(IMPORTANT PLACES TO REMEMBER)

BY

PROF. SALMAN UL WAHEED

CHAPTER 1

When you are getting on in years, you get very sleepy at times, and the hours seem to pass likelazy cattle moving across a landscape.

When you are getting on in years it is nice to sit by the fire and drink a cup of tea and listen to the school bell.

Rarely did he read more than a page of it before sleep came swiftly and peacefully, more like a mystic intensifying of perception than any changeful entrance into another world.

(Page 1, Para 2, Line 5)

My dear fellow you are fitter than I am. (Page 1, Para 3, Line 2)

You're past the age when people get these horrible diseases.

Take up a firm attitude from the beginning, that's the secret of it.

Big Hall full of lusty barbarians ready to pounce on him as their legitimate prey. (Page 2, Para 3, Line 2)

And as Chips sat by his fire with autumn gales rattling the windows, the waves of humour and sadness swept over him very often until tears fell, so that when Mrs. Wickett came in with his cup of tea she did not know whether he had been laughing or crying.

CHAPTER 2

A group of eighteenth century building centred upon a quadrangle, and there were acres of playing fields beyond.

Later, after the Napoleonic Wars and until mid-Victorian days, the school declined again, both in numbers and repute.

Mostly, however, it turned out merchants, manufacturers, and professional men, with a good sprinkling of country squires and parsons.

But if it had not been this sort of school it would probably not have taken Chips.

He had no private means and no family connections of any importance.

About 1880, after he had been at Brookfield a decade, he began to recognize that the odds were heavily against his being able to better himself by moving elsewhere.

The court of appeal in all matters affecting Broomfield history and traditions (Page 5, Para 1, Line 6)

Brookfield, as Wetherby has said, have become as famous as Harrow.

Three cheers, indeed; but there was more to come, an unguessed epilogue, an encore played to a tragic audience.

(Page 5, Last Line)

CHAPTER 3

It was a small but very comfortable and sunny room that Mrs. Wickett let to him. (Page 6, Line 1)

The house itself was ugly and pretentious; but that didn't matter; it was convenient, that was the main thing.

If the weather were mild enough, to stroll across to the plating-fields in an afternoon and watch the games.

He liked to smile and exchange a few words with the boys when they touched their caps to him.

His guests found it fun to watch him make tea -- mixing careful spoonfuls from different caddies.

And he would ask the new boys where they lived, and if they had family connections at Brookfield.

He kept watch to see that their plates were never empty,

But we never'ad no bad words between us.

Just cheeky like. 'E never meant no harm. That kind never does. Wasn't it 'im that got the medal, sir?"

(Page 6, para 4, Line 1)

His pension was adequate, and there was a little money saved up besides.

Which was oddly incorrect; because Chips was not a bachelor at all (Page 7, Last para, Line 1)

CHAPTER 4

As it turned out, she was not in difficulties at all, but was merely signalling to a friend farther down the mountain.

(Page 8, Line 15)

He never felt at home or at ease with them.

(Page 8, Line 25)

There was a fellow named Bernard Shaw who had the strangest and most reprehensible opinions.

He had not, therefore, expected to find a woman on Great Gable; but having encountered one who seemed to need masculine help.

(Page 8, last Line)

And as she considered herself responsible for Chips's accident, she used to bicycle along the side of the lake to the house in which the quiet, middle-aged, serious looking man lay resting.

(Page 9, Para 2, Line 8)

She was a governess out of a job, with a little money saved up.

Yet here he was, claiming her interest and attention far more than youths of her own age. (Page 10, Line 1)

Within a week they were head over heels in love. (Page 10, Para 2, Line 1)

CHAPTER 5

When Chips, dreaming through the hours at Mrs. Wickett's, recollected those days, he used to look down at his feet and wonder which one of it was that had performed so signal a service.

He could re-smell the washed air after heavy rain, and re-follow the ribbon of the pass across to Sty Head.

On the night before wedding, when Chips left the house to return to his hotel....

A hansome clop-clopping in the roadway; green pale lamps (Page 12, Para 2, line 1)

CHAPTER 6

Even the wives of the masters, tempted at first to be jealous of someone so young and lovely, could not long resist her charms.

He began to feel a greater strength; his discipline improved to a point at which it could come less rigid.

