sepik Ramu River Dep Dep Betel Nut Mixing Paint Dish Papua New Guinea Figure - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 2 oz, Size: 4 1/4" Tall. This intricately carved wooden Dep Dep mortar from the Lower Sepik and Ramu River region of Papua New Guinea comes directly from the curated collection of James Pendergraft. Carved from a dense dark hardwood, the piece features an elevated mixing bowl supported by a pair of stylized ancestral or deity figures designed to protect and enhance its purpose. The functional dish shows heavy signs of traditional indigenous use, historically serving a dual purpose as a container for mixing betel nut preparations or preparing ceremonial paints. Highly detailed geometric bands encircle the outer rim of the basin, and a visible native vertical split extends down through the basin wall and bottom base, anchoring its authentic tribal provenance.
349	Ancient Mezcala Greenstone Human Figure Guerrero Mexico 500 BC to 500 AD Ex Mexico City Collection - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 10 oz. Size: 4 1/4" tall, 2" wide, 1 1/2" deep. This exceptional stone sculpture originates from the ancient Mezcala culture of the Guerrero region in Mexico, dating between 500 B.C. and 500 A. D. Carved from a hard, mottled greenstone, the stylized anthropomorphic figure features classic Mezcala geometric minimalism with a highly polished finish and fine stylistic rendering. Measuring just under five inches tall, this pre-Columbian artifact exhibits beautifully preserved grooved details defining the face and limbs. Formerly part of a Mexico City collection, the piece comes with its historical provenance card and is now offered from the James Pendergraft collection, presenting a premier acquisition opportunity for pre-Columbian art collectors.

350	Osborn Paleontology Set: Inscribed Age of Mammals 1910 & Men of the Old Stone Age 1915 - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Both Books 4 lbs 12 oz. Size: 2 Books 9 1/4" X 6 1/4" This two-book lot features an incredible contrast between an extraordinary museum association copy and an early anthropological classic by legendary paleontologist Henry Fairfield Osborn. Highlighting the lot is a highly significant First Edition of "The Age of Mammals in Europe, Asia and North America" (1910). This presentation copy is uniquely hand-inscribed on official American Museum of Natural History (AMNH) "Office of the President" stationery by Osborn to Albert Thomson, the museum's renowned fossil collector and preparator, directly praising Thomson's field and museum work that "enriched several of these pages." It is accompanied by an early 1915 First Edition printing of Osborn's classic "Men of the Old Stone Age." Both volumes are offered in well-loved, rough-to-fair condition: "The Age of Mammals" shows visible shelf wear, bumped corners, and interior foxing while remaining structurally sound, whereas "Men of the Old Stone Age" is in rough reading condition with a heavily frayed spine, split inner hinges, and a loose, detached rear folding map. Together, this lot offers a phenomenal piece of AMNH institutional history alongside a foundational prehistory reference text. See photos for full condition details.
351	Trio of Hand-Carved Papua New Guinea Style Totem Sculptures - James Pendergraft Collection - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 3 lb 12 oz, Size: 7 3/8" To 8 5 /8" Tall On Marble Bases. This compelling set features three hand-carved exotic dark wood sculptures mounted on white marble square bases, showcasing the rich aesthetic of Oceanic tribal art. Sourced from the estate collection of Florida paleontologist James (Jim) Pendergraft, each totem depicts stylized figures intricately integrated with animal forms, featuring chiseled geometric patterns, deep wood grains, and distinct inset contrasting elements that accent the eyes and tusks. The forms, including an owl holding a scaled creature, a fanged beast bound by a serpent, and a stylized avian totem, are consistent with the expressive spirit and clan animal iconography often found in traditional Papua New Guinea wood carvings. Mounted on custom bases for fine display, this highly decorative trio offers an exceptional presentation piece for collectors of ethnographic artifacts and estate curiosities.
