

Kim Jong Il is a peerless brilliant commander of Songun

D.Enkhbadralt. Sc.D., Paektusan Association for Independent Development of Mongolia

Kim Jong Il is a peerless brilliant commander of Songun who leads the cause of Songun revolution to victory with outstanding and seasoned leadership.

Extraordinary wisdom and strategy, firm faith and will, matchless courage and gut, ardent love and benevolence are dispositions to be acquired by a famous general.

First, it is an extraordinary military wisdom and superb strategy.

Military wisdom and strategy are the qualifications and traits to be possessed by a brilliant commander.

Ideological and theoretical wisdom is fundamental for a brilliant commander and it is demonstrated in setting forth a political mode representing most correctly the aspiration of the popular masses and requirements of the times and revolutionary development.

Politics is precisely strength. Politics which is not guaranteed by military strength cannot be enforced successfully. Wisdom and political capability of a modern politician depends on how properly he combines politics with military affairs.

In the 1990s of the 20th century the US political and military pressure to stifle socialism of the DPRK was intensified more than ever before. The prevailing situation and changed international circumstance urgently required Korea to uphold the banner of Songun.

Kim Jong Il put forward an original political mode of Songun and enforced it comprehensively by deepening and developing President Kim Il Sung's idea and line of giving importance to rifle and military affairs on the basis of analyzing scientifically the requirements of international conditions and changed situations of the Korean revolution. Thanks to the Songun politics, the Party, army and people in the DPRK could control and check the imperialist aggressors with powerful military deterrence and have a precious sword to defend socialism and win victory with rifle in the Korean revolution.

Kim Jong Il's military wisdom and strategy contains not only a mysterious perspicacity of seeing into an obscured essence in exposed phenomena but also a far-sightedness of foreseeing in advance the future to be resulted in by a military change which is so trifle that nobody senses and of taking thorough measures against it.

It is clearly expressed in his leadership to develop the national defense industry by putting forward and implementing the economic construction line of the Songun era.

It was a vital issue determining success or failure of the revolution, life or death of the country how the DPRK would activate the national defense industry under such a grave circumstance that the US further intensified the political and military isolation and suffocation and economic blockade against the Republic. Kim Jong Il took deep account of the actual requirements of the DPRK whose people could live without sweets but could not live without bullets and regards the military affairs as the first and foremost state affair and the national defense industry as the primary, and directed all efforts to it. His far-sighted leadership was a decisive factor that enabled the DPRK to strengthen and develop the national defense industry into the world-level independent and modern one. The Juche-oriented and modern national defense industry enabled Korea to produce its own powerful military equipment and combat and technical materials at its will. It also enables it to modernize the entire army, arm all people and fortify the whole land on a higher level. Today the Korean revolutionary armed forces are strengthened and developed into the matchlessly strong army that can firmly guarantee the victory of Songun revolution militarily with strong and modern means of attack and defense.

Kim Jong Il's strategy proves ever-victorious since it is offensive.

It enables the DPRK to keep victorious in every military confrontation with the US who boasts itself of being the "strongest" in the world because he is stubborn, determined and smart. It also displays unlimited might because it is extraordinary one to keep active in controlling any enemy.

Second, it is the revolutionary faith and indomitable will, matchless courage and gut.

Revolution is done with faith and will, courage and gut. If a revolutionary does not keep his faith, his life meets a dishonorable end, but if a political leader fails to do so, his party and state is ruined. This is the truth proved by history.

Kim Jong Il was a strong man who personified faith and will on the highest phase.

His faith and will enabled the Korean people not to yield before any threat or blackmail imposed by tens of millions of enemy but to rise up with redoubled courage and do-or-die spirit without any hesitation or vacillation in any adversities. He renewed his revolutionary mission and holded the banner against enemy whenever more difficulties were faced with his country. It is invincible spirit and ideological and spiritual traits of Kim Jong Il, strongest in faith and will.

Kim Jong Il dealt a merciless military attack to aggressive moves of the US, took tough attitude towards its political and diplomatic pressure, and treated its reactionary ideological offensives with revolutionary ones, thus leading the Songun revolution to victory. His faith and will, courage and gut was displayed in the long journey traveled by him continuously, which resulted in the death-defying faith and will among the army soldiers.

The Korean revolution has proved with practice the truth that a party with strong faith is not degenerated, the army with firm faith is not defeated and the people with conviction are not disintegrated. Korea defends socialism and wins victory in the revolution with such faith and will imposing itself as a socialist fortress and displaying the dignity. The Korean revolution is, indeed, recording a victorious history of faith and will, courage and gut.

Third, it is warm love and benevolence.

Love and benevolence are important traits for a brilliant commander.

They are based on the philosophy of believing in the people as in heaven and his constant view that trust produces loyalty and distrust results in betrayal.

Kim Jong Il defined the revolutionary comradeship as a basis of a single-minded unity, a spiritual strength of the Party and a driving force of the revolution and shows the comradesly love that can be compensated with nothing for the Korean soldiers and people.

Kim Jong Il regarded army men not as the simple people from the view of relationship between the supreme commander and soldiers but as the revolutionary comrades sharing same idea and will. He visited every place where soldiers stay even though it is far and difficult to go.

Courageous spirit and devotional love of Kim Jong Il who willingly inspected the dangerous forefront and braved through cliffs and rough storms for his soldiers is greatly moving the hearts of all army men and people. Kim Jong Il regarded the People's Army as the pillar and main agent of the revolution and loves the officers and men with parental love.

His trust and love was an ideological and spiritual source that enabled the officers and men of the People's Army to be brave fighters and heroes of human bomb. Thanks to his endless love and trust, the Korean People's Army has become a reliable pillar of the revolution, thus displaying stamina and fighting vigorously for the victory of the Songun revolution.

Today the DPRK defends socialism firmly and advances victoriously the revolutionary cause under Kim Jong Un's politics of love and trust.

It is a review of the Songun revolution and an immortal truth acquired by the Korean people through practice that they will be victorious all the time because they have Kim Jong Un who possesses faith and will, courage and gut, love and benevolence just like Kim Jong Il. Ever-victorious will be the revolutionary cause of the DPRK which is advancing with confidence, upholding Kim Jong Un, the Supreme Commander of the armed forces, genius of military affairs and incarnation of benevolence.