(Page 13, Para 3, line 7)

Obedience he had secured, and honour had been granted him; but only now came love. (Page 13, Para 3, line 11)

You can't satisfy your conscience by writing a cheque for a few guineas and keeping them at arm's length.

Rather to her surprise he gave way and suddenly became a keen advocate of the proposal.

They then met the Head and were shown over the School and Chips saw them off at the railway station in the evening.

The visitors were taking away with them as fine an impression as they had left behind.

(Page 14, last line)

Chips gave him tea and chatted with him.

(Page 15, Para 1, line 4)

I'm real sorry to hear that, sir. (Page 15, Para 4, line 1)

CHAPTER 7

Having all these hundreds of boys cooped up here is really an unnatural arrangement.

Don't known about that, Kathie, but I do know that, for everybody's sake, we have to be pretty strict about this sort of thing.

(Page 16, Para 6, line 2)

All the more reason to keep it so.

(Page 16, Para 6, line 2)

He was always at the mercy of a softening wave of reminiscence.

But she had not always pleaded for leniency.

He is too cocksure of himself.

And if that were so, what a crowd of emotions clung to him as to their last home before annihilation!

(Page 17, Para 3, line 5)

"Then, Chips dear, don't you think there ought to be some other way."

Looks as if we shall have to settle with the Prussians ourselves.

Before your time, I daresay .. went to Burma in some Govt. job. (Page 18, Para 1, line 6)

CHAPTER 8

May I have the afternoon off? My people are coming up. (Page 19, Para 1, Last line)

You can go to blazes for all I care. (Page 19, Para 3, line 1)

Actually he nodded and stumbled on. (Page 19, Para 4, line 1)

He tore them open one after the other. (Page 19, Para 5, line 2)

The incident gave hardly an impact upon his vastly greater preoccupations.

Not till days afterwards did he realize that it had been a piece of April foolery.

(Page 19, 2nd line line)

CHAPTER 9

He could still knock up a half-century on the cricket-field.

I wonder if he still thinks that fifty's such an age? (Page 20, Para 2, line 5)

For with the new century there settled upon Chips a mellowness that gathered all his developing mannerisms and his oft-repeated jokes into a single harmony.

No longer did he have those slight and occasional disciplinary troubles, or feel diffident about his own work and worth.

He found that his pride in Brookfield reflected back, giving him cause for pride in himself and his position.

(Page 20, Para 3, line 9)

He wore his gown till it was almost too tattered to hold together.

(Page 21, line 1)

He held the School-list, a long sheet curling over a board and each boy, as he passed, spoke his own name for Chips to verify and then tick off on the list.

(Page 21, Para 1, line 3)

He saw it, more than he realized, with the remembered eyes of Kathie.

It was typical of him that he did not share the general jingo bitterness against the Boers. (Page 21, Para 6, line 6)

The Boers were engaged in a struggle that had a curious similarity to those of certain English history Book heroes.

(Page 21, Para 5, line 10)

CHAPTER 10

Chips was not in the running with that kind of person.
(Page 23, Para 1, line 8)

Those years before the retirement in 1913 were studded with sharply remembered pictures.

Stones had been thrown at trains. (Page 23, Para 4, line 2)

Chips, who was in charge, stood a little way off, talking to a man at the gate of the cottage.

He talked of them as if they were queer animals out of a zoo! (Page 23, Para 5, line 1)

"Please, sir, what shall we do if we met any strikers?"

Chips thinking it over a good many times always added to himself that Kathie would have approved, and would also have been amused.

You have put your life in his hands many a time. (Page 23, Para 5, line 3)

She fitted herself into the English scene with dignity and without disproportion.

He had been left a vision that grew clearer with each year.... Of an England for whom days of ease were nearly over.

Next morning it was noised around the School that Grayson's father had sailed on the Titanic, and that no news had yet come through, as to his fate.

(Page 24, Para 6, 10th line from bottom)

CHAPTER 11

Chips stared about him in that book-lined study, startled by the question, wondering why Ralston should have asked it.

But I want you to know that the Governors are with you to a man. (Page 28, Para 2, line 4)

For some time past, you haven't been pulling your weight here. (Page 25, Para 6, line 3)

Mr. Chipping, and you must ascribe it to my forbearance that I have put up with it so long.

