Part One

“Author, there is a way to gain knowledge through the angelic beings. Sing their praise. Sing to everyone who passes you by. That all who know you will understand their own divinity. That acceptance of the love they feel for themselves, and their natural state of grace, signals their emergence as divine beings. Real love resounds through this prayer. Share this love with the spirits within others to feed their truest nature. Your ability to do this comes from feeling and being loved yourself,” said the Archangel Gabriel.

“The imperceptible elements that foster being loved collect and mount up in a shared tunnel of light. The truest nature of the universes is between the heavens, and reality is an elaborate system of these light corridors. You have made these tunnels before, in prayer. Understand, Author, that the spirits of others in Heaven reach out to those with imploring hearts to answer their prayers.

“There is a moment where all who live feel the power of their own spirituality, those who lived before and those who will come after. This is a moment where they befriend the great Lord Christ in the world. If you are a friend to many and you go to the Lord to ask for his grace, those established tunnels from your own network are available, as are the networks of others in subsequent degrees. The people who are truly connected in life are already loved and feel the light and laughter of jubilation from their network of prayer circles. However, it is for the secluded and stand-offish people who do not love themselves that this story is crafted.

“The people who have limiting beliefs are often drifting through life in a moral slumber. Asking for prayers to help network these people in calls for an answer with a unified creation story that includes the King, Jesus Christ, as part of our earthly lives. These circles welcome those who are healing from the fears of their past memories. Dwelling on those past events is how people limit themselves and give up on hope. The outcomes seem so inevitable to them that they shrink away and hide from the light of the prayer circles. And if the people who are already networked into the circles cannot help, sometimes the angels themselves bring wisdom to those who sleep to wake them.”

The Archangel Gabriel continued, “Those with the power of love, light, and laughter are more than willing to elevate the mood of such downcast spirits. But these people, however, need to challenge their own limiting beliefs and rejoin the conversation with the King, Lord, and Savior, Jesus Christ.

“Author, the ones who are willing to love feel that it’s easy to cheer the downcast. Happily, they take on the emotional toll to feel like they’ve helped in a situation where they feel compassion or empathy. However, the nature of this battle is deeply misunderstood. So, in this story, we will explain how you can help those with downcast spirits who have spiritual blockages, as the angelic forces do. Helping those in need or who live without hope can take an emotional toll. But we will explain how you can help without being weighed down by the emotional burden.”

Archangel Gabriel began, “If you were asleep morally, that challenging spot would be a difficult place to connect with spiritually. Instead of constructing a tunnel of love and light directly to that spot, it is far easier from the angelic perspective to bring outside helpers into the picture. This means that when talking with the downcast who have become emotionally numb, you may ask about their interactions with other people. Notice when they turn away from the conversation to try to hide their suffering. This reaction can be fiery or solemn. However, they will avoid the truth and turn down what is being offered to them. They should not be pressured to confront what they are afraid of.

“If they feel pressured, those emotions they were bottling up within themselves will rise to the surface and pour out for all to see. And the wall they’ve built to block spiritual connections is then reinforced, bringing a dark cloud over multiple outcomes. Instead, the help recruited from outside by angels to nourish the soul arrives in the past. The angels befriend the person where they are by nourishing a brighter outcome. Reinforcement of that light might only slightly change the outcome of their feelings from the past. However, the opposite reaction often reveals how intense their limiting beliefs are. If hope can be instilled at a very low level, then greater detail must go into creating that healing in their life.”

The Archangel then offered me a map of magnetic frequencies shifting from inward to outward, outward to inward, and back and forth. The pulses were wavelengths, and those overlapping circles moved inward or outward in a motion that looked like breathing life. “Author, this map lays out a personality program. The wavelengths are like thought patterns for some of these circles. They feel the emotions of the body and react to the central nervous system and heart. Those are other circles on the map. Now, if you see the mental wavelengths on this map, you will notice that their movement is slow. That is because the mind makes things real in the world, and it takes a lot of energy to change things through the mental sensemaking process.

The spiritual person uses knowledge from this memory to decide how to challenge a spiritual block or habitual pattern.

“When there is hope that the pattern can be challenged, the movement of the wavelengths is a bit smoother and a bit faster. This vibration can react with the rest of the system at large. And it perceives the input from the world through the senses with greater speed. The habitual patterns that block out the past occur as if in dormancy, so the reaction to the processing of information is slow. It can be called a feeling of denial, but it is really more like sleep because that implies a subconscious process.

“When those patterns interfere with other parts of the body, the eventuality is harm or illness. Fear or anger can manifest as awful damage in the body because the information in those patterns reacts, causing impairment to an otherwise healthy system. Not all physical impairment comes from spiritual blocks and habitual patterns, but some impairment is of that nature.”

Archangel Gabriel pointed out the mental impairment of a spiritual block on the map. He said, “Author, there is something here I would like to show you. The voice speaking against you, your inner critic, is currently focused on this area of your mind. This explains why you are not lovable. If you were asked about it, that inner voice damning you to being dishonest with the world would hold you in this pattern. The thoughts are connected with your body, and as you shy away from the topic, you repeat the criticism to yourself within the body to impede nourishment or information. A similar reaction occurs when a living organism does not receive enough light from its surroundings. In these moments, the being is held back from living within the system, and all processes of the cells are slowed, even regression.”

Archangel Gabriel stood by and watched me as he exclaimed, "There is hope though, Author! As we explore these mental patterns and help you align your spirit with your nervous system, heart, and mind, you will notice modest improvement in your emotions and actions."

I looked at the map one last time before it was put away. The living, pulsating body on the map was a reflection of my life in the universe. It was a place where breath interacted with the surroundings. And I inhaled that life-giving oxygen to keep my hope alive that I was indeed lovable.

