

LOCATING THE TREASURES

Long ago, when King Oberon united the realm of Shadowmere, he divided the kingdom into four noble courts, each reflecting the magic and spirit of its season:

The Winter Court ~ A realm of quiet strength and resilience, where icy winds guard ancient secrets. Its people are wise, resourceful, and bound by tradition, carrying the memory of Shadowmere's long, cold battles.

The Fall Court ~ A land of harvest, change, and mystery, where golden leaves swirl through whispers of prophecy. The Fall Court thrives on cleverness and cunning, its nobles as quick-witted as the winds that scatter the season's bounty.

The Spring Court ~ Bursting with life and renewal, the Spring Court is a place of hope and growth. Here, flowers bloom in defiance of winter's frost, and the laughter of its people carries warmth across the kingdom.

The Summer Court ~ Radiant and bold, the Summer Court embodies celebration, passion, and fire. It is a land of song and revelry, where feasts stretch long into starlit nights and courage blazes as bright as the sun.
