

Aiden's Mission to Uplift Others

By Brett Burkhart

Hampton graduate and current University of Pittsburgh student Aiden Hanna was diagnosed with osteosarcoma in August of 2022, at the age of fifteen. After experiencing severe leg pain, a chiropractor suggested he see a doctor who diagnosed him with the cancerous tumor of the bone. Aiden underwent ten weeks of chemotherapy followed by surgery to remove the tumor in his left calf. Nine months later, a routine cancer scan revealed that the cancer had spread to his right leg, and he would need to undergo further chemo treatment and surgery. Again, nine months later, another scan revealed that the cancer was still attacking Aiden's leg, and he would need to either live with it while trying to manage symptoms, or undergo a below-knee amputation in an effort to eliminate the cancer. Aiden and his family chose the amputa-

Aiden, a former baseball player at Hampton, is now eighteen years old, and is a freshman majoring in accounting at the University of Pittsburgh. He lives on campus in Oakland with his three roommates, one of whom was a best friend growing up. Aiden, now experienced with his prosthetic leg, continues to play softball, baseball, and golf. When asked about his transition from high school to college

by Jenn Edmonds

On September 15th, an ordinary day became extraordinary for one Hampton family, thanks to the Pittsburgh Penguins. Every year, Penguins players hand-deliver hockey season tickets to a few lucky season ticket holders and this year, Hampton's own Christina and Tom Carlin and their family were selected. They received a phone call from the Penguins' office about a week before that they were going to

Helping Hands

while undergoing such a major surgery, Aiden said, "Nobody here treats me any different. We played wiffle ball the other day; it's really cool."

When asked about learning to use his prosthetic leg, Aiden explained, "The first couple weeks after amputation were really painful and I couldn't sleep, but now, I've adjusted. The crazy thing is my surgeon [who performed the amputation] had the same cancer and went through the same thing when he was sixteen years old. He even brought me a birthday cake in to the hospital two days after surgery. It was real heartwarming, because he celebrated his sixteenth birthday in the hospital too."

Aiden credits his mom and dad and two sisters with being very supportive and helping to provide him the strength to carry on through cancer treatment, which currently consists of oral chemotherapy, requiring Aiden to take two pills each night before bed. With a nudge from his family, Aiden and his parents started a nonprofit organization called "Aiden's Helping Hands." The charity is designed to help families experiencing financial hardship with expenses such as mortgage payments, medical bills, and prosthetics or other equipment through the Children's Hospital Network. Recently, the organization raised $21,000 at a softball tournament on September 6th at the Hampton Community Park.

A total of eighteen teams were divided into two divisions, one for the recreational adults and the other for the high school students. Each team got to play two games for a shot at the playoffs, in which one team in each division would be crowned victorious and granted bragging rights. Food trucks, a basket raffle, local vendors, Kona Ice, and pop up mini golf made it a family friendly event for the community. Aiden, his mom and dad, his two sisters, and all his high school friends all played in the tournament. Aiden said, "All my high school buddies flew in and we all played on a team. We finished third. We are not happy about it! [But] it was a lot of fun. My friends came down to Pitt on Friday night and then we drove to the tournament Saturday. It was exciting to see everybody."

When asked how it makes him feel that his organization can help other families that may be overcoming challenging circumstances, Aiden responded, "It's a sense of relief, and it gives me fulfillment that these battles are worth fighting, not just for me, but for everybody. The reason I started this is because when I was in the hospital, I was so down on myself. Then my mom took me on a walk through the hallways, and I could see the kids playing hide and seek in the hallways. The kids had IV poles, but they were living like it was normal. That's when I said to my dad, we should start something up to help kids like this."

Aiden's Helping Hands continues their mission to help offset costs for families in need through Children's Hospital with events such as the softball tournament at Hampton's baseball field. For more information on this charity and how you can become a supporter, visit www.aidenshelpinghands.com.

receive a personal visit, but didn't know which player would be visiting until that day.

"There are things that the Penguins do for the community that nobody else does," said Christina "We were completely shocked." The anticipation was through the roof and the kids were able to get out of school early to wait for the mystery player to arrive.

