

I AM A

PLOVER

PROTECTOR

This is Clark Kent.

He was banded as a young chick in 2018. He has spent the past four summers in Rockaway raising his chicks. He winters more than 1,100 miles away in Andros, Bahamas, and flies back to New York every year to raise his young. He is as much of a New Yorker as any of us.

He is one of about 100 endangered piping plovers who come to Queens each summer. As few as 6,000 remain in the world. They need our help.

Please contact the following officials to let them know that you support protecting our city's one endangered species—the piping plover.