Of course the connection with the Archangel Gabriel occurred through the tunnels of love, light, and laughter. In my heart, I felt the emotional vibration lift my system in jubilation. However, due to my ignorance, his angelic voice was still beyond the reach of my knowledge. The inner critic that led my cowardice was as powerful and incredibly devastating as I allowed it to be. An awareness was growing, though, as I realized that the angel must have used a tunnel from heaven, because he spoke to me through my heart. I was astounded, as I realized he did this through an act of love, and being unlovable became a feeling that was foreign to me. He gave me hope that I could understand what was blocking me. I also thought it might be possible to understand the angelic practices used to remedy the spiritual denial within downcast people.

Archangel Gabriel said, "If you can look past why you feel unlovable, then you will understand that loving other people is the change you must focus on in yourself."

He looked down from the heavens, showing his love, laughter, and light toward me, within my heart. I say within my heart and toward me from the heavens because he offers his grace and power as a source of unlimited spirit. The angelic being, existing in spiritual and physical form at once, is of a different nature than other sentient beings. The Archangel Gabriel knows and understands God. And in his power to offer to God the throne of Earth once more, he holds a piece of understanding of the serpent's fall. In that awareness, the light and love are found.

"Author, the love you show others, even mere acquaintances, is something I encourage. Holding this love for yourself will allow for personal growth and better alignment with your surroundings. Therefore, by maintaining love for others, even if it is intimidating to do so, you can deepen the awareness you have about loving yourself. This is how I plan to help God replace the serpent as a king on Earth. I plan on using every imaginable source of love and light to introduce the Holy Spirit into each heart so that it might enter and pass through without resistance. Everyone is tempted to make life about themselves, and this is the tendency you must address. Your understanding will then become a piece of the glorious tapestry that will introduce the King and Savior to people in your network once again. Let me explain this, Author."

I sensed the Archangel Gabriel, in angelic form, in my heart and in my awareness. He sat in the surroundings and waited for me to love him. But that love that we humans describe as something of a gravitational force that unites the spirit with the actions of others is nonsensical to the angels. The Archangel Gabriel was teaching me about the real glue that unites all people, places, and things together.

And in the form of an angelic being of light, he announced that the warmth of the spiritual light allows the darkness and coldness to be housed in a different mindset. That mindset that he understood, and that I knew but did not understand, was detrimental to me. That block that I had was not understanding the truest form of love. That love, in itself, was awareness that allowed people to bring each other to the heavens.

“The bond that harmonizes all living spirits as a unified whole embodies all that is good and wholesome. The other form of love that was mentioned earlier, although it acts as a gravitational pull to match and unite people, is not as bright or as warm as this heavenly love.” Archangel Gabriel announced that love was inspired, and that tunnelling to see the Father in Heaven to ask that He bestow His grace on another and raise their spirits was therefore an act of divinity.

“Author, you are not a savior. And yet you stay curious. Curious about all the spiritual ancestry that came before you. They were as devoted to your life pursuit as you are, some even more so than you. So, knowing that the spirits reach out to you from the heavens to help you understand their love is the next step toward lifting that spiritual blockage from your thoughts.

“You say that you are unlovable. You learn about the love that you offer others. But do you understand that, in your efforts to keep yourself safe, you are being overprotective? You are being timid with the love you share when you should bravely be putting it forth. Your love is often masked with a crude sense of honesty or laughter that makes other people nervous sometimes.

“The love you share when you are in heavenly conversations with the Father serves a much higher purpose. It is not self-serving, like your horrible attempts to share love through shaky and awkward means. This love would be purer. In a spiritual sense, it would be less emotional and more rational.

“If you mask the love you share in the world with crude, self-serving honesty, where you disclose only what you feel pressured to reveal, then you will never truly share yourself. Likewise, in a similar, mirror-like reflection, the surroundings will never share themselves with you. Your timidity creates a blockage of light as you accept dishonesty from your rational mind to overcompensate for your shaky emotions. Do you understand how the love you share needs to be a purer form to match what your heavenly God and Father provides to your conversations?

“Author, to receive love from others, you need much more than wishful thinking and superficial undertakings. By engaging in these acts, you are hiding from your light. Your rational mind is responsible for showcasing the love you feel through the heart’s intuition. Therefore, it is showcased through your words and logical analysis. Let me explain.”

The Archangel Gabriel then reached within the heavenly tunnel and retrieved a staff. The golden staff looked substantial and felt like it had weight to it. Or it could have been perceived as magnetic, as I felt drawn to the staff and loved it.

Archangel Gabriel continued, “This holy weight you try to estimate for the reader is only what you make of it. The pull of its attraction can be a repulsion as well, if you want it to be that. So, point your focus inward with the staff. Use it to center the pole in your heart that spins on the vagus nerve. That pole that is behind the spiritual intuition in your heart, and it centers itself as you pull from the knowledge of this heavenly staff. The staff makes your heart truer and purer, making it easier for you to understand the opposite, mirror-like surroundings.

“You need to follow this same process from time to time to center your heart’s intuitive prayers. This explains why the heart is not used as a scale for judgment. Though the karmic patterns of left and right, up and down, and outward and inward do offset the personality, the mind receives messages from the rebalanced heart through the limbic system. The central nervous system allows the mind to receive the intuitive advice from the heart. And the mind not only recognizes what it fears within itself, but also begins to see the love from others from a purer standpoint.

“This is getting complicated, so I’ll simplify the vision. The tunnel between us is of a spiritual nature. You embed what frightens you into those tunnels, resulting in a calming effect in your reality. As you listen to the heart, the nervous system is in control, not the fear in the limbic system. The center of your soul, the emotional psychic self, is within the balanced mind. And since you are using your intuitive prayers in the heart, the pole has shifted or flipped multiple times to make the imaginary real or the real imaginary.

