

Jawanna Dean

Founder, Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC

Creator of The One Key Strategy

Independent Author and Publisher | Systems Strategy Consultant |

Enterprise Advisory and Intervention

Website: <https://jawannadean.com>

Email: Jawanna.Dean@gmail.com

LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/jawannadean/>

Location: Florida / Michigan / National Consulting

Executive Profile

Founder, independent author, publisher, and systems strategy consultant with a multidisciplinary background spanning business management, real estate, mortgage lending, paralegal studies, project management, Lean Six Sigma, human resources, technology, publishing, public doctrine, and institutional reform analysis.

Creator of The One Key Strategy and author of 52 published books, with one additional course asset and more than 700 essays and blogs addressing housing, labor, consumer debt, data access, economic repair, business accountability, public systems, institutional power, and structural reform. Built a substantial intellectual-property catalogue as a one-person enterprise, demonstrating sustained execution, original methodology, independent publishing discipline, and high-volume strategic production.

Experienced in translating complex legal-adjacent, operational, economic, workplace, housing, consumer, and public-system issues into structured analysis, feasibility studies, reform models, executive language, policy-facing doctrine, and decision-grade advisory content.

Provides enterprise-level consulting through Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC using a role-based engagement model designed for serious decision-makers who require strategic architecture, systems intervention, risk translation, operational analysis, execution alignment, intellectual-property control, and high-level narrative development.

Professional Value Proposition

Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC supports leaders, founders, organizations, institutions, professionals, and public-facing decision-makers confronting complex operational, strategic, publishing, real estate, business, housing, labor, or institutional challenges.

The work extends beyond writing, coaching, brainstorming, or general advisory support. Engagements may involve strategic architecture, systems review, process analysis, Lean Six Sigma-informed evaluation, authority and decision advising, risk translation, execution planning, public-positioning language, intellectual-property development, and narrative control.

The value rests on judgment, synthesis, multidisciplinary experience, original methodology, high-output publishing execution, and the ability to convert difficult conditions into usable strategy.

Core Competencies

Enterprise Advisory and Intervention
Systems Strategy and Business Architecture
Feasibility Studies and Reform Models
Executive Writing and Public Doctrine
Intellectual-Property Development
Publishing Strategy and Catalogue Architecture
Housing, Labor, and Consumer-Protection Analysis
Real Estate and Mortgage Industry Knowledge
Lean Six Sigma and Process Improvement
Project Management and Operational Review
Human Resources and Workforce Structure
Legal-Adjacent Research and Paralegal Analysis
Risk Identification and Downstream Impact Review
Narrative Control and Public Positioning
Founder-Led Business Strategy
Application Concept Development
Housing Technology Strategy
Relationship Accountability Systems
Human-Centered Platform Design
Digital Product Strategy

Selected Intellectual-Property and Strategy Projects

Jawanna Dean Catalogue

Built and published a 52-book independent author catalogue, supported by the Short Sale Mastery course asset and a vast archive of more than 700 systemic essays and blogs.

The body of work delivers structural reform analysis, public doctrine, business strategy, housing critique, labor analysis, consumer-protection concepts, and systems-level interpretation across a broad intellectual-property archive.

The One Key Strategy

Created a proprietary civil and economic strategy centered on lawful collective action, housing accountability, consumer power, debt pressure, institutional response, and national repair. Developed the strategy across books, essays, public statements, blog content, consulting language, and movement-level doctrine.

The doctrine connects individual decision-making with larger economic systems, including housing, lending, foreclosure, public authority, consumer leverage, and institutional accountability.

Reparations for All

Developed a universal economic-repair doctrine addressing debt, housing, labor, public systems, institutional extraction, national reset policy, and human-value restoration.

Built supporting language around feasibility, public demand, economic reset, payment protection, and lawful collective pressure.

Short Sale and One Key Housing Strategy Work

Developed housing and mortgage-related strategy content addressing short sales, foreclosure pressure, consumer remedies, bankruptcy-adjacent decision-making, lender accountability, key surrender, property valuation, and homeowner options under financial distress.

The analysis combines real estate knowledge, mortgage-industry understanding, legal-adjacent research, and practical consumer strategy.

