

A Secret Your Husband Keeps...But Needs You to Know

(from ronedmonson.com)

Ladies, here's a secret your husband probably won't share...

He needs your unconditional respect...in fact...he needs you to be his biggest fan...

Your support feeds his God-given ego...

Sure, that ego can be abused...

But just as you need his unconditional love, he needs your unconditional respect...

I realize you nor he is capable of perfectly fulfilling those individual needs...

But at least you know the secret now...

You see...

Doing well for the woman he loves is perhaps one of the greatest goals in a man's life...

That inner desire starts at a very early age...

The little league ball player who turns around to see if mom watches him bat...

The same little boy who brings a flower (weed 😊) home to mom...it's the respect he's seeking...

The truth is sometimes a guy feels as if he doesn't measure up...actually a lot of times...

(Please don't tell him I told you this...)

He feels the weight of being wonderful in so many areas...his home, his family, his work...even in his hobby...

It's a pressure men carry internally...mostly never sharing it with anyone...

Chances are that fear of failure is his greatest fear...

He sees you doing so well with all your responsibilities...the home, the kids, relationships...

Even your walk with God shines brighter than his sometimes...okay...most times...

You handle things so well, in fact...at times, he's tempted not to even try...

(Please don't tell him I told you this 😊)

One time after preaching...Cheryl said nothing...

Usually she says "Great job today"...or..."That was a good one"

That day...nothing...

3 days later...I asked, "Was I that bad?"...

I needed her positive feedback and encouragement....it's what fuels me...

Your husband does too...

I know that sounds shallow of us...perhaps it is...

But...

Here's the best part of the secret....

If your husband feels respected in his home...he will do anything to keep it...

Maybe even start doing the dishes....brag on him when he does that too...

Maybe next will be the dusting...nah...don't push it!

Next time your little boy...I mean big boy...is up to bat...make sure he can turn around and see you smiling...