Training

Training is another strategy which allows employees to improve their skills within the forever changing demands in the IT industry.

For graduates, training is important as it bridges the gap, eases you into the world of work and allows you to grow the skills necessary to become part of the larger team.

Whether you are a job seeker, hiring manager or a CIO/CTO, keeping your skills up to date is important. You may discover emerging fields of IT you wish to upgrade or update your skills in, improving your future career prospects.
