"I live a dream in a nightmare world"

RAPE - RAPE - RAPE

I don't know about you. But I am tired of being raped by Global corporate. No matter where you go. You feel it inside you.

From Bell to your local church. The 'ME, ME' mentality is so prevalent. Look at the recent fiasco with GM. GM to close down their main plant in Canada and we as good Canadians take it in the ass and nothing is done about it. Bell, Rogers and many other corporate take away our jobs and offshore hire people to dictate and mandate how we the customers will pay and what services we are entitled to. If we don't like it. Tough luck for you.

Is this customer service? Is this how the world should be. Corporations not caring about their clients as they base their profit not on customer service but on the bottom line. Knowing that due to the sheer populations number. Loosing a few does not really mean anything to them. Let's go back to GM recent announcement. The day of the announcement the line up of political hypocrites flooded television screens. Out raged and making all kinds of empty promises. The next day... much like a storm.... No one gave a shit.

Like really! I can understand the municipal government not doing anything about it. They are a bunch of incompetents. They rather jockey for where they are going to sit during the new council term...then dealing with a real serious issue like the major industry closing. Then you have the Provincial circus. The 'ME' mentality reigns supreme.... What are we left with. The Feds! The Feds are so wound up with handing out tax dollars to refugees that the closing of GM is like... Who is GM. We have a Prime Minister that is nothing short of a flag in the wind to social outcry.

I wonder in all this where is the Union? The Union President talked big.... talking about meeting with the Prime Minister... what they hell is that going to accomplish them... playing scrabble with the Prime Minister... you may be laughing... but really... it be just as productive to talk to a Prime Minister that clearly does not care.

In most countries an announcement like this would produce a general strike across all unionized industry. People would take to the streets. Major protests would follow. Canada must be the only country in the world that would not dare think to call all unions across the country to unite and shut the country down until the Federal Government came up with a solid proposal to keep GM open.

No instead our Prime Minister is playing royalty in Argentina, kissing Trump ass.

I call on the Union to resolve this. I call on the Union President to show some balls and stop this corporate raping of our jobs. Enough is enough.

In Canada we would not dare unite and walk off the job... Hell, even though we feel for our brothers and sisters... 'i can't afford to walk off the job at $30 dollars an hour'. The Union President would not dare call an illegal strike... After all he is making well over $250,000 a year and can't afford possibly going to jail... Plus it is to cold to be out protesting... What about the insurance liability if someone gets injured... LIKE REALLY FOLKS... How about growing some balls and putting aside the 'ME, ME, FIRST MENTALITY'. Have we not learned from WWII that it does not affect me so I will do nothing MENTALITY is the first step to you being next.

I call on the Unions to unite and call all their people off the job. Force the government to act and to take action NOW. Today it is GM closing. Tomorrow it may be where you work. If no one is going to help workers in a place like GM. Do you think for a moment anyone will give a shit at the place you are working. Let's put an end to this raping of our people.

LARRY KLAYMAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW

BIG MISTAKE FOR MUELLER TO INDICT JEROME CORSI

By Larry Klayman

There is an old expression: What goes around comes around! In the context of my client Dr. Jerome Corsi – a 72 year-old, vibrant, renowned and distinguished conservative journalist, investigative reporter and accomplished New York Times best-selling author now in the cross-hairs of Special Counsel Robert Mueller's "witch hunt" to take down President Donald J. Trump – should Mueller and his prosecutorial comrades indict the good doctor, they will have made a huge mistake.

Unlike other subjects or targets of Mueller's runaway investigation, Dr. Corsi does not labor from the near-universal notion that one has to play "nicey nice" with the special counsel to escape unjust prosecution. Indeed, the president himself, at least from a legal perspective, notwithstanding his daily tweets, apparently has been counseled to effectively roll over to Mueller. With the "advice" of his lawyers, The Donald has produced over a million documents and somehow got bamboozled to now submit written "interrogatory" responses to the special counsel, answers that, when compared by Mueller to what others have testified to, could put the president in greater jeopardy by way of a so-called "perjury trap." If I were in Trump's shoes, I would have to say to my lawyers a la Laurel and Hardy, "A fine mess you have gotten me into now!"

