21	A.Conitti & Sons London Mahogany & Brass Stick Marine Barometer / Thermometer With Gimble Wall Mount - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 3 lb 15 oz, Size: 2 1/2" X 2 1/2" X 37 Long. This Nautical Barometer Contains Mercury So You Will Have To Find A Specialty Packer And Shipper That Carries Hazardous Materials. Transporting a mercury-filled nautical barometer in 2025 requires strict adherence to hazardous materials (HAZMAT) regulations due to the high toxicity of metallic mercury. You must use carriers certified to handle Class 8 Corrosive materials (the classification for mercury). A. Comitti remains the oldest traditional barometer maker in the world with a heritage that goes back to Evangelista Torricelli who made the first mercury barometer in the 17th century. The first instruments made were of the stick type but the "banjo" shape became popular with the invention of the wheel barometer by Robert Hooke in 1665. Many of the instruments made in Comitti's London workshops have become established as English classics and today are sought after as valuable antiques.

And A Laminated News Article By Scott Miller About The Bat Boy Of Summer Bil Phifer. Bil Phifer served as the visiting teams' bat boy for the Brooklyn Dodgers from at least 1950 through 1954, a period known as the "Boys of Summer" era. He worked for $3 a day plus tips, performing various tasks and immersing himself in the world of professional baseball at Ebbets Field. Key Aspects of His Time with the Dodgers Role and Duties: As the official bat boy for the visiting clubhouse, Phifer was responsible for carrying bats, shining shoes, cleaning clubhouses, and running errands. He occasionally subbed for the home team's bat boy and, as he noted in a personal journal, proudly wore every official National League uniform due to his work with visiting teams. Atmosphere and Players: His tenure coincided with an iconic period for the team, featuring stars like Jackie Robinson, Pee Wee Reese, and Duke Snider. He described this environment in his writings, detailing how growing up in Brooklyn and working in the major leagues was a dream come true. Unique Experiences: Phifer had unique access to the players and the game, including the chance to shag fly balls and play pepper with major leaguers on the field before games. He was in the stands at the Polo Grounds for the legendary "Shot Heard 'Round the World" home run by Bobby Thomson in 1951, a moment he described as a "terrible day" for a Dodgers fan. Legacy: Phifer's experiences and journal entries have contributed to the historical record of the Brooklyn Dodgers, with his stories and memorabilia (such as postcards) available today. His life as a bat boy provided an intimate look at one of baseball's most storied franchises before their move to Los Angeles in 1958

Much of his work drew on designs found on early architecture of his native Trondheim. The Midgard Serpent, the biggest mythological creature in ...The Midgard Serpent, or Jörmungandr, is a monstrous sea serpent from Norse mythology, a child of Loki, that was cast into the ocean by Odin. It grew so large it could encircle the world, biting its own tail, a symbol known as an ouroboros. The serpent is fated to play a key role in Ragnarök, where it will unleash floods and poison the sky before its final battle with Thor.

361	7 - Almost Fully Assembled Historical War Ship Model Kits - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Size: Mostly 1:350 Scale. See Photos Including; 1 - Japanese Battleship Musashi; The Musashi was one of the two largest and most powerful battleships ever built, part of the Japanese Imperial Navy's Yamato-class. Despite its immense size, armor, and massive 18.1-inch guns, the Musashi was largely ineffective in the new era of carrier warfare and saw limited action before its final battle during the Battle of the Sibuyan Sea, part of the larger Battle of Leyte Gulf, on October 24, 1944. 1 - German Battleship Tirpitz; The Tirpitz was a German Bismarck-class battleship commissioned in 1941 and sunk by the British Royal Air Force in 1944. It was the second of two sister ships, named after Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, and was considered a formidable naval asset due to its size, armor, and weaponry. After being damaged by British forces and moved to a Norwegian fjord, it was finally sunk by Allied bombers in November 1944, with the wreck later being salvaged. 1 - Prince Of Wales Battleship; The HMS Prince of Wales was a British King George V-class battleship whose short but eventful World War II career, sent to Singapore as flagship of Force Z, Prince of Wales and HMS Repulse were attacked by Japanese aircraft off Malaya on December 10, 1941. Without sufficient air cover, Prince of Wales sustained significant damage from torpedo and bomb hits, including to its propeller shaft, leading to flooding and power loss. The ship capsized and sank, resulting in 327 casualties. 1 - King George V Battleship; HMS King George V was the lead ship of her class of five British battleships that served extensively across all major naval theaters during the Second World War. She is most famous for her pivotal role in the hunt and sinking of the German battleship Bismarck in May 1941. After the war, she served as the Home Fleet flagship and later as a training vessel. In 1950, her active career ended when she was placed in reserve and "mothballed". She was eventually sold for scrap in 1957 and broken up the following year. 1 - This is a model of the German heavy cruiser Admiral Graf Spee, a Deutschland-class "pocket battleship" that served in the Kriegsmarine during World War II. And 2 Different scales [1:350 and 1:700 of German Heavy Cruiser Prinz Eugens. The Prinz Eugen was an Admiral Hipper class heavy cruiser that served in the German Kriegsmarine during World War II and was the only major German surface warship to survive the war intact. It is most famous for accompanying the battleship Bismarck during the Battle of the Denmark Strait in May 1941, where they engaged and sank the British battlecruiser HMS Hood.