After being in Pittsburgh for only about a week, new Penguins defenseman Matt Dumba came into the Carlin home, started talking to the kids (daughters Abby, Haley, and Callie, and son Grady) signed some memorabilia, gifted a signed jersey to the family, and took some photos. Christina explained that the best part was that "It was so personal. It was just us and him. You don't get that experience with other athletes."

Christina and Tom's oldest daughter, Abby, is a hockey player and a huge Penguins fan so it was especially exciting for her. The Penguins even posted the family visit on their Facebook page with the caption "Missing school to welcome Matt Dumba to Pittsburgh... best day ever." It was a bonus that Matt Dumba played with Marc-Andre Fleury on the Minnesota Wild team and looked forward to playing with Fleury in his retirement game with the Penguins.

On Sunday, October 12th, Hampton Township will lace up its sneakers and rally behind education at the 33rd Annual HAEE 5K Run/Walk, hosted by the Hampton Alliance for Educational Excellence (HAEE). This beloved fall tradition brings together families, students, alumni, and local businesses in support of educational enrichment across the Hampton Township School District.

Held at the Hampton Community Center, the event features both a 5K race and a 1-mile walk, welcoming participants of all ages and fitness levels. It's more than a race—it's a spirited celebration of Hampton's commitment to learning, community, and collaboration.

A Race with Heart and History

Founded in 1992, the Hampton Alliance for Educational Excellence (HAEE) was created to enhance educational opportunities for students in the Hampton Township School District. Initiated by Assistant Superintendent Paula Calabrese and led by founding president Aaron Walton, HAEE has remained an all-volunteer organization dedicated to supporting students through grants and scholarships. Over the years, HAEE has raised nearly $1 million, with its largest fundraiser being the annual 5K Race and 1-Mile Walk—held every year since 1993. In 2012, HAEE introduced two scholarships for graduating seniors:

the Hampton All-Around Effort and Excellence Scholarship and the Anna Kuhn Memorial Scholarship, honoring civic virtues and academic achievement.

Whether you're racing for the Alliance Cup, walking with friends, or cheering from the sidelines, the HAEE 5K Run/Walk is a chance to celebrate Hampton's spirit and support its future. Registration is open now—don't miss your chance to be part of this meaningful tradition.

National Baton Champion

by Laurie Rizzo

Hampton Township has a new reason to cheer—and it comes with a twirl. This past July, Hampton High School senior Dante Dew dazzled the nation at the AAU Junior Olympic Games in Houston, Texas, earning the prestigious title of 2025 AAU Junior Olympic National Baton Champion, Men's 15+.

Representing the vibrant and spirited Sensations Marching Unit, Dante brought not only his baton but his heart and discipline to the national stage. His performance was nothing short of spectacular, and his medals speak volumes about his dedication and talent:

- 3rd Place – All Around National Champion (Age 16–18)
- 3rd Place – Novelty Solo Beginner (Age 16–18)
- 3rd Place – Novice Parade Strut (Age 16–18)
- 5th Place – Basic Strut Novice (Age 16–18)

Dante's achievements reflect years of training, countless hours of practice, and an unwavering commitment. His success is not just a personal victory—it's a celebration for the entire community and the Sensations Marching Unit, who have supported and shaped his journey.

"Dante has grown tremendously," said Coach Joanne Gerardi of Sensation's Marching Unit. "Although he truly has a natural talent, his daily and regimented hard work and dedication is accredited to his growth success."

Dante's journey to the national stage began with family inspiration. "My sisters really inspired me to get involved," Dante shared. "My twin sister Destiny was already twirling, and my older sister, Stephanie, is the co-instructor. Having them by my side made me feel more comfortable—and now I absolutely love the sport."

His path wasn't without challenges. "I first tried baton when I was 9, but I wasn't really serious," Dante recalled. "I wanted to start back in 2020 when I was 12, but then COVID hit and pushed everything back. I didn't get to join again until I was 15."