One-Person Enterprise Blueprint

Built a live business model demonstrating how a single founder can create a consulting platform, publishing catalogue, intellectual-property archive, public doctrine, digital content system, and strategic reform body without traditional corporate infrastructure.

The project compares one-person execution against committee-driven organizational delay, showing how technology, discipline, decision authority, and centralized vision can accelerate business development.

Emerging Application and Technology Projects

HUD Human Housing App / HUD Human Connect: The Human Housing Network

Developing a housing-innovation application concept connected to Jawanna Dean's broader housing, public-support, and systems-reform work. The HUD Human Housing App is designed around human-centered housing access, resource awareness, housing stability, public accountability, and practical support for people navigating shelter insecurity, displacement, administrative barriers, and housing-system complexity.

The concept aligns with Jawanna Dean's housing doctrine, The One Key Strategy, The Right to Live, HUD Human Connect, and the belief that housing must be understood as a condition of human survival rather than a privilege controlled by credit, income, paperwork, or institutional gatekeeping.

$10,000 Sex Bond Accountability Dating App

Developing a relationship-accountability and dating-technology concept connected to 12 Play: The $10,000 Sex Bond. The app concept addresses modern dating, sexual access, consent, seriousness, emotional cost, personal boundaries, relationship safety, and accountability through a structured model that challenges casual access without responsibility.

The project extends Jawanna Dean's personal-sovereignty and relationship-accountability analysis into technology, positioning dating as an area requiring clarity, mutual responsibility, dignity, and enforceable standards rather than vague promises, emotional extraction, or unstructured access.

Published Book Catalogue

Jawanna Dean has built a 52-book independent author catalogue supported by more than 700 essays and blogs. The catalogue operates as a founder-led intellectual-property system covering housing, labor, consumer protection, public systems, data access, economic repair, personal sovereignty, legal-adjacent analysis, business strategy, faith, memoir, and reform doctrine.

Each title contributes to a broader archive of public thought, institutional critique, business analysis, and practical strategy. The catalogue is presented in reverse order, beginning with the most recent published work.

Slumlord

A housing-accountability and property-access book examining landlord neglect, rent extraction, substandard housing, tenant vulnerability, code failure, public enforcement weakness, property overvaluation, and deferred maintenance. The book connects housing quality, tenant rights, landlord accountability, municipal inspection, income-linked rent, and public responsibility to the broader demand that housing be recognized as a condition of human survival.

A New Constitution for America: Freedom, Equality, Reparations for All, and the Right to Live

A constitutional-reform and public-policy book proposing a new governing system for America built on the principle that the human being comes first. The book examines freedom in fact, equality without exception, reparations for all, housing as a right, national healthcare, educational choice, public transportation, labor limits, child protection, prison reintegration, debt and credit reset, domestic liberty, digital rights, environmental stewardship, public accountability, and a proposed 10% non-refundable flat-tax model for both individuals and corporations.

Truth in Compensation: Show Me the Money Before I Apply

A labor-transparency and public-policy book arguing that workers should know the full economic truth of a job before applying. The book examines gross pay, net pay, deductions, benefit costs, employer contributions, equal pay, payroll distribution, the fair-slice question, and a proposed 10% flat-tax model for both employee and employer.

Am I a Slave?

Am I a Slave? examines freedom, debt, labor, housing, race, family court, healthcare, taxation, and institutional control through a disciplined systems-analysis lens. The book distinguishes historical chattel slavery from modern forms of economic, legal, and administrative dependency, asking whether people can be considered truly free when the conditions of survival are governed by systems they cannot meaningfully refuse.

We The People Make The World Go Round

A public-power and mass-refusal work examining how ordinary people sustain the economy through movement, labor, consumption, housing participation, and daily compliance. The book connects collective leverage, lawful refusal, national repair, and the demand for Reparations for All.

The Right To Live: Housing, Human Survival, and the National Demand for Repair

A housing and human-survival doctrine addressing shelter, water, food, valuation, foreclosure pressure, public authority, and economic extraction. The work argues that housing must be treated as a condition of survival rather than a speculative commodity.

Digital Reciprocity: A Consumer Protection Doctrine for Valid Contact, Account Truth, and Institutional Responsibility

A consumer-rights and technology doctrine addressing digital contact, account accuracy, institutional records, platform responsibility, and the human cost of data-driven systems. The work positions digital access as a matter of accountability, not convenience.

