SUMMARY:

Jade Adler has worked for the charming, beautiful, and elusive wellness influencer Autumn Gandara for years, running her life and business, and producing and co-hosting her wellness podcast, Autumnal Vibes. They have a great relationship and as a sharp producer, Jade knows Autumn's life better than she does.

Or so she thinks. When Autumn launches a supplement powder called Cosmic Dust, without ever mentioning it to Jade, she swears to have overseen all the clinical trials and tests personally. Autumn is adamant that it's as healthy, safe, and beneficial as she claims on their show. Jade ignores her worries and decides to trust Autumn, but customers begin reporting strange side effects. They're missing time, feeling tired constantly, finding bruises that they don't remember getting.

But then Jade starts to forget things too. She doesn't remember leaving work or how she got home, but she's never taken Cosmic Dust. As Autumn blows it off, insisting it's just a few side effects, Jade doubts her relationship and belief in Autumn for the first time.

Forced to investigate her friend and boss, Jade dives deeper into the world of wellness and Autumn's lies, uncovering a dangerous and supernatural conspiracy. And Autumn might not be the most dangerous thing out there.
