

TELLING SONNY

by Elizabeth Gauffreau

HEARTBREAKING PORTRAYAL OF INNOCENCE LOST & LOVE OF FAMILY

Telling Sonny is a coming-of-age novel set in the 1920s, when much of vaudeville had devolved into the Small Time. Not so, for Faby Gautier, a naïve girl from the small village of Enosburg Falls, Vermont. For Faby, the annual vaudeville show that comes to the village is worthy of the Great White Way itself.

When she succumbs to the charms of Slim White, America's self-proclaimed Favorite Hooper, Faby sets a course for her life she neither expected nor wanted.

READER PRAISE

"I missed Faby when the story ended as if I were saying goodbye to a new friend. I look forward to Elizabeth Gauffreau's next book."

"A fascinating and clearly well-researched read, replete with beautiful prose and keen observation, I can't recommend this novel highly enough."