Lemonade and Lawnmowers

A practical and cultural work examining early enterprise, neighborhood labor, childhood initiative, and the ordinary business lessons found in simple acts of work. The title connects small-scale earning with discipline, self-respect, and economic imagination.

PIST Paid Interview Standard and Transparency

A hiring-reform work addressing paid interviews, exact compensation disclosure, candidate time, phantom hiring, workload dumping, and employer accountability. The standard challenges unpaid labor inside modern hiring practices.

HDAP: Human Data Access Payment

A consumer-protection doctrine arguing that organizations profiting from personal information must compensate the human source. The work connects data access to pricing, surveillance, credit, insurance, scoring, and institutional profit.

Land Lord: Eminent Domain, Gentrification, and the Lie of Ownership in America

A housing and property-power analysis addressing ownership, land control, displacement, eminent domain, tax pressure, and the illusion of security in American real estate. The work examines the conflict between shelter, law, wealth, and public authority.

Payroll Before Expansion

A business-accountability work arguing that companies should not expand while workers, vendors, contractors, or operational obligations remain underpaid or unstable. The title centers payroll, responsibility, and ethical business sequencing.

Poverty Is a Super Power

A survival and systems-analysis work reframing poverty as a condition that can sharpen observation, discipline, creativity, and institutional insight. The book examines how scarcity exposes the real mechanics of power, access, and endurance.

The Jurisprudence of Consent

A legal-adjacent and public-doctrine work examining consent as a foundation of authority, obligation, legitimacy, and institutional power. The title explores how consent is granted, assumed, manipulated, or withheld across public and private systems.

Let Freedom Ring: Why the Bell We Hear Every Day Is Not Freedom—and What Real Freedom Would Look Like

A freedom doctrine challenging symbolic patriotism, ceremonial language, and hollow public promises. The work examines what real freedom would require in housing, labor, money, law, mobility, and human dignity.

The Sovereign Protocol

A personal and public authority work addressing self-command, legal awareness, boundary setting, institutional interaction, and disciplined independence. The title presents sovereignty as a practical operating standard rather than a slogan.

The Watermelon Truck

A cultural and social-observation work using a specific image of labor, movement, commerce, and public perception to examine race, survival, value, and memory. The title carries the weight of ordinary work inside a larger American story.

Anatomy Of Inversion

A systems-analysis work examining how institutions reverse truth, accountability, blame, value, and moral order. The title studies the mechanics of inversion where harm is protected, victims are questioned, and power rewrites reality.

The Sentence That Failed Us

A legal-adjacent and public-accountability work examining the force of language inside law, punishment, public policy, and institutional judgment. The title centers the sentence as both written structure and imposed consequence.

YES

A personal-sovereignty and affirmation work centered on permission, decision, self-command, and the refusal to live under permanent denial. The title treats yes as an act of authority, not compliance.

The Prayer That Built A Man The Architecture of Desire Why Women Must Build, Not Beg

A relationship, faith, and personal-discipline work examining desire, womanhood, prayer, construction, and emotional authority. The title challenges begging, waiting, and dependency by placing emphasis on building.

The Constitution on Trial: A Case for the Living Over the Dead

A constitutional critique examining whether inherited legal structures serve living people or preserve dead authority. The work questions national obedience to documents, systems, and interpretations that fail present human needs.

The Overrated Machine: An Inquiry Into Human Genius and Artificial Imitation

A human-intelligence and technology critique examining artificial intelligence, imitation, originality, judgment, and the limits of machine output. The book defends human genius as more than processing power.

AI Government Audit

A public-systems and technology accountability work examining artificial intelligence in government, administration, public access, records, decision-making, and institutional risk. The title frames AI as something that must be examined before it is trusted.

The Right To Silence

A legal-adjacent and personal-sovereignty work examining silence as protection, strategy, dignity, and refusal. The title addresses the power of withholding speech from systems that exploit explanation.

Pimping The Easiest Game On Earth

A social and economic critique examining manipulation, desire, performance, dependency, and exploitation. The work studies how human vulnerability becomes a market when discipline, love, and power are distorted.

HUD Human Connect: The Human Housing Network

A housing-reform work proposing a human-centered approach to shelter, placement, public systems, and housing access. The title challenges bureaucratic distance by centering people rather than files, waitlists, or disconnected programs.

