And yeah ngl she does scare me a bit. She's assaulted me, then blamed me for it and called me a rape apologist. She's explicitly crossed my boundaries and she used me and other comrades as fucking human shields without any consent. And the only conversation she's wanted to have with me about it all is just "we're cool now right?" So. Yeah. I agree that there's underlying causes for this behavior but that doesn't excuse it.

After so long theres only so much us as individuals and a collective can do. You cannot help someone who doesnt want to help themselves. Underlying conditions cannot always be the excuse, she needs to get the proper help she needs and not depend on trauma bonding as her therapist. You can only make so many excuses for someone who is a danger before its just shes cut all together.

I absolutely agree with this. To be clear, I don't think she's like a bad person or anything. I really enjoyed hanging out with her once upon a time. (And I know this is gonna get sent to her.) I expressed a month or so ago how I felt in this situation and was labeled a racist and a sexual assault shamer. But we're all adults and I'm not gonna tell people who to be 'friends' with. She's still consistently been around since then and I've mostly kept quiet about it. But her current mental state is a danger to us in this movement and endangering the Medics and LO's should be the last straw as far as I'm concerned.

I will only speak from my experience. Last night when the chaos ensued of changing locations, sue called me because she was stuck downtown with no ride and I had just gotten there. I picked her up and took her home since there was a lot of confusion about what was happening. She filled me in from her perspective about what happened last night and told me things that if true were very concerning. But upon talking to other people she seems to have way overexaggerated what happened and put me in an extremely difficult situation. And this is after I have already drawn boundaries with her because of her prior behavior. I try to avoid 1x1 interaction with her for my own safety. Some have already

In addition for me personally, she caused a lot of issues at my wedding of all places after I gave her the benefit of the doubt and ignored the requests of others that she was too unstable to be there. All I requested of her was that everyone get along and not bring their issues to my wedding but she chose to anyway. And then a day or two later she verbally attacked and lied about my wife and I in my DM's. This was after we did everything in our power to help support her going through some things. And after I was already aware of other folx concerns with her but chose to give her the benefit of the doubt. I think about this she is

I truly don't think she is intentionally causing issues but as others have mentioned that there are likely some unresolved mental health issues. She has acknowledged to me that she acted shitty to a lot of people but did not give any explanation, apology or say that she was getting the help she needed. Multiple of us have offered our assistance as much as possible but at some point we need to protect ourselves.
