

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction	1
Background on Belize
The Travel-Study Course Approach to Long Term Research and Involvement
A Note on the Use of Energy Circuit Models
Site Description	16
The River and Floodplain
The Village
The Biological Station
Physical-Chemical Characteristics of the River	22
Biodiversity and the Ecosystem	50
Connecting the Ecosystem to the Economy	120
Citrus Farming
Coconut Oil Production
Ecotourism at Possum Point
Case Studies in Sustainable Development	138
Sittee River Trading Company: an experimental rain forest business
Mahogany Plantings: small scale restoration of a high-quality tree population
Sittee Point: an attempt at mangrove preservation
Partners in Art: a migratory bird art educational exchange program
Computers in the Jungle: towards electronic sustainability
A Hypercycle Model of Community-Scale Sustainable Development	172
Conclusions	182
Modelling the Future of Ecotourism in Belize
Foreignization and the Loss of Bioliteracy
Regional Development and Biodiversity
Sustainable Already?
Literature Cited	203
Appendix 1. List of students who participated in the Tropical Ecology Course	225
Appendix 2. A Preliminary Management Plan for Sittee Point	227
Appendix 3. Data Tables	234