Go to the White Mountain, in the middle of the Pacific.
Ascend to the summit and close your eyes.
Breathe deeply and feel the connectedness of things:
Of all the things of the sea, and of all the things of the sky.

Share your experience with those who've come before
And with those who are yet to come.
Read the story of humanity in the clouds and upon the earth.
Be humbled and be proud of your humanity.

See your humanity cast a tiny shadow across the blaze of Nature,
The power and wrath and beauty of the gods who inspire awe,
The protectors and connectors and the shepherds and storytellers.
Ask your questions with your ears and receive the blessings with your heart.