“Author, what you have suggested earlier about the staff was correct. It helped you decide to redirect the focus of your love from other people to yourself. Now that you are able to love yourself, you can share why this love exists as a strange and wondrous phenomenon. That is, in a purer form. Since your love for your surroundings and the tunnels of positive prayers comes from that spiritual side of your heart, you might begin to notice signs. This attunement with the spiritual side of Heaven imbues your thoughts with emotional value.

“The intuition you experience by listening to the love in your surroundings is an emotional understanding of your logic. Your rationale will flip and rotate in the mind as you listen to the prayers conveying that love’s request. And in the network of tunnels, you may recall memories that you attribute to your spiritual family and the heavens. It could be a physical experience that confirms the rationale of your mind, listening to the spirit. This may not sound probable or logical, but with practice, the heavens will provide emotional validation to experiences from other spiritual sources.”

The Archangel Gabriel sighed, “Author, the signs that you might understand through the heart and therefore, the mind, are like puzzles. The people in your surroundings share their thoughts with you in the magnetic waves of their hearts, among other organs. However, the heart produces the largest magnetic wave encoded with information. If you sense the heart and identify what your emotions are sensing with a rational mind, then you will develop the gift of psychic maturity.

“The heavens show you their thoughts in the universe as well. Not as the typical thoughts of sentient beings, but of the heavenly love we described earlier. The tunnel to grace is the love the Lord Christ shares. And in that tunnel that maximizes your understanding of the surrounding love, you begin to elevate your vibration.

“Author, the next thing you need to know about curing a spiritual block is not of angelic wisdom. Removing the block requires human participation. It is through your efforts in life that you can demonstrate an understanding of the Lord’s love. This world that made you feel terrified was, to a large extent, made up. Your mind created the reality you perceived of the surrounding world. And in that exchange or flip, where you went from sensing the world with the mind to the heart, you grew stronger and braver.

“Author, there are very few people who ‘see’ this deeply into their own flawed selves. And, from a heavenly standpoint, the wisdom you share about this blockage of yours is outstandingly accurate. However, this story is meant to guide the readers as well. After all, the choices they make about their own perceptions of spiritual love are just as consequential as yours. So let us focus on the reader now.

“Reader, the spiritual love from the heavens exists all around you, in tunnels of light, love, and laughter. This jubilation from the Holy Spirit surrounds your heart as you share your expectations or your feelings. But reader, when you are provided with knowledge or serendipitous moments, you are presented with choices.

“The love we feel, in a spiritual sense, allows our existence to have purpose. Let me explain. For change to occur, there needs to be a slight level of hope that the outcome will be different. And the choice we are discussing here is the reaction to new information concerning a moral resistance or blockage. Our awareness of this information generally starts somewhere deep down in the subconscious mind.

“Oh reader, when you perceive that the spiritual heavens are using signs to guide you, would you not let yourself be vulnerable and act in accordance with their directions? Those moments bring choices, and acting based on guidance from God and your spiritual family provides meaning to the outcome. Therefore, the moments when God’s invisible hands intervene are part of a co-creation story for you and your network of tunnels. The people you pray with, if they themselves are guided by prayer, may also intervene and help guide you.

“Now, reader, we can begin discussing the actions you can take to live a purposeful life. We react to the world with emotions based on intuitive reasoning. Then we run everything through the filter of our cold and calculating thoughts. But by changing our actions, based on our trust in the subconscious and heavenly heartfelt intuition, newer perspectives are revealed. A growth mindset, as it is called, emerges. And in learning to love, one gains mastery of new thought processes. This superconscious, grounded in the love embedded in all things manifesting through prayer circles, is really just an awareness.

“Reader, there will be a moment when you will gain confidence in who you are and the beliefs that you share with the world. This trust in the heavens is purer than thought reflective of your own spirituality. In it, you gain an understanding of how you may grow. The choices you make toward maintaining that trust then are liberating, as you can cherish the path taken toward something real or solemn for yourself. That jubilation felt in a path taken is good and wholesome, as it results from the transformation from insecurity to confidence. And the mastery over intuitive prayers driving the actions in support of purpose is excellence. Sharing the path from where one came from to the present offers hope to all in your prayer circles.

“Author,” said the Archangel Gabriel, speaking directly to me once again, “now that we have discussed with the readers how their own moral compass in the heart guides their minds and actions, we will explain how that compass directs us beyond that.

“Think about the map and staff that you were shown. I will use your unlovable spirit as a rock for this story’s example. When you act according to your heart, you gain an awareness of the love surrounding you through prayer circles, which involves the superconscious.

“Author, a feeling of jubilation is woven deeply into those tunnels of love and light. That self-love that comes from the acceptance of the path you took from where you came from to where you are in the present creates harmony.

“You have a peaceful nature inside yourself, Author. Therefore, the love you provide produces a wave that’s different than what’s inside yourself. This results in a calming presence that people find insightful. This love also, if given with care, can be an iteration of one’s own words. Putting emotions into words then produces a humorous tone as well. Let me explain.

“When someone shows love for themselves through their own manifested reality, humor emerges in their jubilation. That feeling of goodness overcomes man’s resistance and offers a light in the spiritual darkness of the surroundings. And in humor, we find merriment.

“The map and staff are then the moral compass guiding this jubilation. Author, when all things fail and there is nothing to explore within yourself, or you are exhausted in your own efforts toward growth, try to find the humor and love in the resistance of others. This humor should not be used to highlight someone’s insecurities and fault them for their awkwardness. It should be used to show love, and to mirror back the way they might be losing their heavenly gifts if they continue to give in to the temptations of evil. Let the heavens explain.

