- 679 Ancient Roman Imperial Lot of 14 AR/ Billon Antoniniani, circa 214 to 285 AD. This lot runs from the introduction of the Antoninianus by Caracalla in 214 to roughly 285 AD. Originally, this coin type was tariffed at two Denarii and, because of the higher Silver content of about 65%, it was touted as a restoration of the coinage. But because the actual Silver weight was lower than two Denarii of lower purity, it was seen as another reduction in the standards and called "deceitful silver." Production of Antoniniani was stopped during the reign of Elagabalus (218-222 AD) and did not resume until 238. It became the standard, replacing the Denarius, by the reign of Philip (244-249 AD). The purity and size of this coin quickly declined. The coins in this lot generally have a silver appearance except for the last few. Caracalla, Gordian III(4), Philip, Trajan Decius, Herennia Etruscilla(2), Valerian(2, one of which is Ex: Pegasi with tag), Diva Mariniana, Salonina(Ex: Pegasi with tag) and Magnia Urbica.
