

Kevin Sutherland Murray Ph.D. - Currently serves as an English Teacher (Hazelwood Central High School.) Previously worked with other teachers to develop techniques to better reach students who come from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. Served as a demonstration classroom for Culturally Responsive Teaching strategies. Professional Presentations/Publications "Why Kids Hate School: Reflections on School Discipline" 2009 Murray, K. 2013. Microaggression as Foucaultian Subjectivism: A Critical Race Analysis. Journal of Philosophy and History of Education. 63(1). 59-68. Murray, K. 2015. Behind Closed Doors: The Mask of Antiracism in Presentation and Practice. He attended the following schools; Truman State University Bachelor of Arts in English, Webster University Master of Arts in Teaching, University of Missouri-St. Louis Master's Degree in Education Administration, PhD in Education Leadership and Policy Studies.