“Only with a stronger mindset can one effectively mirror the dangers of following temptation. This forethought is only gleaned through reflection on and caring for another’s outcomes with good intentions and compassion. Author, and reader, the merriment in helping others achieve different outcomes is the truest nature of divine prophecy. From here in the heavens, we guide you all through the heart. And through that tunnel, which you strengthen by acting on the thoughts we encourage, you find good advice. Putting the advice to use then directs your experiences in life. We see where we can help, but our advice needs reflection, not direction. Typically, the person who allows a blockage to remain and prevent spiritual awareness is in denial or moral slumber. But proceed with care, as they cannot be forced out of slumber, and coaxing them out puts them in a defensive position.

“Author, and reader, the path to the truest agreement between you and others in spiritual love and wisdom is through storytelling. And finding a meaningful story with humor is wise, because humor relies on the power of inclusion to make the point. And that point of agreement where we find ourselves sharing on a topic of life lessons is moral. Our belief systems have changed over time as we learned how to help our friends and family in prayer circles by mirroring actions, and perhaps by collectively reflecting on a topic inspired through the heavens.

“Let the heavens magnetize your tongue and help everyone understand the humor that unfolds. Trust in God and the heavenly angels is paramount for guiding your friends or family through a shared superconscious outcome. That is, say prayers in conclusion to the stories told, thanking God for how events in life unfold. And share that communication from the heavens through adversity and strength.

“No one except the prophets, or the Savior, in his perfection, is able to dwell in the heavens and still remain fully devoted. And yet, putting forth the effort to find the right words, the right emotions, and the right stories to bridge the earth to the heavens with love is a worthwhile pursuit. However, it is only perfect for very few men. Not many understand the spiritual principles of Heaven well enough to be acknowledged as prophetic. Certainly, this level of maturity is not something that one can achieve within a short timeframe.

“Author, it may take years to develop a basic understanding of these principles. Maturity is, in a sense, understanding how to overcome life’s obstacles. And through the stories you tell, you share your own understanding with others, as a legacy. This legacy, which involves your prayer circle, perpetuates your prayers with the help and wisdom of others. Over time, we share ourselves in the stories in hopes that we achieve lasting influence or immortality. This standard we hold ourselves to can resonate between people, establishing a shared culture that helps people see and interpret their own lives through a unique and meaningful lens. Each person who feels your loving embrace, sees awareness as valuable, and hears and abides by the stories told is contributing to the establishment of cultural influence.

“Reader, the legacy you share may only be hampered by resistance. The light takes time to penetrate spiritual blocks. It is not up to you to resolve another person’s spirituality or lack thereof. All we can do is reflect, pray, and share guidance from our own living experiences.

“Author, and reader, the spiritual blocks come and go when we are faced with challenging times. Emotions that are blocked and frozen in our thoughts are etched into our memories. Self-sabotage and application of new wisdom both play a part in human evolution. But growth occurs when we understand our legacy and overcome our challenges.”

The Archangel Gabriel looked inquisitively at me. He said, “Author, your heart is pulsating, but the inward and outward movement appears to have a magnetic pull. When you started this conversation, you were passively allowing the wave to flow outward from your chest, and that has changed. You have since drawn love inward from the surroundings and modified your mindset to alter your limiting beliefs. In particular, you corrected the limiting belief that you are unlovable.

“The pole that flips back and forth, inward and outward, in the vagus nerve of the heart is active. This imaginary pole, which pulsates and alters your mindset by sending information from the heart to the brain, is now balanced. That is because you are now able to love yourself.

“Author, it is ambitious to tell the stories you hear in the present moment. You listen to the stories, which include moral guidance, and then you write them down. But now, take a moment to just breathe. Let the present moment be all you hear. Let your mind relax. Let the heart beat rhythmically. And for a moment, you may be able to hear Jesus, the Lord and Savior, through your heart.”

I followed the Archangel’s instruction and rested for a moment. The moment itself was listening intuitively in the spirit, heart, and mind. Any action taken, any movement, was an impulse of stored energy.

“Author, the spiritual block that was causing the resistance of love from the surroundings and the heavens has been released. And by releasing the stagnant thought patterns, something of a void has returned to usefulness, replenished with a new understanding of how to purposely celebrate the heavens with good intent.

“If you were to tell the readers how to overcome resistance and use that newfound ability to love, how would that go?”

And in that moment, when the potential energy that was to be used creatively by heart and mind became activated, I heard a distant voice in my consciousness. One that corresponded with the pulses of my heart. And in my mind, I continued to listen and form an awareness of such love. That emotional congruence was meant to signify that the voice was from Heaven.

God was in my thoughts then, with an aura of magnificent power. The voice was given breath, and I relished in that feeling of grace from the heavens. I wish words could better inform readers how that light from the spirit and heart came through to my mind. As I exhaled, the magnetic pulse flipped and flowed out from my chest. I chose to remain still in that moment, as I focused on helping others experience the heavenly light and love that I felt in the presence of the heavens.

In my network of prayer, I expected to gradually strengthen those connecting tunnels by breathing in the love from my surroundings. And as this became my focus, I heard God in my intuitive thoughts.

“We received a heavenly wish from you, Author. You have asked to include Jesus in your prayer circle to further expand his throne in a kingdom of worship. This will only occur through love of the community that can witness his grace. He will lift up the hearts of those in need of his love. By that, he will resurrect their bones in the world and in Heaven. Author, do you not understand this yet?

“You breathe love in and breathe his love out. That kingdom of his love is then strengthened in a superconscious awareness. The language you understand now will change as your network with humanity increases. And your understanding of the points made will change, and you will become less resistant to his love.

“As we work to understand this shared love, the actions we take and topics we discuss become absorbed into our culture.

Culture, therefore, is like the air that is breathed. It is how meaning penetrates our mindsets, perspectives, and language.