12 Play: The $10,000 Sex Bond

A relationship, economics, and accountability work examining intimacy, consent, value, discipline, and personal exchange. The title uses economic framing to challenge casual access, exploitation, and unpriced emotional labor.

Letting Go Of The Unloved Life

A personal-sovereignty and healing work addressing emotional abandonment, self-release, identity recovery, and the refusal to remain attached to conditions that do not honor life. The title centers exit as restoration.

Nonnegotiable Self

A personal-authority work focused on boundaries, discipline, identity, self-command, and refusal. The title positions the self as something that cannot be bargained away for approval, access, love, or survival.

The Kiddie Committee

A youth-centered and community-imagination work addressing children, voice, early leadership, family systems, and public responsibility. The title treats children as observers, contributors, and stakeholders in the world adults build.

The Young Hustler's Handbook: How Kids Can Make Money and Build Freedom Early

A practical youth-enterprise work focused on earning, responsibility, creativity, discipline, and early financial confidence. The book connects childhood initiative with long-term independence.

Short Sale Mastery Workbook: A Real Estate Agent's Guide to Navigating Distressed Properties

A companion workbook designed to support real estate professionals working through short-sale concepts, distressed-property analysis, client preparation, and transaction discipline. The workbook translates strategy into guided practice.

Eve and Her Holy Fields

A spiritual and feminine-sovereignty work examining womanhood, sacred ground, creation, desire, discipline, and restoration. The title positions Eve beyond blame by returning her to holiness, agency, and fieldwork.

Short Sale Mastery: A Real Estate Agent's Guide to Navigating Distressed Properties

A real estate and mortgage-industry work addressing short sales, distressed properties, client guidance, lender interaction, documentation, and transaction strategy. The book reflects practical housing knowledge and professional advisory experience.

Becoming the Promise: A Sacred Journey into Wholeness Before the One Arrives

A faith, healing, and preparation work focused on wholeness before partnership. The title emphasizes spiritual readiness, self-development, emotional repair, and becoming before receiving.

Sachel: The Trilogy Of Queen Dinero and Malakai Stone

A fiction work centered on power, love, wealth, legacy, loyalty, and consequence. The title establishes a dramatic world built around Queen Dinero, Malakai Stone, and the force of destiny.

Reparations for All Bill of 2025: Introduced on Behalf of We the People by Jawanna Dean

A public-policy and economic-repair work presenting Reparations for All as a national demand. The title frames repair as universal, structural, and tied to debt, labor, housing, public systems, and human value.

The One Key Strategy: A Citizen Call To Action

A civil and economic strategy centered on lawful collective action, housing accountability, consumer leverage, and national repair. The work connects individual participation with larger pressure on systems of debt, property, and public authority.

Sachel II The Covenant Of Blood

A continuation of the Sachel world, expanding themes of legacy, loyalty, sacrifice, violence, inheritance, and binding consequence. The title deepens the emotional and covenantal stakes of the fictional universe.

$1 Reset Playbook: A Lean Housing Strategy

A housing and process-improvement work applying lean logic to property valuation, public repair, affordability, and system redesign. The title presents housing reset as a structured strategy rather than a vague reform demand.

O Theory: The Zero Reset

A conceptual and economic-reset work examining zero as origin, correction, and restart. The title uses the logic of reset to challenge inherited debt, false value, and broken public systems.

The Empty Ballroom: How America Built Wealth on Chains

A historical and economic critique examining wealth, labor, race, extraction, and the polished spaces built from hidden suffering. The title contrasts public elegance with the violence beneath American prosperity.

The Kindness Startup: Everyone Eats Or Nobody Eats

A business and community-repair work addressing food, generosity, enterprise, mutual responsibility, and ethical design. The title treats kindness as an operating model, not a sentimental gesture.

Love Promise: A 365-Day Devotional Journey Back to God, to Love, and to Yourself

A devotional work guiding readers through faith, healing, self-love, restoration, and daily spiritual reflection. The title connects God, love, and personal return through sustained practice.

9 Quitman: A Memoir

A memoir rooted in place, memory, family, childhood, survival, and personal formation. The title uses one address as an entry point into a larger life story.

