

Curated Group Show "YOU ARE HERE" Opens 12 November at @katmapped

London, England. Release: 9 November 2020. For Immediate Release.

A new curated exhibition of 50 artists' works selected from 400 submissions worldwide opens 12 November 2020 online at www.katmapped.org.

artist: Henny Burnett (England)

This curated online exhibition explores how the concept of maps and mapping, internal and external, has informed living artists works and thoughts.

The exhibition presents a stimulating and visually striking grouping of works and spans drawing, video, sculpture, photography and installation from artists around the world.

The 'You Are Here' exhibition has been curated by two practising artists: Kate Trafeli, working out of London, and James Stewart, working out of Devon.

The selections were chosen after evaluation by the curators, working in tandem remotely, from 400 submissions received in response to an open call request made by @katmapped. The works on show have been selected by the curators on the basis of the strength of the work presented combined with their relevance to the show's theme.

artist: Tahira Noreen (Pakistan)

Because unprecedented times have changed how and where artists work, show their work, and what they are creating in an uncharted world, this exhibition presents an avenue for artists and viewers to collectively participate in the arts while many museums, galleries and shows remain closed.

artist: Rihanata Bigey (England, France, and Ouagadougou, (Burkina-Faso))

The aim of this exhibition is to showcase living artists making engaging work separately that is thematically cohesive, in an accessible way for both viewers and artists: here, geography and lockdowns do not constrain us.