“Author, by allowing the love of Jesus to reset your heart, over time, it will determine the heart’s wave patterns. You will give control of your heart to the King and Savior. And by learning that purer form of love of your surroundings and yourself, you will ultimately learn the secret to life.

“For now, I will tell you that the secret of living for your God with every beat of your heart is temptation. By this, I mean that those who have such passion and drive to devote themselves fully to His grace may also have a willingness to take credit for such awareness. However, if you sense that Jesus, the Holy Ghost, and I are present within that stream of consciousness, show us your servitude. Show us your mastery over your own emotions and logic, to enable us, the heavens, to spread the light of Christ. Through this endeavor, you may find confidence in serving a purpose of hope.

“Put your awareness and abilities to use, Author. Show that you understand the heart, beating with waves and embedded with information, by living out our passion for others. Become a servant to others who need to hear the prayers ring truer. Show them that they are safe when they take risks to share their stories with us in Heaven. Let your body be a tool that carries that information into the surroundings so that others might accept that understanding of the Lord.

“Understand, oh reader, that the Lord is bringing the hearts of the masses back toward the spirit of Christ in Heaven. This is a reversal of the love of the masses for themselves, back inward, to reset humanity. It takes Jesus to bring the light back toward the heavens.

“And once all things breathe together as one unified creation story, the light and love will then exhibit Jesus’ story for Heaven on Earth. His kingdom will be shared among all who accept his love and share it with others, beating in a rhythmic pattern that follows his guidance. So serve Jesus, and serve others, and watch the light grow immeasurably within all. The spiritual blockages will then be exorcized from the earth.

“Author, now that we have discussed the purity of love felt moving inward and outward to the surroundings, I offer one last sentiment. This idea is that all things that grow in the love of the Lord will inevitably become transfixed on their own faults. But this reemergence of consciousness will be forgiven in an act of reparation, that each tear restitched back into the tapestry will strengthen the tunnels of light, love, and laughter. The resonating principles of rationale and love are then shared by this spiritual rebaptism. And the skills that humanity has discovered and shared with Jesus will fully be awakened in the heavens and on Earth.

“Peace to all who understand and experience this effort, as it is an effort to allow the heart to meld with the heavens. When servitude is reset and shared by prayer and stories, it becomes a magnetism of the spirit, heart, and mind.”

Part Two

A ghost who was full of light said to me, “In a world where you are surrounded by friends, strangers, or loved ones, there are opportunities. These are opportunities for you to create different perceptions for those who are connected to you. But the image that we share with you reveals the real nature of your spirit. Your spirit is good and holy. It sees all aspects of your nature. It wishes to speak to you with a wholesome outlook toward the people in the world. It also wants you to maintain confidence when you might feel angry or frustrated by the events in your surroundings.

“Therefore Author, let us begin with your attitude. The attitude that you present to the world, by which you see yourself and in the perceptions others provide, is slanted. This slanted view is not a true understanding held by you or the other people. The slant is a shortcut that effectively shows how you begin to think through a situation.

“Oh reader, this will make sense to you as well. The Author is trying to accept all possibilities before him through his spirit. The option he should seek, though, is an awareness of expanded consciousness through the heavens. This does not involve the tunnels we share with other people in love and light, however. This expansion of awareness comes from an effort to understand a perspective of your spirit while monitoring your conclusions.”

The ghost became larger, but I don't know whether this was because it had come closer to me or its resonating light had been amplified. This spirit had manifested in my mind's eye. The mind's eye is in the center of the brain, which I assume receives visions of the spirit realm. Sometimes it is due to clairvoyance that I have these spiritual conversations.

The ghost said, "It is from the feeling from my light source that you get these images of me. I will share more on what your spirit is like now. It is a source in which creativity and creation are one. That point where you derive from, that point is actually moving when you foresee opportunities to communicate. This might be strange to understand here, but the reaction to those insights is heavenly, because creation is all around you now. Let me explain this further. The creation of everything is in opposition to your spirit, but it is love. Your true spirit is whole in Heaven, in the presence of the eternal spiritual light. However, a spot was created in the universes where your spirit inhabits the physical reality. This act of creation mirrors your spirit, but it is in opposition to the heavenly state. In reality, the heavens intervene through your heart, but that spiritual light is felt only psychically, through your emotional intelligence.

"Do you understand yet that your spirit is whole, individual, and forgotten by the heavens as you live in the physical world? And yet, here we move and eat, drink and play, and correct ourselves to better understand our spiritual home."

The ghost paused. My mood felt elevated, which made me think that I was progressing toward a heightened state of awareness in this communication.

"Author, and reader, you must understand this. The spiritual heavens are not dormant. They are active in the world. This transfer of love from the heart to the surroundings, and from surroundings to the world, is holy. However, inner collapse of the self tends to occur in these moments. And servitude feels burdensome in these moments.

“We have discussed how the universes are separate from the heavens. Your connection to the heavens is spiritual. Yet, we have not touched on the toil of our work and its amplification of our spiritual lives.

“Author, if we do regain understanding of our spirits after that collapse between the heavens and the surroundings, it would mean that our understanding of other people in the physical world is redundant, as it simply echoes our spiritual knowledge of what they are like in Heaven.

“This point is about becoming spiritually aware of the slanted, limited knowledge we might hold in our minds, and how the spiritual knowledge in Heaven awakens the heart. Therefore, before you let the frustration, fear, or anger develop, remember the spirit. And take a moment to pause and search for the feelings in the heart from your spiritual family. There may be frustration, fear, or anger there, for reasons that are known to the spirit. Yet, it is often the case that the mind hijacks the body and rushes to interpret the situation immediately, through a narrow lens, trying to understand the people, beasts, and birds in the situation.