Plantation: The Uprising Of The 99%

A social and economic critique examining labor, class, power, ownership, and mass resistance. The title frames modern systems through the language of plantation economics and collective uprising.

The $50 Theory: How America Can Feed Itself Again

A food-security and economic-repair work proposing practical thinking around nourishment, access, public responsibility, and national survival. The title uses a small-dollar premise to examine a large public failure.

Redeem And Reform America

A national-repair work addressing public systems, accountability, economic correction, civic responsibility, and institutional transformation. The title calls for redemption and reform as paired obligations.

Sachel III Heaven On Earth

A continuation of the Sachel series, expanding the fictional world through themes of fulfillment, destiny, spiritual consequence, power, and promised restoration. The title moves the story toward completion and higher stakes.

Write It Into Being: The Power of Writing to Heal, Manifest, and Rise

A writing, healing, and manifestation work focused on language as a tool of recovery, clarity, creation, and self-command. The title positions writing as both discipline and spiritual force.

MAMA: Make A Miracle Again

A faith, restoration, and resilience work centered on miracle, motherhood, renewal, and divine possibility. The title carries both personal and spiritual force, presenting miracle as something to be reclaimed.

Additional Course Asset

Short Sale Mastery Course

A real estate education asset connected to the Short Sale Mastery body of work. The course supports agents and professionals seeking structured guidance on distressed-property transactions, short-sale concepts, client preparation, lender communication, and practical execution.

Professional Experience

Founder and Systems Strategy Consultant

Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC

Lead founder-level consulting, publishing, systems strategy, and intellectual-property development for original business, reform, housing, labor, data, and institutional accountability models.

Develop executive language, feasibility studies, public-facing doctrine, consulting models, publishing strategies, and structural analysis for complex business and public-system issues.

Create and maintain a growing intellectual-property catalogue that supports consulting, public thought leadership, digital publishing, website content, and long-term business positioning.

Analyze organizational problems through a multidisciplinary lens that includes business management, real estate, mortgage lending, paralegal training, project management, Lean Six Sigma, human resources, technology, consumer behavior, and lived systems observation.

Develop strategic models designed for decision-makers requiring clarity, risk recognition, operational structure, and public-facing language.

Develop emerging application concepts connected to housing access, human-centered public support, relationship accountability, personal sovereignty, and systems reform, including the HUD Human Housing App and the $10,000 Sex Bond Accountability Dating App.

Independent Author and Publisher

Independent author and publisher with a 52-book catalogue and a companion Short Sale Mastery online course. The body of work spans housing, labor, consumer protection, economic repair, public systems, institutional accountability, business strategy, personal sovereignty, and reform doctrine.

Produced more than 700 essays and blogs that support the broader intellectual-property archive, consulting model, and public thought leadership platform.

Manage the complete publishing process from concept development and manuscript architecture to editing direction, cover strategy, metadata, category selection, keyword positioning, digital distribution, launch messaging, and catalogue management.

Built a founder-led publishing system that transforms ideas into finished intellectual property without reliance on traditional publishing infrastructure or corporate approval structures.

Real Estate and Mortgage Industry Background

Licensed real estate professional with experience in residential real estate, property analysis, housing transactions, buyer representation, market positioning, and client advisory services.

Developed specialized knowledge in housing valuation, mortgage pressure, foreclosure risk, consumer debt, appraisal systems, lending practices, ownership instability, and the tension between housing as a human necessity and housing as a financial asset.

Real estate and mortgage experience informs current housing-reform models, short-sale education, consumer-protection analysis, and The One Key Strategy.

Project Management, Operations, and Process Improvement

Background in project management, business operations, process analysis, Agile and Lean environments, risk assessment, stakeholder coordination, systems documentation, and implementation support.

Professional experience includes exposure to corporate and institutional environments involving Amazon Flex, Ford, General Motors, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, real estate operations, business development, and community-based initiatives.

Apply Lean Six Sigma and project-management principles to evaluate broken systems, identify process failures, reduce waste, improve decision-making, and convert operational complexity into structured solutions.

Paralegal and Legal-Adjacent Background

Certificate in paralegal studies with experience in legal environments and attorney-led settings.

Apply legal-adjacent research, issue organization, document analysis, procedural awareness, and structured argument development to consulting, writing, housing strategy, consumer-protection systems, reform analysis, and public doctrine.