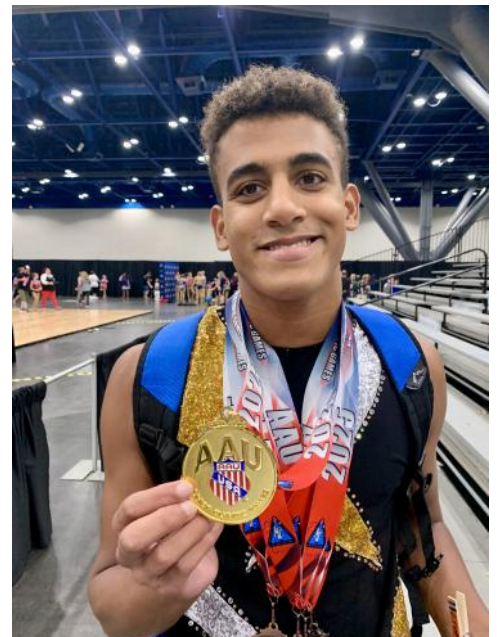

Despite the delay, Dante's passion and perseverance propelled him forward. When asked about standout moments from the competition, he reflected:

"There were definitely powerful moments, but what stands out most to me was actually just stepping onto the floor at the AAU Junior Olympics for the very first time. Being out there with so many amazing athletes was a surreal feeling. Winning the men's baton national title was incredible, but honestly, it felt less about the medal and more about realizing how far I'd come after all the hours of practice and the people who believed in me. I felt really grateful to have that experience."

Coach Joanne echoed that sentiment, emphasizing the culture of growth and support within the Sensation's Marching Unit: "Dante has earned his title through his passion for twirling—putting in hours of practice in and out of the gymnasium on a daily basis. As an organization, we strive to help all performers reach their goals.

We are extremely proud of Dante and our many others who have also earned state, local, and national titles in addition to our competitive teams. It is always very exciting when our performers reach goals."

With his baton in hand and his team behind him, Dante Dew has twirled his way to the top!

Chasing the Crown Again

For more than two decades, Kamelia Velkova has been the driving force behind the Pittsburgh Northstars, elevating the team to national prominence in the graceful yet demanding world of Rhythmic Gymnastics. A former Bulgarian National Champion herself, Velkova brings both technical mastery and a champion's mindset to her coaching.

When she's fortunate enough to work with a handful of elite athletes, Velkova often molds them into a cohesive group, shifting the focus from individual competition to synchronized team performance. Their routines require not only precision and artistry, but seamless coordination—tossing clubs, hoops, or ribbons across the floor with split-second timing and trust.

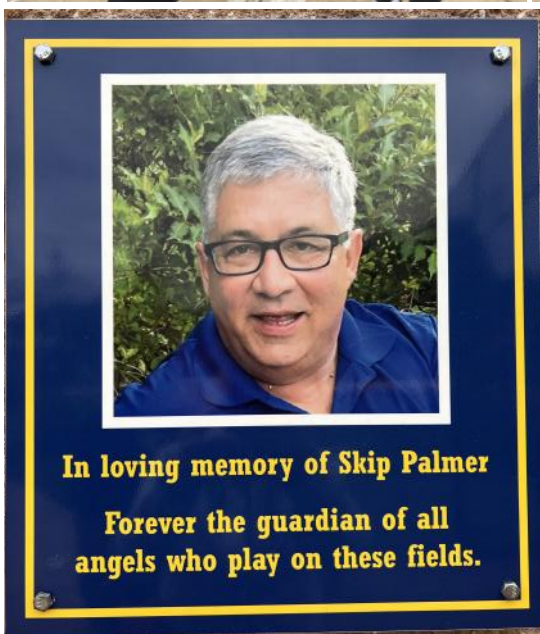

Lynsey Zhao, Coach Kamelia Velkova, Sophie Yan, Muriel Liu, Ella Huang, and Hanna Singhi

This year, the group's club routine dazzled judges at the National Championship in West Palm Beach, Florida, earning them a well-deserved third-place finish in June. It was a follow-up to last year's triumph, when they claimed the title of Rhythmic National Champions—the very best in the country.

Key contributors to this season's success included Lina Jewart, who performed with the group throughout the year, and Cassandra Mazurowski, a senior dance major at Point Park University, whose choreography and coaching support added depth and polish to their routines.

Looking ahead, this talented group, rising juniors at North Allegheny and Shady Side Academy, plans to continue their journey together through senior year, with eyes set on reclaiming the national crown.

Aiden's Helping Hands

Aiden's Helping Hands fundraiser was held on his grandfather Skip Palmer's birthday. A rainbow arch of black and gold balloons marked Skip's heavenly celebration beside the dugout, where a plaque reads: 'Forever the guardian of all angels who play on these fields'—a tribute as timeless as his love for the game and his grandson, Aiden.