That gown of yours is a subject of continual amusement throughout the school. (Page 25, second last line)

Modern parents are beginning to demand something more for their three years school-fees than a few scraps of languages that nobody speaks. Besides, your boys don't learn even what they're supposed to learn. None of them last year got through the Lower Certificate.

And suddenly, in a torrent of thoughts too pressing to be put into words, Chips made answer to himself.

Times are changing, whether you realize it or not. (Page 26, Para 5, line 4)

Ralston was narrowing them upon the single issue of a fat banking account. (Page 27, Para 1, line 5)

All this flashed through his mind in an instant of protest and indignation, but he did not say a word of it.

So if he starts chucking his weight about with you, tell him very politely, he can go to the devil.

(Page 28, Para 2, line 8)

CHAPTER 12

So he stayed on at Brookfield having as little to do with Ralston as Possible.

Recognising in Chips a Brookfield institution, he courteously and wisely accepted the situation.

He felt that it would not be fair to hang on if he could not decently do his job.

He did nothing else but clean and trim and light lamps throughout the School (Page 29, Last Para, line 7)

We had to send for the fire brigade to put it out.

(Page 29, last line)

He exaggerated the one into a seven!
(Page 29, Para 4, line 4)

I remember lots of changes at Brookfield. (Page 30, Para 1, line 6)

He had all the new boys to tea. (Page 30, Para 2, line 7)

That was a good one, people thought one of Chips's best. (Page 30, Para 1, line 6)

Well, I shall write it, some day. (Page 30, Para 1st, line 7th)

CHAPTER 13

Forrester was the smallest new boy Brookfield had ever had-about four feet high above his muddy football boots.

A hundred years ago boys from this school were fighting against the French. (Page 31, Para 3, line 7)

The sacrifices of one generation should so cancel out those of another.

Armies clenched in deadlock from the sea to Switzerland. (Page 31, Para 4, line 1)

They are only names to him, he doesn't see their faces as I do. (Page 31, Para 4, line 7)

Towards the close of that catastrophic July, Chatteris talked to Chips one afternoon at Mrs.

Wickett's.

I'm not having too easy a time here. (Page 31, Para 5, line 3)

Most of the younger masters gone or in uniform. (Page 31, Para 4th, line 4th)

Very moving, but Chips, in the back pew under the gallery, thought.

Chips hadn't known anything about this; it was a shock to him, for he liked Chatteris.

Ralston filled the place up with young men, all very good, of course but now most of them have joined up and the substitutes are pretty dreadful.

(Page 32, Para 2, line 1st)

They poured ink down a man's neck in prep. (Page 32, Para 2, line 3)

If things don't improve next term I shall have a breakdown.
(Page 32, Para 2, line 7)

I do sympathize with you. (Page 32, Para 2, Last line)

There's nobody ever been more popular than you were, and are still.

You'd help to hold things together if there were any danger of them flying to bits.

(Page 32, Para 3, line 8)

It was a shock to him, for he liked Chatteris.

New boy Brookfield had ever had about four feet high above his muddy boots. (Page 31, Para 3rd, line 2nd)

CHAPTER 14

He put on his coat and muffler and crossed the road to the School.

He felt a little like a music-hall favourite returning to the boards after a positively last appearance. (Page 33, para 1, line 7)

They did not guess how closely he had kept in touch from across the road.

There is no sublimer feeling in the world, and it was his at last.

He shrank instinctively, feeling himself in so many ways unequal to it.

He was a grand success altogether.

And necessary to something that was nearest to his heart.

The story went round_ heard Chips's latest? (Page 33, Para 4, line 9)

On Sundays in chapel it was he who now read out the tragic list, and sometimes it was seen and heard that he was in tears over it.

Those who knew him will be sorry to hear that he was killed last week, on the Western front. (Page 34, Para 4, line 4)

Oh, just one of Chip's ideas, I expect. (Page 34, Para 5, line 8)

From that last, honour, within his reach at last, he shrank instinctively.

So much of the world was losing it: as well keep it where it had. (Page 34, Para 1, line 4)

Out of vast experience had emerged a kindly, gentle confidence in himself.

CHAPTER 15

If it is fate that we are soon to be, let us be found employing ourselves in something really appropriate.

(Page 35, Para 2, Last lines)

The whole building shook as if it were being lifted off its foundations. (Page 35, Para 2, Last lines)

That's really very funny indeed, Sir _ One of your very best.

