About My Life Matters “Staying Alive”

My Life Matters is an unscripted theatrical production. It empowers its actors and actresses to overcome their obstacles by sharing their very own stories and experiences of depression, sexual abuse, teen bullying, PTSD or any issue that could lead to suicide.

The play uses music and dialogue to relay a message of God’s love to a young lady who is so overwhelmed by life’s experiences that she tries to commit suicide. However, God uses the least likely person to intervene.

The purpose of this musical production is to shine light on mental health in a unique way to get people talking and seek help in communities that closes the door on this issue. Most people are in denial because they associate mental illness with being crazy. My Life Matter is based on real issues and the actor’s true stories.

Equally Yoked Enterprises

Creating A Stage for Change

My Life Matters first debuted on February 25, 2017 in Paterson, NJ. In hopes to continue our message of hope we set out for two more performances in Virginia Beach on November 4, 2017 and January 20, 2018. Although we experienced some setbacks and disappointments we count every performance a success as we received numerous calls of people changing their mind about committing suicide. The message of this production is so powerful, and the feedback was so overwhelming on all social media outlets that we were asked to bring it to Atlanta on September 8, 2018 and back to Paterson, NJ in December and on to Charlotte, NC the first part of 2019.