Girls Invited to Join Preseason Wrestling

by Laurie Rizzo

With preseason practices already underway, Coach Chris Ruggeri is inviting new girl wrestlers in grades 7–12 to “try-it” by joining practices every Tuesday and Thursday from 3:15–4:30 in the varsity wrestling room at HHS. The official season kicks off November 17, but Ruggeri says now is the perfect time to get involved.

Ruggeri emphasizes that success in wrestling isn’t just about wins. “Sometimes avoiding getting pinned, or not getting teched, can be the difference in a match,” he said. “It’s all about getting 1% better every time you face a new obstacle.”

He’s proud of the program’s growth, noting, “We had about 60 wrestlers last year and my networking skills brought on two D1 wrestlers to the coaching staff — Ethan Headlee from Pitt and Andrew Sherry from Missouri.”

For girls unsure about joining, Ruggeri offers encouragement: “Even if wrestling isn’t your main sport, what you learn and how you’ll train your body will transfer to other sports. And if you don’t play another sport, there’s something to be said about pushing yourself through the season.”

He adds, “To push yourself through adversity when the body says ‘I’m done,’ the mind must respond, ‘We still have more to give.’”

Interested students can scan the registration QR code or stop by a preseason practice to see what wrestling is all about. As Ruggeri reminds us, “Once you’ve wrestled, everything else in life is easy.”

TIP OF THE MONTH:

Labor and building materials are typically the least expensive around October. Use this to your advantage; if you've been needing to make household updates or renovations to increase the marketability of your home. Prepare for the colder months by making sure your house is sealed from water damage and pests.

Fix or replace any flooring, countertops, cabinetry or other major household projects while building materials and labor are cheapest. Hire an exterminator to spray for insects inside and outside home. (Bugs will be looking for a heat source when the weather gets colder and are more likely to be attracted to your home in the coming months). Or get a spray bottle and do it yourself! Clean rain gutters and downspouts for drainage or moisture problems, on average twice per year. HVAC and furnace filters need to be changed every three months (average; more if you have pets, use fireplace, allergen sensitivities, etc), so doing this quarterly will help set a schedule.

Cooking Up a Legacy of Family and Flavor

by Laurie Rizzo

North Side native Lois V. Leonard is serving up more than just recipes in her new book, The Seasoned Caterer: Stories, Recipes, and Life Lessons from the Heart of the Four Seasons Banquet House. It's a heartfelt tribute to the decades she and her husband, Joseph "Butchie" Leonard, spent running the beloved Four Seasons Banquet House in Hampton — a place that "was more than a business — it was family."

The book blends warm storytelling with cherished recipes and reflections on perseverance and community. "I was inspired by a lifetime in the catering business," Lois says. "Over the years, I collected so many stories, recipes, and life lessons that I wanted to preserve them—not only for my family, but for anyone who has ever worked hard behind the scenes in food service."

Readers are already praising the book's authenticity and heart. Lois hopes it leaves them "uplifted and encouraged," adding, "I want them to laugh, maybe shed a tear, and feel inspired that no matter what challenges come, you can keep moving forward."

Writing the book, she says, was "definitely like cooking a feast! At first it felt overwhelming—so many ingredients (stories, recipes, memories) spread out everywhere. But once I got them simmering together, it turned into a meal worth sharing."

Beyond her storytelling, Lois is also an accomplished inventor with six patents, including the WindBlocker chafing stand and Get-A-Grip food pans. "My first invention was sparked by a very real problem—caterers getting burned by hot steam when lifting pans. I thought, there must be a safer way," she explains. "Necessity—and a little stubborn determination—truly became the mother of invention."

The Seasoned Caterer is available now on Amazon and TWBInnovations.com. It's geared toward "anyone who loves a good story, enjoys cooking, or appreciates the behind-the-scenes world of catering and events."

With wisdom and a dash of humor, Lois V. Leonard invites readers to pull up a chair and savor the legacy of a life well-lived — one dish, one story, and one lesson at a time.

Innovation at its finest! Lois Leonard's 'Get-a-Grip' handles make buffet service safer, smoother, and smarter. In the top photo, her WindBlocker invention eliminates wire stands with a sleek, lightweight aluminum design—featuring four-sided walls that fold flat for easy storage and extend fuel cell life. Just a glimpse into the brilliance behind her many practical creations!

