Like a lot of people, you may not have heard of the McCormick School Museum, Wichita's oldest school building and home to the Wichita School District Archives. The purpose of McCormick School Museum is to preserve the history of the Wichita public schools. The museum is housed inside the McCormick Avenue School, designed by architects Proudfoot and Bird in 1890. The historic building is on the National Register of Historic Places and is the oldest school building still standing in the city of Wichita. This landmark has proudly served the community for more than a century. You can visit a 1890s classroom: read from McGuffey Readers and see what students used instead of a laptop. .

The museum maintains a collection of school artifacts and has an ever-growing archive of photographs and information documenting Wichita public school history. There is a print shop, a 1920s science lab, a library, and rooms full of school furniture. It's a part of Wichita's history that DeVaughn James is proud to support.