“Author, I say this directly to you. The biases that are uncovered in these slanted views are not to bring any shame at all. You cannot honestly examine or understand the biased perceptions if you feel too embarrassed to admit that you took mental shortcuts or oversimplified the situation. The construct, or your perceptions of reality, needs to be guided by what the heart decides is correct for the moment.

“Author, the spirit inside you wants to talk.”

The ghost then introduced my spirit to me in my heart. I was in the same psychic mindset of awareness in the conversation, and my spiritual form appeared before me. The spirit told me how inspiring it was to be welcomed into the heart, where it could be heard, and through which a conversation could be had and transcribed.

My spirit said, “Author, the discussion about the planes of time and space or the degrees of networked tunnels might frustrate the readers. I look into your universe from the spiritual realm, but I see your universe as reality. Your position in the world is virtual, and you experience this plane as reality.

“However, in the universes, there are other spirits from Heaven projecting their own construct of their reality that is different from your reality. But your nature has not changed drastically from the creation of time to now. The spiritual light that enables tunneling into the universe is carried on wavelengths. And our conscious mind receives and interprets that information before translating it into our reality.

“The reason I bring this up is that your perception of yourself is unique. And understanding that all spirits have a perception of themselves colored by reality. The tunnels unite beings on a deeper level of the heart. However, the connection does not change the spiritual light or the experience of the physical reality.

“Let me explain the perceptions of your universe and your interactions with other people from a heavenly standpoint. The heavens wish to acknowledge that you are limited in your sense-making capabilities. You understand the senses and therefore make informed guesses about what occurs based on what you see, hear, feel, smell, and taste. However, this limited information that you perceive does not present you with the whole truth. And when you apply your sensemaking processes so you can understand what is actually occurring, it creates biases or slanted perspectives.

“It is therefore important for you to understand that the tunnels in the universes connect the hearts as a collapsing entity back to creation. And in that reversal of separation, the people, beasts, and birds of the universes achieve greater awareness and understanding.

“Author, because your perception is limited, I would like to shed more light on your understanding of others. And in this inspired dialogue, I will show you where you most often become frustrated, fearful, and angry with the surrounding world. Through this learning experience, you will be offered holy grace, which can change and soften your perceptions of love.”

The ghost that introduced me to my spirit then said, “Author, there is a way to understand your perspective as well as your bias. For example, you may examine your relationship with another person by engaging in intuitive prayer to figure out the strength of your connection. And understanding that special connection or serendipitous event through signs in your surroundings may influence decisions made.

“Understand then that the hand of God is within those moments, directing your story. Being able to recognize the surrounding signs and instinctively understand where the patterns in life might take you takes faith. This faith and intuitive prayer is therefore good for both you and the heavens.

“Author, your attention has been turned inward to the heart to understand the prayerful, intuitive process already. However, you were not shown how the heart collapses inward, causing decisions to be made to resolve your slanted perspectives.

“We have shown how your God’s invisible hand is involved in the telling of your story and the correction of the slanted perspectives of limited beliefs. We institute storytelling as a way to nurture from the heavens, through the heart, and then the mind, as a surreal but natural process. So you see, the world collapsing into itself and restoring your place in Heaven as part of one spiritual whole is good. And sound will still exist at that point.”

The ghost continued, “How does sound radiate if it is not able to carry its tune? The heavens consist entirely of information. The realm is of light itself. The spiritual light, then, is a magnificent vision appearing to God Himself. The awakened conscious spirits who understand the heavens are themselves divine beings. Those who radiate a wave then must understand light, love, and laughter, as they are harmonious with the heavenly realm. Therefore, the light itself is both a wave and a whole as one with God in Heaven. And the vibration that radiates from everything creates a harmonizing quality between every spirit there. That means that nothing in that realm is nonsensical. The poles never truly flipped between the heavens and Hell.

“Author, there is a spirit awakened here that shares your limited beliefs, including your sense of being unloved. That spirit has responded in life to you, as damned.

“You have the ability to expand your heart to allow for an awareness of the truth of Heaven. You have already unraveled the questionable bias you held, that you were unlovable, but your rationale was one-sided. Let that spirit in the heavens speak of conversations from your own memories.”

The spirit of my earthly father stepped forward in my heart and mind’s eye. “I used to be harder on you than your brother for a reason. You had misguided intentions. You seemed to drift off when asked to complete your chores. You slept often and carried yourself with arrogance. I felt you were veering off course, and I tried to straighten that path through the attitude I displayed.”

In my memories, I felt anger and jealousy in those moments when my father asked me to take on the responsibilities he enforced. And I pushed back, just as a child inside would. I felt unloved. This feeling built up over the years and caused resentment.

My father spoke once more, "I often talked to you like I did because I gave up on your responses even before you did. You actually fulfilled my prophecy of being lackluster, in part, due to my actions. And your self-conception of unlovableness grew from the silence between us."

I let that feeling go in my mind. I let go of the erroneous thought that I was unlovable because I did not live up to my earthly father's corrections. And in some ways, I let my heart forgive myself by letting go of a bias toward my father. His intention was right. It was out of misunderstanding that we became angry and frustrated with each other. And I became alert to how the spirit can influence the universes.

If I had allowed my frustrations to guide me, I would have resisted the prayers from Heaven by my earthly father. And by listening to the spirit with an open heart, I was able to understand the whole conversation, and that sound of love inspired me to accept that love from the heavens.

The ghost said, "You will find a similar outcome for every interaction that you pursue toward separation. The noble quest in life is not to seek confirmation of your own opinions and define those through a set of limiting beliefs. The quest of nobility requires you to allow love to breathe in and out of the heart until the heavens reach you and those in relationships with you.

"Author, the light is like sound in a way, such that all merri-ment and jubilation from Heaven is one. If you realize this and allow yourself to see how the universes collapse into the heavens, the spiritual family and the spirits of your friends will repair and mend your heart, bringing it back to awareness. The voice within your consciousness, the spirit, is good and whole, speaking with the intent of sharing love through that same atonement.

