

Descendants of Louis Karihiio

GENERATION 1

1. LOUIS KARIHIIO was born on 17 Oct 1782 in Sault St. Louis, (Caughnawaga or Kahnawake), Quebec. He died on 30 Nov 1854 in Wiltmore Wilderness, Alberta, Canada. He married Marie Patenaude, daughter of Francoise, about 1822. She was born about 1803 in AB, Canada. She died on 09 Mar 1854 in AB, Canada.

Notes for Louis Karihiio:

CALLIHOO (Calehue, Kalliou), LOUIS, Iroquois fur trader, trapper, and hunter; probably b. at Caughnawaga (Kahnawake), Que.; fl. 1819-45 in the vicinity of Lesser Slave Lake (Alta). Louis Callihoo was one of many Iroquois men who travelled west with the fur trade in the late 18th and early 19th century. He probably came, like most of them, from the mission village of Caughnawaga, sometimes called Sault-Saint-Louis. An entry in its parish registers records the baptism of a Louis Karihiio, born 17 Oct. 1782 to Thomas Anatolia (Kanakanme) and Marie-Anne Tekonwakwehinni. A note beside the name indicates that he "went to the north, married there, had a family, [and] never returned." This description fits the career of Louis Callihoo; unlike most Iroquois who went to the west, he stayed there for the remainder of his life, and he founded a large and prominent family.

It has been claimed that the family name was originally Kwarakwante and that Father Albert Lacombe* was responsible for naming the branch that settled about the St Albert mission (Alta) Callioux, which later became corrupted to Callihoo. This hypothesis is not supported by the historical record. Individuals with the name Callihoo (variously spelled) appear well before Father Lacombe's time, in fur-trade records from the early 1800s and in church records from the 1840s. A Louis Cahiheue of Sault-Saint-Louis was hired in 1800 by McTavish, Frobisher and Company, agents for the North West Company, to winter in the north for two years. In 1812-13 a Louis Calihue worked for the NWC in the Athabasca district.

By the 1819-20 trading season Louis Callihoo was one of a number of Iroquois and Canadian freemen who hunted and trapped in the Smoky River area of what is now northwest Alberta and traded at posts on the Athabasca River and at Lesser Slave Lake. He was never a contract employee of the Hudson's Bay Company, although he did perform occasional services for it such as hauling goods to the Lesser Slave Lake post in 1819 or wintering company horses in 1829. Callihoo appears to have married two sisters from one of the Smoky River families of freemen. His first wife was Josephite Patenaude and his second was Marie Patenaude; with them he had two and seven recorded children, respectively, between 1822 and 1845. Throughout the 1820s and into the 1830s he is portrayed in HBC journals as the head of a small network of free trappers and hunters living along the Smoky River. He and his family are included in an 1838 census of freemen who traded at Lesser Slave Lake. By 1842 he had moved from the Smoky River area to Shaw Point on the lake.

Callihoo was probably brought up as a Roman Catholic. The first missionary to reach the Lesser Slave Lake area was a Methodist, the Reverend Robert Terrill Rundle*, who arrived in the early 1840s. Although Callihoo associated with Rundle, even calling the missionary to attend him when ill, he did not become a Protestant convert. All his recorded children were baptized and married by priests, including six baptized in October of 1845 by Joseph Bourassa, one of the earliest Roman Catholic missionaries to reach Lesser Slave Lake.

Callihoo died some time between 1845 and 1856. His nine children survived to produce families of their own. Notable among his descendants are Michel Callihoo (Calistrois), who as chief signed an adhesion to Treaty 6 in 1878 and settled his band near St Albert, Felix Calihoo, a founder in 1932 of the Métis Association of Alberta, and John Callihoo, a founder in 1939 of the Indian Association of Alberta.

Notes for Michel Callihoo:

