Documents to Check Before Applying for Police Verification Online While you post your property online for renting purposes and look for tenants, you must also be prepared to get involved in a legal contract. You must have all the terms and conditions written down on a rent agreement and get it signed by you (landlord) and the other party (tenant). Make sure you also mention that these terms and conditions can only be changed with the consent of both parties. With a newly created rent agreement, you also need to collect some essential documents before renting or subletting a property. Getting the right set of documents can also help you apply for a police verification online in just a few clicks. Proof of Ownership: In case you are a tenant and want to rent a property, you must ask the owner of the property for proof of ownership and perform some essential title and litigation checks. This helps you learn that the owner has authority over the property and that they reserve a right to lend it out for rent. No-Objection Certificate: In case you are looking for a flat in society, make sure you go through all the rules and regulations they have established for the residents in relation to having a pet or other people coming over.
