

LOST LETTERS

creative challenge #9

Sanctuary Sketches

IT'S NOT YOUR BIRTHDAY BUT...

As part of our Lost Letters project with Surrey History Centre, It's Not Your Birthday But... are inviting you to sketch your place of extended rest, your sanctuary.

Reflect positively on a space where you feel safe and happy, calm or at peace during this time of uncertainty. Where have you spent extended amounts of time during lockdown?

Letters from The Illustrated London News written in 1885 describe in detail the architectural design of The Holloway Sanatorium. Designed as a building that would facilitate extended rest, think about which spaces we have used for our own rest recently:

All the features of structure and decoration in the Sanatorium from the tower, like, the famous belfry of Ypres, to the kitchen, from the re-creation or lecture hall to the garden and shrubbery, are on a grand scale, and devised with the kind purpose of affording weary worn-out brain-workers, an opportunity of recovering their faculties. Red brick with stone dressing for the exterior and grey marble for the interior of the large hall, the refectory, and other chief apartments, were thought to afford sufficient variety, so the stone surfaces have been enriched with colour and plentiful gilding. In one part the interior decorations are of the grotesque character often associated with Gothic architecture. The great lecture-hall is very gilt, and is adorned with portraits of distinguished persons.

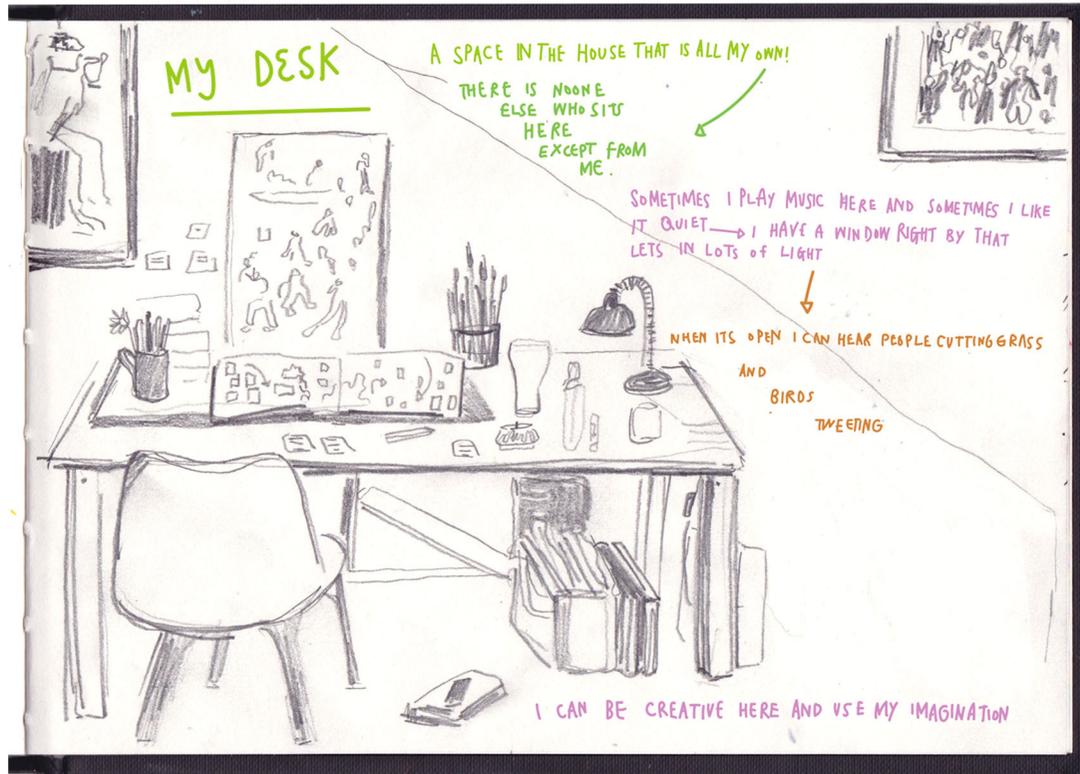

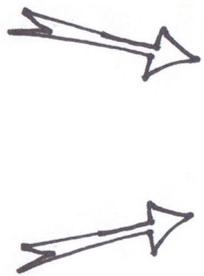

TASK...

Share your happy space with us in Sanctuary Sketches

Create a piece of artwork that tells us about your Sanctuary. Is it your bedroom, your kitchen, a garden or a park? Combine drawing with writing to communicate as much information about your space as possible.

Who else inhabits this space? What can you see out of the window? What time of day is it? What do you enjoy doing in this space? Is it quiet or noisy? What makes you feel happy in this space? Tell us why it is your sanctuary. Here is an example:

you could draw, paint, photograph or collage your space...

you could even record yourself talking about your space and send us an audio clip!