Michel Band History
 Pre: 1876 - A group of Indian people of Iroquois and Cree descent live northwest of what is now Edmonton, Alberta.
 1878 - Michel band entered Treaty 6 in 1878 by way of an adhesion, signed by Michel Callihoo (Chief)
 1880 - A 40-square mile reserve was surveyed as "Michel I.R. 132" on the Sturgeon River, about eight miles from the Roman Catholic Mission at St. Albert, 15 miles 5 miles northwest of Edmonton. Reserve confirmed by Order in Council PC 1151 on May 17, 1889
 Early 1900's - The federal government pressures many Western Indian Bands to surrender large parts of their reserves in order to increase availability of desirable land for European settlers. Many surrenders taken during this time were tainted with fraud, unconscionable or otherwise illegal use of public authority and breach of trust.
 1903, 1906, 1910 - Michel Band pressured to surrender parts of reserve in exchange for needed agricultural implements (promised free under the Treaty). The early sales were marked by corruption in Ottawa. The Michel Band's lands were sold at unfavourable prices at public auctions which appeared to have been designed to favour the bidders - the federal government selling most which appeared to have been designed to favour the bidders - the federal government selling most land to insiders at far below market value. Many of the successful bidders never paid the purchase price and the government never cancelled the sales. Only two percent of the purchase price of the lands surrendered had been paid and the Band received little of the true value of its lands that were sold. In addition, while a member of parliament for Edmonton and the Minister of the Interior responsible for Indian Affairs: Frank Oliver acquired part of the Michel reserve for very little money through a concealed transaction.
 April 8, 1911 - Chief Michel Callihoo passes away at his home, Louis Jerome Callihoo (Michels' nephew) becomes chief
 1911 - The Crown surrenders 41 acres of the reserve without consent or compensation
 1914 - Former Interior Minister Frank Oliver*, acquires 26 quarter-sections of Cree land around Edmonton for half the appraised value at the time of the transaction. (<http://www.epl.ca>)
 1917 - Solomon Callihoo becomes Chief
 1928 - 10 Michel band families enfranchise pursuant to the recommendation of an Enfranchisement Board appointed by the Department of Indian Affairs under Section 110 of the 1927 Indian Act so they could have the same rights and freedoms afforded by other Canadian citizens, such as the right to vote and pursue post-secondary education.

1929 - "Michel School" opens. School named after first Chief: Michel

1936 - Fred Callihoo becomes Chief

Pre- & Post-World War II - Michel Band pressured by neighbouring settlers to enfranchise. Some members accept enfranchisement in order to provide their children with a proper education and to remove themselves from the shackles of the Indian Act. After the war, additional pressure was placed on Michel Band members to enfranchise as there was a greater need for agricultural land for returning veterans. Some Band members who had served in the war applied for enfranchisement as they could not access veteran's benefits that other Canadians received who had served in the same war.

Generation 2 (cont'd)

1958 - The Department of Indian Affairs wants the Michel band to become a model for group enfranchisement for other Bands in Canada. The Minister appoints a Committee of Inquiry appointed under Section 112 of the 1952 Indian Act as required by the compulsory enfranchisement provision of the Indian Act, to hold an inquiry into the fitness of the Michel Band members to become citizens. Further to the recommendations of the committee - the entire Michel Band was enfranchised March 31, 1958 by Order in Council P.C. 375

1959 - The compulsory Band enfranchisement provision was repealed by parliament because it conflicted with the Canadian Bill of Rights.

1985 - Under amendments to the Indian Act (Bill C-31), over 750 individual Michel Band members have their Indian status restored. No provision made in Bill C-31 for the restoration of status under the Band enfranchisement provision that was applied to the Michel Band.

Notes for Jean Callihoo:

Callihoo, John

John Callihoo, politician, Aboriginal-rights leader (b at Michel Indian Reserve, Alta 1882; d at St Albert, Alta 11 Aug 1957). Of Iroquois-Cree extraction and self-educated, he was a freighter and then a farmer, but his leadership capabilities soon made him a rallying point for Aboriginal causes. During the early 1930s he assisted nonstatus relatives in forming a Métis association and in successfully urging the Alberta government to pass the Métis Betterment Act. In 1937 he became president of the League of Alberta Indians and soon gained the nickname of "The Lawyer" from frustrated Indian Department officials with whom he was often in conflict. In 1939 he reorganized his group as the Indian Association of Alberta and saw it expand to become a successful province-wide organization. While president he was a delegate to Ottawa and helped to bring about changes in the INDIAN ACT and in provincial legislation affecting natives. He retired in 1947 but saw the association carry on as one of the most effective native political bodies in Canada.

Victoria Belcourt Callihoo: Métis woman painted vibrant picture of the West

Deceased: April 21, 1966

Victoria Belcourt Callihoo mother teamster Métis historian

When Victoria Belcourt was born in Lac Ste. Anne on Nov. 19, 1861, the formation of Canada as a country was still almost six years away. Her home community and the territory surrounding it was under the control of the Hudson's Bay Company (HBC) and wouldn't become part of the new country of Canada until 1869, when the HBC would sell Rupert's Land to the federal government. Victoria spent her entire life living in the Lac Ste. Anne area—a life that spanned more than a century. She was five years old when Canada was formed. She was almost 44 when Alberta became a province. She was alive when the first treaties were signed in Western Canada and was there to witness first-hand the decimation of the buffalo herds that had once been the mainstay of her people.

