★ SYNOPSIS ★

In a world of deals, tariffs, and alternate facts, Mister Crazydent returns in TARIFFS — a blistering new comic that skewers global politics, trade wars, and one man's bottomless ego. With his loyal (and questionable) advisors, a plan to tariff everything, and a belief that America always wins (somehow), Crazydent leads the world into hilarious chaos. Big on satire, bigger on delusion, and packed with political absurdity, TARIFFS is a comic for anyone who loves freedom, laughter, and a little economic insanity.

★ SYNOPSIS ★

The United States is getting ready to celebrate the 250th anniversary of its Declaration of Independence. For Crazydent, a date like this cannot merely honor the past — it must honor him, too. Convinced that America deserves a $250 bill bearing his image, a gigantic ballroom, a triumphal arch, a UFC fight in front of the White House, and a permanent place in History, he launches a new crusade of grandeur, prestige, and pure delirium. Between national celebration, cult of personality, and one absurd project after another, 250 promises a historic party... especially for Mister Crazydent's ego.

★ SYNOPSIS ★

Crazydent proudly declares that MAGA has fulfilled its mission because, according to him, America is already great again. But greatness is never enough when Crazydent is involved. He orders a team of so-called experts to invent a brand-new slogan from the letters C.R.A.Z.Y. The problem: they are not experts, and none of their ideas survive his ego. Then comes the real crisis — mountains of leftover MAGA hats. Refusing to waste a single cap, Crazydent demands an even more brilliant solution: give M.A.G.A. a brand-new meaning.

Same hats. Same ego. New delusion.

★ SYNOPSIS ★

Insulted that he never won the Nobel Peace Prize, Crazydent declares the Nobel institution obsolete, dusty, and far too provincial. Peace, he insists, is a naive fantasy dreamed up by small Nordic minds. Real peace only comes after a great war — everyone knows that, except the Norwegians.

So Crazydent creates what the world has been missing:

THE CRAZYDENT WORLD PEACE PRIZE.

A new prize. A new name. A new era.

He appoints an “international” board of judges (handpicked, of course) whose mission is simple: make him the first recipient.

Because when it comes to world peace,
no one is more qualified than Mister Crazydent.

★ SYNOPSIS ★

Christmas is slipping in the polls, and Crazydent refuses to let that happen.

He steps in personally, orders NASA to build him a Santa sleigh, and transforms the front of the White House into a full-blown Santa Crazy Village. Before long, he is no longer just playing Santa — he truly believes he is Santa.

And Santa gives. Unfortunately for everyone else, Crazydent's gifts come with a toxic surprise: they're poisoned.

Between holiday spectacle, presidential vanity, and dangerous generosity, Santa Crazy promises a Christmas no one will ever forget.
