On a thin escarpment, the last relict of cloud forest in the municipality of El Rosal, in the Andean Region of Colombia, one of the most sensitive forms of life still survives: birds. This compilation is progressive and has been carried out for the owners of this land since 2007. A research conducted by Nicolás Rozo in 2022 helped greatly to identify other bird species. The cloud forest has allowed us to see its wonders embraced by old trees with moist and fragrant bark, sheltered by the dense mist that comes from the Magdalena Valley.

The nature preserve La Ilusión is located between 2650 and 2940 meters above sea level and is the first reported Other Effective Area-based Conservation Measure (OECM) by Colombia to the WCMC DataBase. According to IUCN “(OECMs) are areas that are achieving the long term and effective in-situ conservation of biodiversity outside of protected areas. In 2018, Parties to the CBD agreed guiding principles, common characteristics and criteria for the identification of OECMs (CBD Decision 14/8). An ‘other effective area-based conservation measure’ is defined by the CBD as: A geographically defined area other than a Protected Area, which is governed and managed in ways that achieve positive and sustained long-term outcomes for the in-situ conservation of biodiversity, with associated ecosystem functions and services and where applicable, cultural, spiritual, socio-economic, and other locally relevant values (CBD, 2018). Governments, relevant organizations, Indigenous peoples and local communities are invited to apply the voluntary guidance on OECMs to identify, recognise and support OECMs, and report data on OECMs to the World Database on OECMs.” For more information about OECM La Ilusión please visit <http://www.fundacionelbosqueylaniebla.org>