Generation 3 (cont'd)

Victoria's father, Alexis Belcourt, was French; her mother, Nancy Rowand, was Métis. Her father supported the family by farming, hunting and trapping, and occasionally did some freighting. Her mother was a medicine woman, and shared her knowledge of healing plants with her daughter. Victoria was 13 years old when she joined the buffalo hunt for the first time. The families going on the hunt left Lac Ste. Anne in the spring after fields had been sowed and gardens planted.

Victoria travelled with her mother during the hunt. As a medicine woman, it would be her mother's job to care for the men thrown from their horses while chasing down the buffalo.

The people from Lac Ste. Anne would set out for the hunt first, joined along the way by Métis from St. Albert. By the time they arrived at the hunting grounds, about 100 families would be assembled, Victoria said in her recollections of those days long gone.

She described the buffalo herd as a "dark solid moving mass."

"We, of those days, never could believe the buffalo would ever be killed off, for there were thousands and thousands," she recalled.

While the Cree and Blackfoot still used bows and arrows, the Métis used guns for the hunt, she said. When a buffalo was killed, the women would go and bring the meat in, while the girls worked to keep the fires going, creating smoke to keep the flies away as the meat was hung.

Before the trip home, the dried meat would be pounded into a pulp and mixed with sun-dried Saskatoon berries and grease to make pemmican, then sewn up in buffalo robes to help preserve it. Another hunt would take place in the fall.

xi. PETER ALBERT CALLIHOO was born in 1908 in AB, Canada. He died in 1919 in AB, Canada.

46. LOUIS JEROME CALLIHOO (Jean Baptiste<sup>2</sup>, Louis<sup>2</sup> Karihiio) was born on 21 Jan 1858 in Lac La Biche, Lac La Biche Co, Alberta, Canada. He died on 06 Oct 1926 in Villeneuve, Sturgeon Co, Alberta, Canada. He married Victoria Anne Belcourt, daughter of Alexis Belcourt and Nancy Rowland, in 1878 in Lac La Biche, Lac La Biche Co, Alberta, Canada. She was born on 19 Nov 1861 in Lac La Biche, Lac La Biche Co, Alberta, Canada. She died on 21 Apr 1966 in St Albert, Sturgeon Co, Alberta, Canada.

When she was 17, Victoria married Louis Callihoo, a young Métis man who grew up in the area. Together they had 12 children, six sons and six daughters.

The Callihooes were a farming family, although they also owned and operated a sawmill for a time and later a hotel in Lac Ste. Anne. The couple spent some time living on the Michel Reserve and some time living in Lac Ste. Anne. Both husband and wife worked as teamsters for the HBC, driving freight teams between Edmonton and Athabasca Landing.

After Louis died of cancer in 1926, Victoria continued to live in the family home, with numerous family members and friends around to ensure she was never lonely or had to do without. She continued to live on her own until she was 101. She moved in with one of her daughters for a time, then spent her last days in the Youville Home in St. Albert.

In her later years, Victoria decided her wealth of memories and experiences should be preserved for future generations, and she took on the role of Métis historian. She is credited with writing a number of articles for the Alberta Historical Review, chronicling her life as a young Métis woman on the Prairies in the 1800s, as well as relaying stories of even earlier times shared with her by others. In the Autumn 1953 edition of the Review, Victoria shared with readers her memories of what life was like in Lac Ste. Anne and St. Albert in the 1870s. She told of how spruce logs were used to build homes, with dried bark for shingles and rawhide in place of glass for the windows. Open fire-places, called mud stoves because they were made of a mixture of mud and hay, were used for cooking, with high chimneys to ensure any sparks flying out wouldn't land on the roof and catch the house on fire.

Houses, she recalled, had no tables, no chairs and no beds. People sat on the floor to eat, and slept on the floor as well, folding up the bedding each morning and putting it away in a corner. There was no flour available, Victoria recalled, so the people would grow barley and fry up the dried grains to use as a bread substitute. Unhulled barley, blackened in a frying pan, was also used as a substitute for coffee, she explained.

When the buffalo were gone, the people turned to other animals to fill the void. They hunted moose, deer and bear and used nets woven from thread purchased from the HBC to catch fish. Moose hide replaced buffalo hide for making moccasins and clothing, but neither moose nor deer hide could replace buffalo for the making of robes.

