Durham Regional Police Service Stand Tall Against Human Trafficking

On Thursday February 19th members of the DRPS Human Trafficking Unit in conjunction with community partners from the HT Coalition of Durham Region hosted a pop-up awareness event at the Oshawa Centre.

This event was in support of National Human Trafficking Day and allowed officers and community partners to provide education and awareness around this issue. More than 200 community members stopped in to chat with our officers.

Human Trafficking takes many forms. Recently across Durham Region the number of missing youth between 14 - 18 have increased.

Youth primarily from the Black community have just disappeared without a trace. Also with the increase in the drug trade. Women have been recruited through various chat sites to work in prostitution. Others have been forced to work in the sex trade in exchange for protection against immigration enforcement. The 401 has become a gateway from Windsor to Ottawa for all kinds of illegal movement. Normally these organizations will shift from one location to another making it hard for police to prosecute. Across Durham Region the push to prosecute has intensified.

Durham Regional Police Service (DRPS) said in 2025, its Human Trafficking Unit investigated 231 incidents. "As a result, 192 victims or at-risk individuals were identified and provided with services," police said. On February 23, 2026 Durham Regional Police Service (DRPS) said in 2025, DRPS Human Trafficking (HT) Unit investigated 231 incidents that involved elements of human trafficking. "Of these incidents, 192 individuals (95 under 18 years of age) were assisted/provided services, either due to their involvement in human trafficking or their risk of becoming involved in human trafficking-related activity. As a result of these investigations, 183 charges were laid, and 86 accused/people of interest were identified, police said on Sunday – Human Trafficking Awareness Day.