Bishop's Tea Honoring Service and Tradition

On Sunday, September 21st, the Pittsburgh Field Club welcomed 98 remarkable young women for the annual Bishop's Tea, a cherished prelude to the Medallion Ball. Hosted in honor of this year's candidates, the event offered a moment of reflection, celebration, and gratitude for their extraordinary commitment to volunteer service.

The Reverend Bishop Mark Eckman greeted each candidate personally in a receiving line, offering warm words and blessings. Later, he addressed the group collectively, acknowledging their collective contribution of over 16,000 hours of service to the community. His message was one of deep appreciation: "Thank you for helping others," he said, recognizing the spirit of generosity and compassion that defines the Medallion Ball tradition.

The Bishop's Tea, with its elegant setting and heartfelt tone, serves as a meaningful milestone for candidates preparing to be formally presented at the 62nd Medallion Ball. That celebration will take place on Friday, November 28th, 2025, at the Wyndham Grand Downtown Pittsburgh, where each candidate will be honored for her dedication to service and commitment to making a difference.

The photo of this year's candidates is shared, it captures more than just a moment—it reflects a legacy of kindness, leadership, and community spirit that continues to inspire.

DUI Arrest

 On 9/5/2025, an officer observed a vehicle on William Flinn Highway traveling at a high rate of speed and appearing to be in the middle of both southbound lanes. The officer caught up to the vehicle and observed it failing to maintain its lane, changing lanes without using a turn signal and eventually hitting a curb as it was pulled over. Following the traffic stop and field sobriety testing the driver was arrested for suspicion of DUI.

Road Hazard

 On 9/5/2025, officers responded to Cohasset Lane for a tree down, blocking the entire road. Hampton Department of Public Works quickly responded and removed the tree.

Safety Tip

 Who Sent This Package? You Don't Want to Know
You may be familiar with QR codes. They are square black and white barcodes that you can scan with your phone's camera to be instantly directed to a website or mobile app. Unfortunately, cybercriminals can use QR codes to their advantage. This scam begins when you receive a package in the mail that you weren't expecting. There's no return address or sender information, but a QR code is printed on the box.

However, the package, which contains an item of little to no value, is just a trick to get you to scan the code. It was sent by cybercriminals, and they hope you will be tempted to scan the code to find out where the package came from. If you scan the QR code, you'll be taken to a fake website and asked to enter your personal information so that cybercriminals can steal it. The website could even secretly install malware on your device! Follow these tips to avoid falling for this QR code scam:

- Be suspicious of any package you receive that you didn't order, especially if it has no sender information.
- Never scan a QR code from a source you don't recognize or trust. Cybercriminals can use them to send you to malicious websites.

- Be careful about allowing websites and apps to access your phone's data after scanning a code. Cybercriminals can use these websites and apps to steal your data or download malware to your device.

Scams to watch out for this month:

 This month's scam alert: Watch for an email that looks like it's from a trusted brand, such as Costco or AAA. The email promises a free gift if you fill out a short survey and pay a small shipping fee so that the gift can be delivered to you. The email may create a sense of urgency by claiming that only a few free gifts are left. All you have to do is click a link in the email, which takes you to a website with the survey.

However, the website and survey are fake, and the gift doesn't exist. The small shipping fee is actually a trick to steal your financial information. If you enter your credit card details on the website, you'll give your payment information directly to scammers. Then, they can use your card for more expensive purchases or sell your data to other cybercriminals. Even worse, they can use the personal information you entered to steal your identity!

Follow these tips to avoid falling for this phishing scam:

- Legitimate organizations would not ask for your credit card details to cover shipping for a completely free promotional item.
- Instead of clicking links in an email, go directly to the organization's official website to check if the offer is real. Think before you click!
- Be skeptical of any offer that seems too good to be true, even if it appears to come from a brand you know and trust.