I have been asking myself over the last year and a half why the president's lawyers have not directly challenged Mueller's mandate and the unconstitutionality of his appointment in federal court and attempted to have him removed. Save for Andrew Miller, a friend of target Roger Stone, no one thus far has taken this route, and the courts are unlikely to give much attention or credence to a lonely third-tier witness, despite what this crucial issue deserves. But if President Trump had directed his attorneys to take the matter all the way to the Supreme Court, there would have been a good chance the "conservative majority" might have shown Mueller an exit stage left.

Also, puzzling to me is why Trump's lawyers have not gone on the counteroffensive by bringing suit for the illegal surveillance against the president, his staff and his family. This would have been a no-brainer, but then again the president's ego-driven establishment lawyers seem to have been mostly fixated on cable news appearances, rather than taking strong legal action.

So along comes, by the divine grace of the Father and his Son, my esteemed client, a true American hero, Dr. Corsi, who has the "cajones" to stand up to the treachery of Mueller and his conflicted and venomous leftist/Democratic prosecutorial staff. Mueller offered Dr. Corsi what the special counsel in his infinite arrogance considered a sweetheart plea deal if he lied and falsely ratted out Roger Stone and President Trump with regard to alleged Russian collusion, but my client stood his ground in self-defense and told the special counsel to stick it where the sun don't shine. While not equating Dr. Corsi to Jesus, let's not forget how He told the Romans to do the same thing.

In so doing, in the mold of Clint Eastwood's famous line "make my day," Corsi effectively dared Mueller and his political hack prosecutors to indict him, in the process also instructing me and my co-defense counsel, David Gray, to prepare a criminal complaint against the special counsel. This complaint, to be filed with Acting Attorney General Matthew Whitaker and the heads of the Office of Professional Responsibility and Inspector General of my alma mater, the U.S. Department of Justice, will set forth the crimes of obstruction of justice, witness tampering and witness intimidation, among other felonies, committed by the special counsel and his staff, as well as his spokesperson, Peter Carr, and others in his office, who have furthered the criminal leaks of grand jury information not just about Dr. Corsi, but a myriad of the putative and now actual defendants. Stay tuned for this filing this Monday, which will ask for Mueller's removal and professional discipline and much more by way of criminal prosecution for him and his accomplices.

The complaint also will address the unethical if not illegal conflicts of interest of the prosecutors, including Mueller himself, inherent in the ongoing "witch hunt."

And should the special counsel unwisely then seek to indict Jerome Corsi, on "Trumped up" and false charges, this will give my client, through our legal actions, a vehicle to challenge in court Mueller's legitimacy, or rather lack thereof, all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary.

All of this is long overdue! It is particularly overdue given the previously unchallenged march of Mueller and his collaborators in the now-Democrat controlled House of Representatives, who will use his phony work to ignite impeachment proceedings when the likes of new Speaker Nancy Pelosi and her band of rabid, leftist and anti-Trump comrades take control of the people's chamber in early January 2019.

I feel privileged and proud to represent Dr. Corsi not just because he is in a unique position to legally end Mueller's "reign of terror," but more importantly, because he is exemplary of the courage of our Founding Fathers, who stood up to another despot in 1776 and, through fearless action, formed a new nation. In so doing, our Founding Fathers and later our framers looked to God for divine guidance and provenance.

In rejecting the felonious plea proposal of Special Counsel Mueller and his prosecutorial staff just last week, which called for my client to lie under oath, Dr. Corsi invoked his godly belief that he was doing the right thing, not just for himself but the nation.

That is the true spirit of what it means to be an American – and for those other patriots who feel as if they out there in the wildness without legal recourse to save the republic, let's all take a lesson from this modern-day hero. Dr. Corsi's "last stand" brings hope to those citizens who believe in the rule of law and the Constitution!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

On a recent TV political discussion panel show a young man said he wanted 'Forward thinking political leadership'.

Oh, the enthusiasm or maybe ignorance of the young! What most of the people want is a bit simpler - let's start with a thinking political leadership. There are plenty of candidates for any political position so surely there must be a few clear thinking individuals in waiting or already in the position although the number that deny climate change casts doubt on this.

At least the UK is honest with its 'Official Monster Raving Loony Party' that caters for the more diverse thinking potential politicians. Looking at a number of countries we see leaders that don't seem to be the most capable of thinkers and a number of others that just follow their party line so they don't have to think at all.

There needs to be a minimum standard for those that represent us - they should sit a 'thinking' test. There would also need to be tests on character, integrity, humanity, work ethic, honesty, and much more. These tests would weed out most potential candidates.
