COURSE DESCRIPTION

This symposium is designed to focus on the presumed, expressed and demonstrated needs of physicians, nurses, pre-hospital personnel and other health care providers in the delivery of trauma care in the field, the emergency department, and the path beyond the trauma bay. The topics presented will assist participants to use evidence-based practices and current research in the management and care of traumatically injured patients and to practically apply such evidence in their respective professions.

Educational Objectives

- » Describe emerging trends, cautions, and practice in the management of the traumatically injured patient.
- » Understand the current evidence and care for special populations, such as pediatric, obstetrical and the brain injured trauma patient.
- » Describe the evidence and strategies to prevent delirium throughout the spectrum of care for the traumatically injured patient.
