MENTAL HEALTH RECOVERY STARTS WITH SAFE HOUSING

A lack of affordable and supportive housing for people with serious mental illness is one of the most pressing needs in Florida's system of care.

Experts from Carrfour Supportive Housing and Broward Behavioral Health Coalition will discuss the need for housing for people with serious mental illness, best practices, types of housing, availability, affordability, state of federal funding, effects on crisis systems, and more. Family members with experience looking for housing for their loved ones will join the conversation.
