

Bridgeport, WV's Stratagen: Providing the next generation of IT now

FROM WV NEWS REPORTS

BRIDGEPORT — Stratagen, a federal government contractor headquartered in Bridgeport, is focused on providing the next generation of strategic management, analytical and IT solutions with focus on local clients and talent.

Using industry best practices and best value solutions, the company's mission is to provide the U.S. government with quality personnel and support to enhance the nation's efforts for national security and public safety.

Gene Weaver, founding partner, said the company went through an extensive rebranding six months ago, growing into what it is today.

Weaver, having 30 years of IT experience supporting both federal and commercial clients, said he had been operating what he called a "lifestyle company" contracting for the FBI CJIS before the creation of Stratagen.

"I had three to four people on contract that worked for me," he said.

He said he didn't seek other contracts

while working on one. Last year, he said he wanted to make the transition from a lifestyle company to a growth company, which is how Stratagen was born.

Weaver said he obtained the General Services Administration (GSA) Schedule holder, which allowed Stratagen to bid on primary contracts and brought on partners Tom Bush, former assistant director for the FBI CJIS Division, Marc Krueger and Alex Guy to continue pushing the company forward.

Together, the partners have over 60 years of experience and combined business knowledge.

"Now we are looking at contracts as well as partnerships (from entities) that want to team with us on other opportunities," he said.

The opportunities being sought are with both federal agencies and commercial companies, he said.

Guy, partner and native of Clarksburg with over 12 years of consulting experience driving IT, finance and data analytics solutions for Federal and other public sector clients, said over the last six months, the growth has been excellent. One of the goals, he added, is to bring in different aspects that set them apart from local firms with their focus on data analytics, finance and machine learning that other groups do not specialize in.

"We are directly supporting the law enforcement community and see the impacts we are making every day," he said.

Guy said the main goal is to continue growing, developing a small company culture with a big company feel.

"Our custom approach to consulting allows us to focus on both our clients and our people while continuing to cultivate innovative solutions," he said.

Weaver said with the projected growth to continue, they will eventually have to expand outside of the FBI CJIS location and look towards a bright future for the company.

Stratagen provides information technology, analytical, and program management support, specializes in custom IT solutions, IT operations, system engineering, infrastructure management, program budgeting, master scheduling, IT security, system integration, and database administration.

For information or to apply for a position, visit <https://stratagensolutions.com/>.

Founding partner Gene Weaver has 30 years of IT experience supporting both commercial and federal clients, including contracting for the FBI CJIS.

One of Stratagen's goals, according to Alex Guy, is to bring in different aspects that set them apart from local firms with their focus on data analytics, finance and machine learning that other groups do not specialize in.

Stratagen provides information technology, analytical, and program management support, specializes in custom IT solutions, IT operations, system engineering, infrastructure management, program budgeting, master scheduling, IT security, system integration, and database administration.

Stratagen's four partners bring over 60 years of combined experience and business knowledge in the federal space, are passionate about their future growth and what they can provide to clients. Pictured from left to right are Gene Weaver, Tom Bush, Marc Krueger and Alex Guy.

NCWV Media Business Profiles are sponsored content. Contact 304-626-1426 or email jmiller@theet.com to learn how your business can be featured.

We're hiring!...

- Cleared Professionals
- Systems Engineers
- Data Scientists/Analysts
- DevOps Engineers
- Cloud Engineers
- Program Analysts
- Program Managers
- Java Developers
- Financial Analysts
- QA/QC Specialists

stratagen

Apply at stratagensolutions.com/employment