“Author, your visions of the holy ghost, the spirit, and your spiritual family members are interpretations of the knowledge you have related to making this Heaven on Earth a reality. And in some ways, the creation of that reality has already begun with the acknowledgment of the Savior as the Son of Man and the heavens. Jesus is and always will be the bridge back to a heavenly existence.”

Jesus then spoke, “Let all who witness and understand these concepts of Heaven through the heart be made wiser. This evolution is of spiritual undertaking. And in that light of the spirit, you understand me, your Lord.

“In the universes, there is space and time. This existence you live out is one of limited viewpoint. And, burdened by that bias, the reality of tunnels formed through the heart with the surrounding people, beasts, and birds takes the form of a network. However, after the radiance of the light that empowers all through the heart begins to show, the heart maintains the euphoria of serving the heavens. In this, we share the knowledge that is an understanding of the greatness of the Holy Spirit. Joy and laughter are revealed as they radiate on waves within the universes. That joy is felt as an emotion, but it is actually sound. Let me explain.”

Jesus and my earthly father agreed that joy radiates through the heavens because of an understanding that all within the heavens is infinite. Jesus said, “The realm, and all within it, does not shrink or expand, but it exists. And because the spirits know this, they emulate the wave themselves, letting the joy flow through themselves, moving rhythmically as one.

“When that level of awareness has a physical effect on the heart, the tears and rips from the memories of limiting beliefs can be healed, as in the case of your own unlovable conundrum. The riddle then relates to gaining such awareness of the heavens to reconsider the memories and mend the self. And, as you have witnessed, the answers to what is occurring within the oppositional surrounding universes lie within the spirit.

“Are you ready for this, Author? The universes will understand your position through emotional congruence. That means that the emotions that send sound out from the heart into the surroundings through magnetic waves also help restore other people’s hearts. For through that love, those who are broken and who suffer become aware of the miracles of life from my presence. Let me explain.”

Jesus spoke very quietly, “The love you share with the world, the humanization of life for my sake, is a holy practice for an angelic undertaking. You witnessed your spirit evolve in light with heightened awareness. And with that awareness comes a spiritual knowledge that will allow you to grow and to help others in the name of God. That means that, in understanding a purer love through service to the heavens, you have a purer and deeper understanding of the universes. The temptation that provokes you is the desire to take credit for our conversations. Yet you will let go of this ridiculous blockage with time and awareness. And all who are influenced by your heartfelt message will continue to share the light, and they will include me in their prayerful conversation. Therefore, through an angelic measure, you will understand the needs of others and how to influence them. That angelic measure is sound.

“The joy perpetuated through your awareness is meant to help you reunite those on Earth. That joy will travel in sound, carried along with spiritual light into the hearts of others, as you influence the world with magnetic truths that shape reality.

“These miracles occur when love is felt from others and the sins from memories are forgiven. The miracles of the heavens can be further elucidated by the angels.”

Jesus stepped away from the conversation in the heart, and the ghost appeared once more. This ghost of holy order shone with a brilliant light. They said, “The holy order of the angels is nonsensical to us. That the understanding of each is unique, yet shared in Heaven, is quite a puzzle to resolve. Furthermore, we also question the diminished light that contributed to the fall of Adam and Eve into the universes. It has long been a mystery why the Tree of Knowledge was planted there, offering forbidden fruit to deceive anyone who could claim themselves superior to other spirits.

“However, there is a new insight into the Tree of Knowledge that is causing ripples in the heavens. And by understanding that joy in harmony, it becomes clear how those who turn away from serving their Lord are drawn into the universes, falling from grace.”

The ghost said, “Author, that tree that is rooted into the universes is a reflection of the damned, revealing the conversations between all people, beasts, and birds who are unaware that they create their own limiting beliefs and patterns by perpetuating injustice. Their memories are frozen into their projection from the heavens due to their moral slumber.”

The ghost looked upon the waters under the filament of Heaven and said, "Author, the collapse of the universes occurs through loving understanding and awareness, and it is good. This holiest pursuit allows you to understand a bit of angelic knowledge. And by serving God, in the spiritual understanding of shared light, you create miracles through Jesus. Those miracles might be recognized as signs and serendipitous moments. But they impact more than your awareness."

The ghost that came from the heavens and shone with amplified light was a source of goodness and purity. That ghost, who had pivotal importance to this story, was foundational to the moral code given as well. There is great importance in the moral of the story, that having compassion within oneself is necessary for loving oneself as a whole. And the tapestry of tunnels of love between all beings, including the angelic, is important.

The ghost said, "Author, where there are angels in the world, there is a direct line for answers from the heavens to the earth. And directly from within the heart comes profound wisdom that affects the co-creation stories of the living beings who interact within the earthly reality. These people, beasts, and birds perceive the stories within themselves, therefore they have a slanted understanding of life, and they need to experience rediscovery of the spiritual light. Let me discuss an idea with you.

"These people, beasts, and birds are following a moral compass. The attraction with all things around them in their surroundings is communication. And you add to that conversation by imprinting your story into the surroundings in ways that are perceptible through their subconscious.

"There are many who will recognize those ideas as heavenly. However, some will have a quest for conflict so rooted in denial or burden that they will fight the stories you share from the heavens.

“Author, there is a realm of angels that is created in the heavens and waiting to be established on earth. But the possibility of fighting the evil of the serpent is very real. And those angelic beings who understand God in Heaven also understand what will be needed to defeat the serpent.

“Author, you are beginning to realize that you need to exalt the heavens and put your spiritual light to use in this lifetime. As God is in control of your heart, the wisdom and grace that befalls you, through your actions and moral compass, is heavenly. This wisdom, the knowledge of what must be done for more angels to reenter and establish a foothold for the kingdom of Heaven on Earth, is pure love.”