"The hair came off too easily," she recalled.

The Métis made their clothing out of cloth purchased at the HBC store. Purchases from the HBC store were done through barter, Victoria explained. The purchases would be done on credit, and then the debt was settled when the trappers would bring in their furs. Usually the furs were worth more than the debt, and the trapper would have a credit at the store.

"As there was no money, this transaction was called 'fur.' So much fur for this, and so much fur for this other article," Victoria explained. "Later on, when the Indian commissioners came to pay treaty money (in the late 70s), money began to circulate. It seemed more confusing to deal in money when one was accustomed to barter. I have heard of some Indians trading a used $5 bill for a brand new $1 bill."

In a later installment, written in 1948 but published in 1959, Victoria shared a story told to her by her husband Louis and his father, Batiste, about the arrival of their family in Alberta about 125 years before. Callihoo, Batiste's father, had been one of the first Iroquois to come west from Quebec, a voyageur for the HBC.

She had many such memories and stories to share. She counted Father Lacombe, who came to the area and set up a mission in St. Albert the year she was born, as one of her good friends. And she recalled the location where the family used to put up their tipi; the spot is now home to the Hotel MacDonald in downtown Edmonton.

Victoria remained healthy and active for most of her long life. At the age of 74, she took part in a Red River Jig competition in Edmonton and won handily, claiming the top prize of a buffalo robe. When she turned 100 in 1962, Victoria's friends and family members threw her a birthday party and she celebrated again by doing the Red River Jig.

She died April 21, 1966 at the age of 104, leaving behind two legacies. The first was the many descendants that included, at the time of her death, 57 grandchildren, 165 great-grandchildren and eight great-great grandchildren. The second was the memories she took time to record. They paint a vibrant picture of the life lived in Western Canada all those years ago.

TITLE:

Mary Belcourt Davis fonds

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

43 photographs. -- 1 audio cassette

1920-2005

ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY/BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH:

Mary Belcourt Davis was born Mary Jane Belcourt in Slave Lake ca. 1890, the daughter of Betsy Callihoo and the grand-daughter of Louie Callihoo and Annie Donald. She appears on the 1901 Census as living in the Grand Prairie area along with the Iroquois Metis families around Flying Shot Lake. Her age at that time is noted as "9", but is probably 9 months, as on the 1911 census her age is listed as 11 years. The same census shows her father as Pierre Belcourt and two siblings--Norman, aged 9, and Selina, aged 5.

Mary's grandfather, Louie Calihoo, was an Iroquois-Cree Metis born in Edmonton ca. 1854. His father, Louis L'Iroquois (Callihoo), was an expert canoe man, guide and hunter who came west with his brother Bernard to work for the Hudson Bay Company or the North-West Trading Company. The young Louis married Annie Donald, from Winnipeg, and their children were born in Edmonton, Stony Plain, Slave Lake and Lac St. Ann. Mary's mother, Betsy (Betsi) Callihoo was born in Lac St. Ann ca. 1878. One of her sisters was Philomene Callihoo, who later married St. Pierre Ferguson. In the late 1800s the family moved to the Flying Shot Lake area. Betsy also lived at Sturgeon Lake.

Generation 4 (Cont'd)

Mary Belcourt spent her childhood at Flying Shot Lake and her teen years in the newly-formed town of Grande Prairie. She worked at the Donald Hotel and enjoyed going to dances throughout the south Peace with friends such as Liz LeClerc and cousins Henry and Malcolm Ferguson. In 1930 she married Thomas Davis, and the couple had four children: Vera Kathleen, Harry Thomas (Ira), Evelyn Bertha and Norman Robert. When Mary was pregnant with Norman in the late 1930s, the couple moved to Edmonton where the two girls were placed in the O'Connell Institute and Ira was left in St. Mary's Boys Home. In 1939, Tom enlisted in the war and was gone six years. His family, together again, lived on the army pay in Edmonton near the downtown core.

Mary would often tell her children that it was better that no-one knew they had "indian" blood. When she would talk to friends in Cree, she would tell her grandchildren she was speaking French. Mary spent her last years living with her daughters and died in 1972.

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

The fonds consists of copies of 43 photographs of the Calihoo, Belcourt and Ferguson families and their descendents, and one oral history interview with Vera Davis Miles, daughter of Mary Belcourt Davis, and Cindy Desrosiers, daughter of Evelyn Davis. The interview tells the story of Mary Belcourt and her mother Betsy Calihoo.
