

Addresses for Everyone

Plus codes

A. Hussein

WHAT ?

A plus code is like a street address for people or places that don't have one.

WHY ?

Plus codes give addresses to everyone, everywhere, allowing them to receive deliveries, access emergency services, register to vote, and are already improving peoples' lives.

HOW ?

These addresses exist for any location, even for places where there are no roads.

Plus codes are based on latitude and longitude – the grid that can be used to describe every point on the planet

local code

Simpler code system, much shorter and easier to use, than traditional global coordinates

- The first four characters are the area code, describing a region of roughly 100 x 100 kilometers.
- The last six characters are the local code, describing the neighborhood and the building, an area of roughly 14 x 14 meters

Important Aspects

Benefits of Having an Address

Receive deliveries

Without proper address no deliveries are possible even delivery of govt. services.

Access emergency service

Without proper address you won't get quick legal help or emergency services like fire rescue or ambulance service.

Register to vote

Voting registration needs proper address

Smooth business operation

Without proper address small businesses can not get proper banking facilities like creating account, taking loan etc.

Benefits of Plus Codes

No Country Code

It doesn't use any country code, so it can be used to locate someplace in the middle of mountains or desert

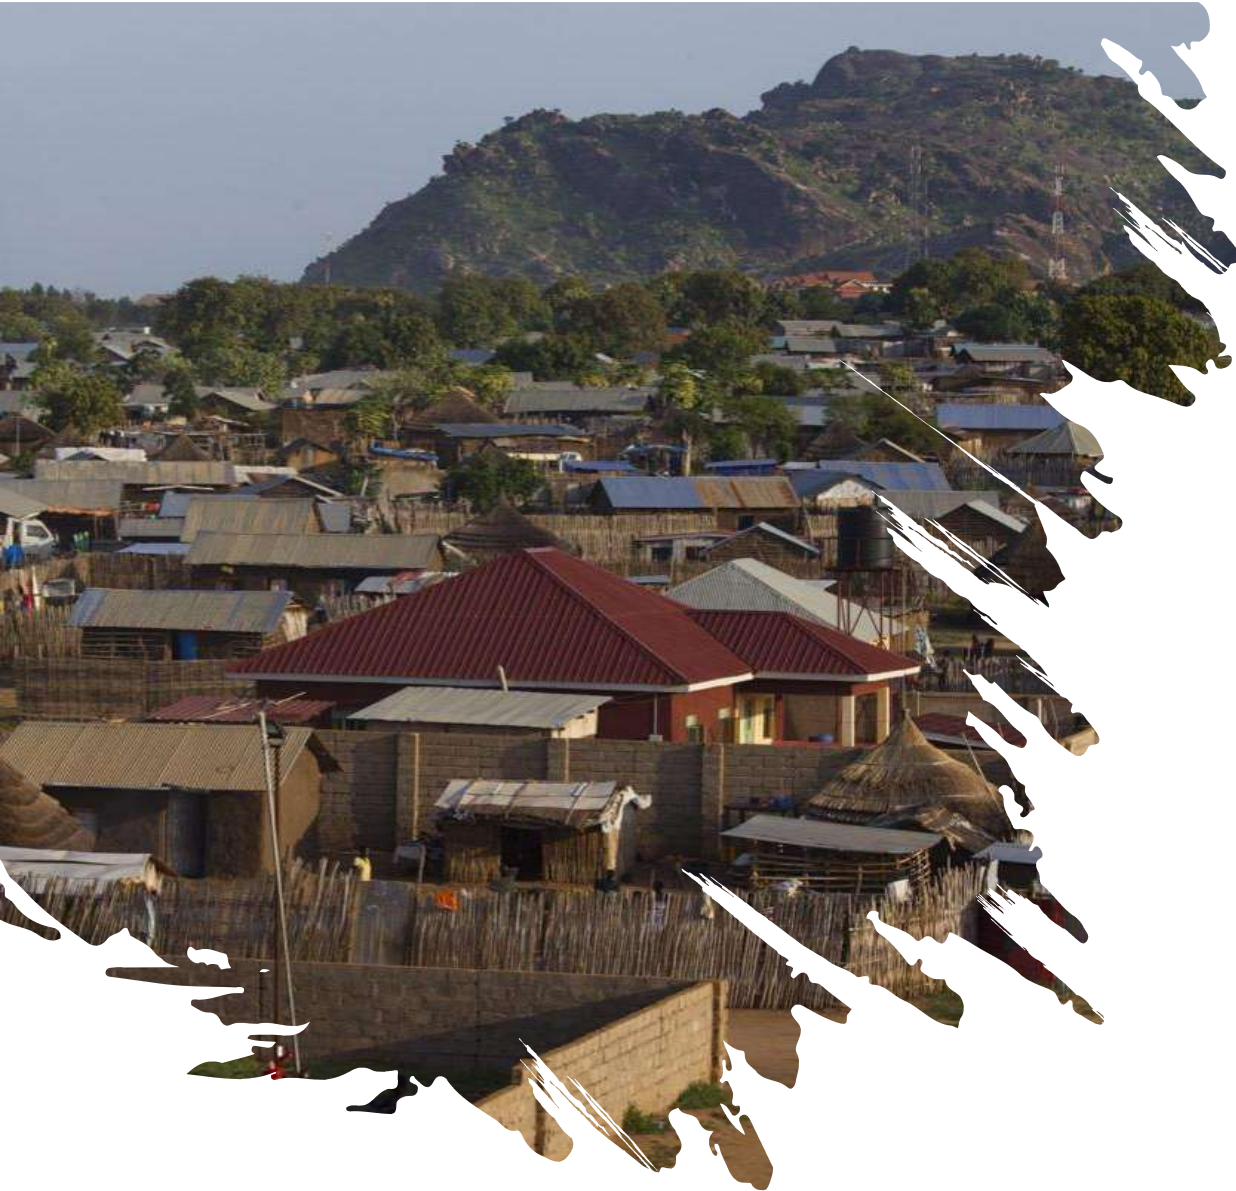

Address for everyone

It is not based on street name or district name, so any location can have an accurate address

Pinpoint Location

It is based on latitude and longitude which are global coordinates so even a small house can be located easily

Locate Anyplace

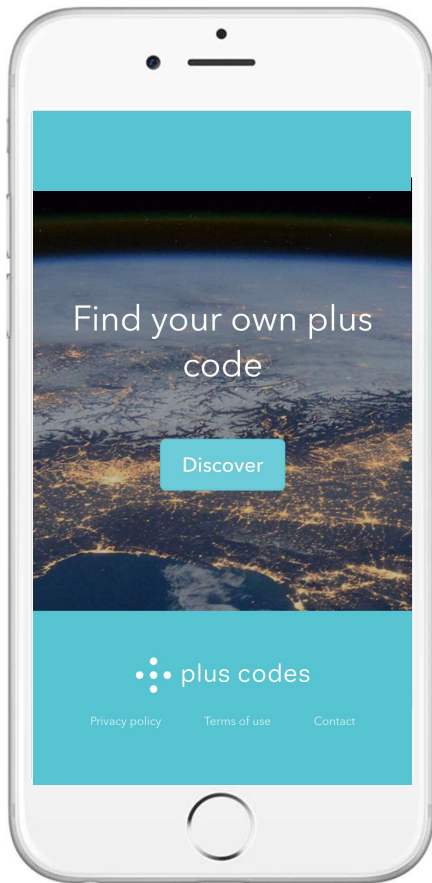

Plus Codes can provide an address for locations near mountains, deserts, borders or disputed territory. People can get their necessary postal, health and business delivery services.

Locate Anyplace

Plus codes are not based on any street name, so even small houses in the most densely populated area can be located easily and everyone gets an address