The holy ghost that had introduced my spirit then reentered the conversation. “Author, your spiritual light is appreciated. It was accepted and now works within the tunnels connecting the people, beasts, and birds in the surroundings. However, this angelic understanding of the spirit is part of your story as well. The roots of the Tree of Knowledge are understood well enough that you do not need to eat from that tree to nourish an identity of humanity. That is, the angelic self that your spirit understands can be of a heavenly knowledge. The root of your knowledge is from the spiritual light in the Garden of Paradise and not necessarily of the Tree of Knowledge.”

And God, through my spirit, said, “Let my words pass through your humanity. Let my wisdom be constructed through the energy that your heart puts out in magnetic waves. Let that truth be served in a chaotic world. And then, let us, in the heavens, establish a place within the world where mankind's kingdom can be formed.

"The fountainhead of spiritual awakening in angelic stories is the Truths testified to by the holiest being, the Savior and Lord, Jesus Christ. Let all who understand this story of the return of the Savior know that there is a progression of angelic hymns that will sound before his return. And those angelic beings, triumphant in fighting the evil within the surroundings, will exalt the Christ.

"Author, there are many who will fight to tell the stories of Christ's intervention in their lives as they influence the wicked with their praise of the holy. And in this swell of spiritual stories told will be an awakening toward the heavens in each heart. However, a battle of sin and miracles will reemerge. The stories of the angels are proof of a living, breathing, holy existence of spirituality. But miracles need to be discovered and explained by those who understand the intervention of the Lord Christ. They realize that wisdom and storytelling need a substantive outlook. Those who are awakening from being wicked wish to see, feel, and taste, hear holy wisdom through the miracles of the Lord.

My spirit then said, "Oh reader, there are those in the torment of damnation who are waiting to be cleansed. Their limiting beliefs and spiritual blocks keep them at a lower vibration, which only serves to prolong their torment. They hide in the face of God and then reawaken to the life of sin for the depth of their humanness.

"And likewise, those who are good and holy are the purer love that is of the spiritual world. And in that mastery of sharing the love sent from God, their heavenly paradise is regained. Also, in the triumph over the devil's temptations, angelic wisdom allows miracles to intercede in the lives of those who toil."

From within my heart, my spirit said, "The angelic wisdom gained in these stories is valuable, as it will help the masses explore their own spirituality and bring about the time when the Lord is present on this earth. And in that time, as we begin to regain the kingdom of Heaven on Earth, the overflowing love that is good and whole with the heavens will abide in the hearts of these light scholars.

"There is no one in the world who can hold both God and the serpent in their heart. For when God's light shines through, the tangled contradictions of sin begin to unravel, unfolding into unity with the heavens. Then, through the heart, we collapse into oneness with the Father and God, all the same. For this, God will now discuss what He wants in the world."

The Heavenly Father to all His children on Earth said, "Give this some deliberate thought, Oh readers. Reflect over it carefully, and come to your understanding through your own journey back to me and the heavens.

"My children experience the merriment of the tunnels of love, light, and laughter as they continue to develop good practices." God continued, "The book containing the records of the universes will hold the names of those who master their shadows and the serpent itself. The people who search out my heavenly abode in passionate pursuit will become one in atonement with the heavens. In this world, those stories are shared. And in the records where all those who came before appear in a single narrative, that is where my holy son is found. He is a bridge to Heaven. But as he comes back as Lord to witness the defeat of the sins of humanity, he will also embrace those stories to be told. Those are the records of what has been, and what will be the challenges of the tormented and the uplifted.

“These books that are in my left and right hands will be explored, as all who master the servitude of love for mankind are saved. Author, this is important. The books that will record the humans are rational, and searching will not need to be perfect. Their love in the spiritual light of paradise will afford them my grace.

“Their spirits will understand the connections from Heaven to the universes. And those in the records of humankind whose voice speaks in their consciousness when the spiritual light reaches into their heart, they will be given forgiveness.”

God continued, “Oh readers, that you and the angels will become one in the earth with the Lord Jesus is grand. It is a creation story of mine fulfilled.

“Author, you will allow the waves of mankind’s love to reach me. Therefore, speaking with you is a gift of humanity. The subconscious signs that connect all those in prayer circles will allow the spiritual light to breathe in and out of the universes with me in Heaven.

“Oh readers, the serpent will be defeated soon. The evil that tempts all in heart and mind will be cleansed. And befriending the concepts within the book of grace in my right hand will soon be understood. That is, the Lord who comes back will, in time, guide the masses on the straight path from which the books will be read. Thus, those given grace on the earth will understand their stories of redemption through the holy ghost. This reckoning or awakening to a holy purpose for serving the Lord and heavens, this will be their conscious reality.

“Those being read to from the book of grace and forgiveness, by their understanding of the spiritual light in paradise, will be awakened from their slumber.

“And in these moments of grace and forgiveness, to allow miracles to take place through the Lord’s love, the angelic wisdom will mount. The trumpets of angels will be felt in the chest, and they will shake the bodies of those who hear the music of spiritual mastery.

“Author, the sound of the trumpets is of jubilation. And that day of reckoning is upon you. Keep moving forward in that angelic wisdom as you endeavor to defeat the devil and regain mankind’s throne for the Lord. The day of reckoning is one that will turn the damned into history. That book of damnation in my left hand will then be sealed.”

God said, “Author, these are the last moments of the records of that book of damnation. The stories of those who had refused their opportunity to please me in Heaven will be severed. And I will reap from the garden of paradise to nourish those who stayed alongside me. Those stories will be shared as light, love, and laughter in the garden once more. This spiritual knowledge given to the angels will be actualized, first, through the angels, and then, through the witnesses who testify.”