A Taxing Smishing Scam

 Cybercriminals are targeting taxpayers in the state of California by sending text messages that look like they're from the Franchise Tax Board (FTB), a state tax agency. The message claims your tax refund has been approved and instructs you to select a link to enter your payment information. There is a very strict deadline, and the instructions state that you will lose your tax refund if you do not enter your payment information quickly. However, this message is a smishing, or text phishing, scam sent by cybercriminals. The link doesn't take you to the official FTB website. Instead, it leads to a fake webpage designed to look real. If you enter your personal details or banking information on this page, the scammers will steal it!

Follow these tips to avoid falling victim to this smishing scam:

- Be suspicious of any text message that claims to be from a government agency like the IRS or a state tax board. These agencies will not contact you by text to ask for your personal or financial information.
- Never select links in unexpected text messages. If you need to check on the status of a tax refund, go to the official tax agency's website directly by typing the address into your browser. While this scam targets taxpayers in California, watch out for messages that create a sense of urgency or use threats. Scammers do this to rush you into making a mistake without thinking. Always stop and think before taking action!

where they will spend the next six months collecting data. Among those students was HHS senior Andrew Craig, the only member of his team who was able to make the trip. With his father at his side, Andrew stood under a dark sky suddenly illuminated by the brightest of lights, feeling awestruck and immensely proud as he witnessed his team's work leave the confines of Earth.

Andrew, along with fellow HHS senior Daniel Tabokov and three other local high schoolers, began their journey in June 2024 when they attended a three-day Go For Launch! program, during which students were challenged to design a space experiment. The program is run by Higher Orbits, a non-profit organization whose mission is to inspire students through spaceflight and project-based experiences that promote Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math (STEAM). The teams presented their ideas to judges—Higher Orbits founder and CEO Michelle Lucas and astronaut Wendy Lawrence—who then chose one team to move forward to send their experiment to space. A total of four experiments from regional events around the country earned spots on the SpaceX mission.

Andrew's team, the Cosmic Critters, created an investigation into the problem-solving abilities of a single-celled organism called slime mold; along with an ability to efficiently find food and adapt to changing situations, slime mold produces antibiotic and anticancer biochemicals. The Cosmic Critters are looking into how the organism will react when gravitational restraints are eliminated.

Reflecting on his launch experience, Andrew explains, "We were across a narrow river a few miles away from the launch but we could still see it clearly. They had a large screen that was showing close-up views of the launch, and when they began the countdown, everyone just got silent. Then," he continues, "I first saw the light, flames that were so bright it was like looking into the sun for a moment, blinding a spot in my vision. The rocket lifted and curved, and then I felt the shock waves and heard the roar from the rocket as it was lifting off. That was my favorite moment, that feeling as it washed over me. Then, as it kept going off into space, I lost track of it for a second because of the blind spot from the light. Then I saw what looked like a moving star and realized that was it, and I felt such a sensation of accomplishment as I watched it go into space."

Acting on advice from Ms. Lucas, Andrew kept his phone safely tucked away so he could remain firmly rooted in this moment of a lifetime: "She told us, 'Do not take video because you want to be in the moment; SpaceX and NASA will have great videos.' I took her advice, and I'm so glad I did. I truly lived that moment, my eyes locked on the launch."

Protecting Access to Lifesaving Vaccines

by State Rep. Arvind Venkat

We are seeing an increasing amount of chaos in Washington, especially within health policy agencies such as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention that oversee many important aspects of public health, including vaccines.

This turmoil is now putting policymakers with anti-vaccine ideology in charge of vaccine access instead of those prioritizing scientific evidence. We must make sure that Pennsylvanians who choose to receive vaccines can receive them without difficulty.

To make sure Pennsylvanians do not lose access to lifesaving vaccines, I have recently proposed two bills with several of my colleagues that would keep immunizations affordable and accessible in our state.

My first piece of legislation, H.B. 1828, would require private insurers to cover vaccines recommended by the Pennsylvania Department of Health. The department would be able to draw upon the expertise of several professional medical societies in making these recommendations.

The second would bolster the ability of pharmacists to administer vaccines recommended by Pennsylvania's state health authorities, which may also be informed by the expertise of professional medical societies. Governor Josh Shapiro has stated he is fighting to protect vaccine access. The legislation would enshrine these protections in state law, overcoming this moment of anti-vaccine ideology.

Current state law bases private insurance coverage and pharmaceutical administration only on federal recommendations. These bills would ensure that Pennsylvanians can stay healthy and safe, even if the federal government wrongly pushes for the opposite.