Legal-adjacent work is limited to research, analysis, strategy, document organization, public-policy framing, and business advisory support and does not include legal representation.

Human Resources, Workforce, and Labor Analysis

Background in human resources, business management, workforce systems, hiring practices, employee experience, workplace accountability, scheduling pressures, compensation structures, and labor reform.

Developed systems addressing paid interviews, compensation transparency, workload dumping, phantom hiring, reduced workweek concepts, equal-pay principles, employer accountability, and candidate access standards.

Selected Project Environments and Applied Experience

- Amazon Flex and Delivery Systems
- Ford and Automotive Operations Environments
- General Motors Project and Operations Exposure
- Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan Institutional Project Environments
- Residential Real Estate and Mortgage Lending
- Legal and Paralegal Work Environments
- Independent Publishing and Digital Distribution
- Community Development and Volunteer Leadership
- Business Consulting and Founder-Led Strategy
- Housing, Labor, Data, and Consumer-Protection Analysis

Consulting Engagement Model

Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC provides enterprise-level advisory and intervention services through a role-based engagement structure.

Engagements are structured by function and responsibility rather than ordinary hourly billing. Each assignment may require multiple roles to operate concurrently, including strategic architecture, systems and process review, Lean Six Sigma-informed operational analysis, authority and decision advising, downstream risk translation, execution alignment, intellectual-property framing, and narrative control.

Minimum engagements begin with four concurrent roles at $2,500 per role, establishing a $10,000 role-stacked hourly equivalent with a twelve-hour minimum commitment. The minimum engagement floor is $120,000.

This model is reserved for decision-grade consulting. It is not coaching, casual advising, general writing support, open-ended brainstorming, or piecemeal hourly work. All engagements require written scope confirmation, defined objectives, decision-authority confirmation, and professional discretion.

Education and Credentials

Bachelor of Science, Management
University of Phoenix

Bachelor of Science, Information Technology
University of Phoenix

Human Resources Certificate
University of Phoenix

Paralegal Studies Certificate

Project Management / PMI / PMBOK Training
Lawrence Technological University

Lean Six Sigma Master Black Belt
Lean Six Sigma Master Green Belt
Lawrence Technological University

Licensed Real Estate Salesperson
Accredited Buyer Representative
Graduate, REALTOR® Institute coursework
Resort and Second-Home Property Specialist
Mortgage Loan Originator background
Community Association Management background

CompTIA A+
CompTIA Network+

Leadership and Community Work

Volunteer and community project experience includes large-scale neighborhood improvement, STEM-related youth engagement, business planning support, community development concepts, and foundation-building activity connected to the Jawanna Dean Foundation.

Through the Jawanna Dean Foundation, Jawanna Dean extends her public-interest contribution into charitable, educational, literacy, community-service, and public-support initiatives rooted in human dignity, public education, and practical systems awareness.

Jawanna Dean Foundation

Jawanna Dean Foundation is a public-support and community-centered initiative connected to Jawanna Dean's broader public record in human dignity, public education, literacy, housing awareness, community service, systems accountability, and practical civic understanding.

The Foundation is designed to support charitable, educational, literacy, community-service, and public-support initiatives rooted in human dignity, public education, and practical systems awareness. Its purpose aligns with Jawanna Dean's larger professional and intellectual-property archive addressing housing, labor, consumer protection, economic repair, institutional accountability, and public systems.

Foundation-related activity may include public education, literacy support, community-resource development, housing and systems-awareness materials, youth and family enrichment concepts, practical education tools, and community-facing initiatives connected to dignity, access, and informed participation.

Jawanna Dean Foundation operates as a separate charitable and educational lane from the enterprise advisory and consulting services provided through Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC.

Positioning Statement

Jawanna Dean is a founder, author, publisher, strategist, and systems thinker whose work combines lived systems observation, business discipline, real estate knowledge, paralegal training, project management, Lean Six Sigma, intellectual-property development, and high-volume publishing execution.

Her consulting work is designed for serious decision-makers who require original strategy, structural clarity, risk interpretation, operational insight, and executive-level language.

Her published catalogue and advisory model position Jawanna Dean Consulting, LLC as an enterprise-level strategy platform built around doctrine, systems reform, intellectual property, and decision-grade intervention.