Remembering Raoul Wallenberg

January 17 marks the 75th anniversary of the disappearance of Raoul Wallenberg, arrested by the Red Army in the course of their 1945 capture of Budapest and taken away into the Soviet Union, never to be seen again.

The scion of a wealthy family in Stockholm, Wallenberg could have easily sat out World War II in comfort at home in neutral Sweden. But he was a bold and noble spirit (who while at university in Michigan had spent his vacations hitchhiking around America with his fellow students instead of buying the train tickets he could easily afford), and his style was strictly hands-on. So when the Nazi occupiers began organizing Hungarian Jewry for deportation to the death-camps in the Autumn of 1944, Wallenberg arranged to be assigned to the Swedish legation in Budapest as a representative of the Red Cross to go do something about it.

And do something he most certainly did. Every time the Germans carried out another selektion, the dapper Wallenberg strode onto the train platform in his most authoritative diplomatic demeanor to interfere with the Nazis' deportation order. He sternly informed the ranking SS officer present that every individual loaded into the boxcars was in fact a Swedish citizen, under his personal protection, and insisted that the erstwhile deportees be off-loaded at once. Then he handed out mimeographed Swedish passports to all and sundry, and mobilized temporary housing for hundreds at a time until transportation could be arranged to get them out of Nazi-occupied Europe to a country of safety.

A disproportionate number of European Jewish survivors from the Hitler era are Hungarian, precisely because of the direct intervention of Raoul Wallenberg. Among them was the late Tom Lantos, my Congressman in California. As was his gracious wife Annette, who made it her personal campaign to educate people a generation after the War about the moral heroism of an individual who— rather than standing quietly by and remaining uninvolved— stepped in and single-handedly saved tens of thousands of innocent people destined to be murdered.

Raoul Wallenberg remains the most notable and illustrious of the חסידי אומות העולם “righteous gentiles” who rescued our people from extermination in the Nazi era. And he still stands—long after the War, and long after Congress concurred with Rep. Lantos and named Wallenberg an Honorary Citizen of the United States— as a shining exemplar of personal involvement against injustice.

The campaign in the late 1970s to institutionalize January 17 as “Wallenberg Day” never took hold. Yet the 75th anniversary this month of the heroic Swede's disappearance would be a good occasion for each of us pause mid-month to remember him... and to honor his memory by rededicating ourselves to the principle of both promoting and practicing justice, goodness, compassion, and kindness today.

NOTES FROM OUR CANTORIAL SOLOIST

While we're through with our Chanukah candles, menorahs, and dreidels for the year, the name of this festival is relevant all year round. Re-dedication. I like to think that each of us is dedicated – perhaps not in everything we do, but certainly when it's important. But re-dedicated? When our dedication – our commitment – wanes, do we just watch it sink into the sea or (like the sun sets) does it just wane into the sea in a cycle, only to rise again, heralding a new day?

Hopefully, it is the latter. Hopefully our collective quiet is simply the result of the pandemic constraints. For my part, I hope each of you knows that I am available 24/7 to each of you, pandemic or no pandemic; that it is my pleasure to be of help any time I can.

Each year – around the end of January – we commemorate Shabbat Shirah, the Sabbath of Song. At last month's board meeting, the question of how to honor/thank Bea Margolis, our long-time life member, for her extraordinarily generous bequest to JCMI. Since, on top of everything else, Bea was such a lover of music, I readily offered to dedicate the Shabbat Shirah commemoration to Bea's memory and honor. I hope the Shabbat Shirah commemoration will be meaningful to all and that the dedication to Bea will be comforting to all who had the privilege of knowing her. There was discussion of doing something additional when we can all safely return to the sanctuary. That will be the re-dedication.

May the year 2021 give each of us many opportunities to show both our dedication and our re-dedication.

A safe, healthy new year to all.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Yahrtseit Notices

Our policy at JCMI is to offer members the choice of recording Yahrtseit dates in accordance with the English or Hebrew calendars.

If members choose to remember loved ones on their Yahrtseit using the English date of death, the Yahrtseit will be observed each year on the Friday Evening of the week in which that English date occurs.

If the Hebrew date is chosen, the Hebrew date falls on a different English date each year. The Yahrtseit will be observed each year on the Friday evening of the week when that Hebrew date occurs.

Please inform the office as to which date you observe the Yahrtseit of your loved one so that it can be properly recorded in our records. I hope this clarified and eliminates confusion about our policy.

Flowers on the Bimah

Now that we are live streaming, we have a lovely view of the Bimah. We can, once again, take sponsors for flowers on the Bimah. So, nice to get back to some measure of normality. for 5781 (2020-21)

Sunday, January 17 - Leprecohens, and Other Interesting Jews.

An introduction to unique Jewish communities around the world (with recipes!).

Sunday, February 21 - Erotic Love Poetry (and What It's Doing In the Bible).

On the Sunday after Valentines Day, an exploration of the Song of Songs, exploring how this incongruous little book finds its way into the Jewish religious consciousness (and into the prayerbook, too).

Sunday, March 21 - "...But Was Caesar Good for the Jews?"

There was an era when "...but is it good for the Jews?" was the sum evaluation of all things in current events. On the Sunday after the proverbial "ides of March," we will do a little survey of non-current events, evaluating some of the rulers of ancient Rome to discover what their dominion meant to our long-ago people...both in and out of Israel.

If pandemic has subsided by then - All sessions convene in the Meer Room at the Synagogue, starting at 10:00 a.m., with coffee social beforehand at 9:30.

If it is not yet safe to be together - All sessions will convene on-line by Zoom at 10:00, with hand-outs available at the JCMi website the previous week.

Watch for details in the JCMi Newsletters for those respective months!