State Senator
LINDSEY M. WILLIAMS
38th Senatorial District

I'm introducing a package of legislation to protect Pennsylvania utility customers from skyrocketing electricity costs caused by data centers.

Our families should not be paying more for their electricity because enormous data centers might move into our neighborhoods—and they certainly should not be subsidizing electricity costs for giant corporations. Western Pennsylvania has a long history of prioritizing the needs of industry billionaires at the expense of the people who built this country. This is our chance to reverse that trend and put the needs of our working families, our seniors, and everyday people first, ahead of corporate profits.

According to the PJM Independent Market Monitor, data center load growth is the primary reason for recent increases in capacity prices. If not for data centers, capacity prices would have been lower, leading to lower energy bills for Pennsylvania households.

Rising energy bills mean that more and more people will need help keeping their lights and heat on. But commercial data centers – the entities causing energy bills to rise – do not pay into Pennsylvania's customer assistance programs (CAP). Rather, the cost of these programs falls exclusively on residential customers, including the low-income customers most likely to need the assistance.

Allegheny County United Way 211 consistently reports Electric Service Payment Assistance among its top identified needs from callers. With federal Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) funding in question for coming years, local customer assistance programs are more critical than ever.

This legislation is a first step towards keeping the lights on for our seniors, families, and children, while ensuring that our largest users of electricity are not paying the least.

An Update from Congressman Chris Deluzio

Congressman Chris Deluzio Survey Should smartphones be in classrooms?

In my last update, I shared how this summer, I asked every school district in Pennsylvania's 17th Congressional District a simple question: what will your policies be this coming school year around smartphone use in the classroom?

I did this because I'm a dad of four and I see the clear evidence that smartphones in the classroom are hurting learning. I think we've got to do more to help our kids learn in the face of Big Tech pushing their addictive and distracting devices and apps on our kids.

Now I want to hear from you as we start a new school year: do you think that schools should ban smartphones in K-12 classrooms? Take my one-question survey.

We've seen a lot of interest in this issue since I first announced my push to protect our kids from smartphone addiction and set them up to succeed at school. At the state level in Harrisburg, there is a bill backed by both Republicans and Democrats to make every PA school phone-free all day. I've heard from lots of parents, teachers, and Western Pennsylvanians from both political parties about how we've got to make our classrooms free of smartphone distractions, so our kids can focus on learning.

What do you think? Please take a minute to let me know and fill out my survey.

Working Together to Make Hampton Even Better

Western Pennsylvania is made up of wonderful communities like Hampton, where people can live, raise a family and find engaging employment. Our area should be one of the fastest growing, most dynamic in the entire country. However, high taxes and regulations are driving many of our own businesses and people away.

The good news is we are fortunate to have all the ingredients necessary for growth with our amazing workforce, great schools (K-12 and colleges), cultural amenities, natural resources, world class health care, outdoor recreation and so much more. I am committed to working in a bipartisan manner with my colleagues in Harrisburg and local government partners to put these ingredients together and position our region for growth.

It's unacceptable the Pittsburgh region continues to stagnate and slowly lose population. I will continue to roll out a slate of reform initiatives to help streamline our state government and encourage growth.

As always, I look forward to your suggestions and comments. Please don't hesitate to visit our Gibsonia or Wexford offices for any assistance you might need.

Also, join me in supporting some of the many great events in our community including the HAEE 5K on October 12th and the Operation Troop Appreciation 5K on November 9th, both take place at Hampton Community Park.

Connecting the Community

Through neighborhood pathways and community events, we're connecting our neighbors and building our community. The next 4 years will see more trails, like the Topnick path, and added activities for all ages.

Investing in Public Safety

By embedding social services in our police department, we're helping our most vulnerable while allowing officers to focus on law enforcement. Now it's time to focus on storm preparedness, rebuilding the Route 8/Wildwood intersection, and consolidating fire and EMS into a centralized facility.

Continuing Fiscal Responsibility

Despite inflation, responsible fiscal management has allowed us to improve on infrastructure and essential services, while maintaining emergency reserves. We've renovated the police department, updated the Community Center, pool, and park, increased road paving, and modernized police and public works equipment.

We are professionals. We are volunteers. We are your representatives.
We want to continue to serve you to make our community even better!