Never seen him laugh so much. (Page 36, Para 4th, line 5th)

Brookfield would not have had an atom of him.

The kitchen staff were implored to provide as cheerful a spread as war-time rationing permitted.

Everyone gazed on him with eager, shining eyes, as on a symbol of victory. (Page 36, Para 6, line 6)

He walked to the dais, seeming as if he wished to speak.

The next day he was in bed with bronchitis, and stayed there till after Christmas.

He had sent in his resignation to the Board of Governors. (Page 36, Para 7, line 4)

There was much cheering and singing and a bread fight across the dining hall.

At his own request there were no more farewells or presentations, nothing but a handshake with his successor and the word "acting" crossed out on official stationery.

(Page 36, Para 8, Last lines)

CHAPTER 16

He was not ill, of course-only a little tired at times, and bad with his breathing during the winter months.

When the bell rang for call-over, he would go to the window and look across the road and over the School fence and see, in the distance, the thin line of boys filing past the bench.

(Page 37, Para 2, line 2)

The post-war decade swept through with a clatter of change and maladjustments.

One of the new masters, fresh from Oxford, even let the Sixth call him by his Christian name. (Page 37, Last line)

Something had happened, something whose ultimate significance had yet to be reckoned. (Page 38, Para 2, line 3)

Whenever he rose to speak at a meeting, or even when he talked across a table, people prepared their minds and faces for the joke.

He came across to the School, however, on fine days; and he still kept up a wide and continual hospitality in his room.

He invested in gilt-edged stocks, did not suffer when the slump set in. He gave a lot of his money away-to people who called on him with a hard-luck story.

They all asked him questions, as if he were some kind of prophet and encyclopaedia combinedmore even than that, for they liked their answer dished up as a joke.

(Page 39, Para 1, line 1)

There were warm fires, and books, and you could look forward to the summer.

(Page 37, Para 1st, line 7th)

It was the summer that he liked best.

(Page 37, Para 1, line 8)

New times, new news, but the old ones still remained.

(Page 37, Para 2nd, line 3rd)

Curious, in the deeper sense, how little it had changed. SALMA

(Page 37, Para 3rd, line 9th)

Boys were a politer race.

There was a more genuine friendliness between master and boys less pomposity on the one side, less unctuousness on the other.

(Page 37, Para 3rd, line 11th)

England had burned her fire in her own grate again.

(Page 38, Para 2nd, line 4th)

Old Chips was in fire form.

(Page 38, Para 4th, line 6th)

Sometimes, when he was strolling about the School, small boys of the cheekier kind would ask him questions, merely for the fun of getting Chips's "latest" to retail.

Your country would have spit more blood in raiding a single liquor saloon! (Page 38, Para 3, line 3)

> Please Sir, what about the Five Year Plan? (Page 39, Para 4, line 1)

And what on earth is a Wurlitzer? (Page 39, Para 6, line 1)

CHAPTER 17

It was cold and foggy, and he dared not go out. (Page 40, Para 1, line 2)

He had not felt too well since Armistice Day.

The whole pageant of it swung before him as he sat by the fire that afternoon.

An old joke and he, of all people, having made so many jokes in his time. (Page 40, Para 6, line 1)

nem sc And it amused him to cap the joke, as it were, with one of his own; to let them see that he could keep his end up, even yet.

I've been there since the beginning of term with measles. (Page 40, Para 7, line 1)

> You must be very old. (Page 41, Para 3rd, line 2nd)

Chips laughed quietly and steadily to himself. (Page 41, Para 4, line 1)

> The Germans bombed us. (Page 41, Para 2nd, line 7th)

He thought, nobody would call me serious today, that's very certain. (Pg. 41, last para, 2nd last line)

He remembered that on the eve of his wedding day Kathie had used that same phrase, mocking him gently for the seriousness he had had in those days.

(Page 41, Last lines)

He leaned back in his chair. (Page 42, Para 2, lines 7

He found himself in bed; and Merivale was there, stooping over him and smiling. (Page 43, Para 1, line 1)

Merely that you threw a faint. (Page 43, Para 3, line 1)

I'm going to go to sleep. (Page 43, Para 4, last line)

But it wasn't sleep, and it wasn't quite wakefulness. (Page 43, Para 5, line 1)

And then the chorus sang in final harmony, more grandly and sweetly than he had even heard it before, and more comfortingly too.
