"See sound, hear light." Like a DJ mixing frequencies, Mateo Gabayet builds a bridge between the digital and the material, sampling an extensive library of forms to create infinite compositions. His work translates the logic of electronic music—loops, repetition, rhythm, and variation—into a visual language, driven by the ambition of bringing rave culture into the realm of contemporary art.

Through the continual appropriation of new forms, his visual vocabulary expands in pursuit of a collective experience akin to trance: an almost catatonic state comparable to that of the dance floor. The concepts of Gesamtkunstwerk (the total work of art) and sensory overload define his practice. Scale, site, and reproducibility become strategies for amplifying the work's impact.

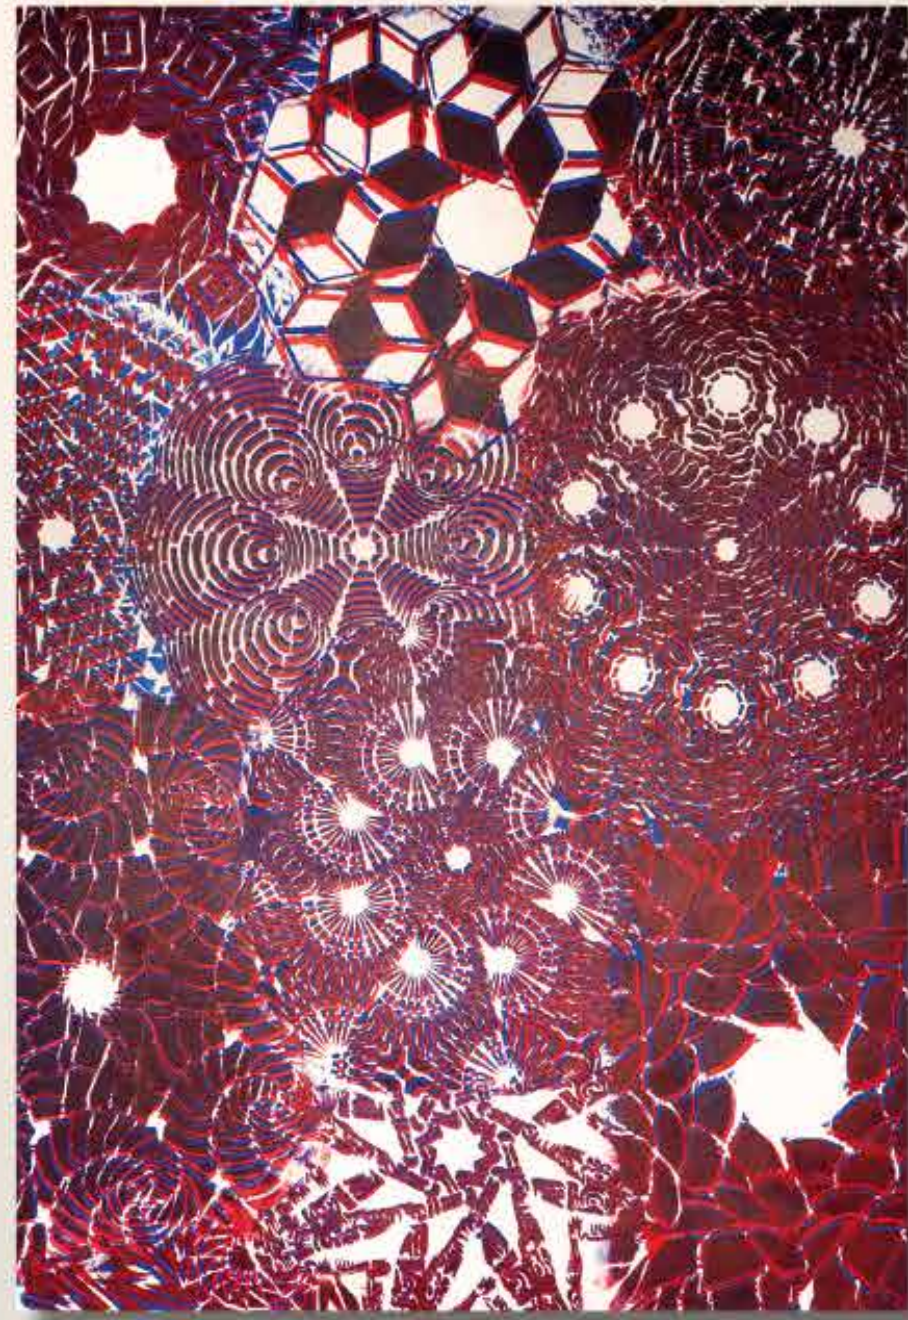

The viewer does not simply observe but becomes immersed. By entering the work's space, they become part of a shared environment where multiple bodies resonate in synchrony, united by a single visual pulse.

Mateo Gabayet (Mexico City, 1998) is a multidisciplinary visual artist whose practice explores the intersection of electronic music, visual systems, and contemporary perception. Educated between Paris and London, he studied Fine Art with a specialization in Painting at Camberwell College of Arts (University of the Arts London), complementing his education with studies in animation, visual effects, and applied arts. Working across painting, installation, stencil, glass, and digital media, he develops a visual language that translates principles such as rhythm, sampling, and repetition into immersive sensory experiences.

Gabayet has exhibited and collaborated on projects across Mexico, the United Kingdom, and the United States, cultivating a practice that blurs the boundaries between the digital and the physical. Influenced by rave culture and the concept of the Gesamtkunstwerk (total work of art), he approaches each project as a convergence of image, sound, technology, and space, inviting viewers to experience rhythm and time through an expanded visual vocabulary.
