

A brave new Commonwealth of Britain underlying principle is democracy and the democratic process. MPs should encourage their constituents and party members to write to them with their comments. This type of interaction is vital since any written constitution should be made by the people and not just Members of Parliament.

Paresh Motla.
41 Glanville Road,
Oxford.

TONY BENN's proposal for a written constitution is indeed a bold step at setting a new vision for Britain. It should be welcomed as a discussion document by all parties since its