Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.*

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.*

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.*

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

On Re-opening, Author Unknown

I am seeing so much anxiety about resuming business and so much anger about continued regulations. People are feeling the need to catapult to one side or the other, then fight the opposition.

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Here's my perspective, from a mainstream medical model. I think a lot of folks have fallen into the idea that social distancing was meant to stop the viral

spread. It wasn't...it was meant to SLOW it while we put medical infrastructure in place. It has worked. We have, in most parts, not been overwhelmed like we likely would have been without protective measures. In the meantime, our testing procedures have gotten better. We've increased our ventilator count. We've gotten a little better handle on PPE supply chains, and many have helped by making masks and gowns. It's not perfect, but it's much better than it was seven weeks ago.

A vaccine is a long way off. At some point, people have to be systematically exposed to begin the building of (hopeful) herd immunity. We will likely begin to experience a real increase in cases after reopening. Ideally, that exposure is controlled and calculated, in phases, to allow our medical community to respond adequately and reduce the number of severe or fatal cases. That's where we are.

Whether you feel like opening is too soon or not soon enough, we were never going to social distance this thing into nonexistence. You now need to proceed as your health, wallet, and conscience allow.

If you are medically vulnerable, you do not need to be a part of what is about to happen. Stay home if you can. If you're not or if your financial vulnerability trumps your health concerns, you need to proceed in ways that continue to protect yourself, the elderly, and medically vulnerable around you.

All of us need to calm down. Quit telling people who are financially struggling that they don't care about human lives. Quit telling people who are truly at risk of dying from this virus that they are cowering in fear. Remember that until you've walked in someone else's shoes, you should probably be careful in your judgments and subsequent harsh words.

We don't HAVE to choose an either/or proposition and fight. We could choose other ways to respond. Examples include but are not limited to:

"I think this may be too soon, so I will continue to shelter myself, and pray/make masks/ check on those who can't."

"I really need to go back to work, so I will do so, but I will be careful and try to protect myself, my family, and those around me with healthy strategies."

See how those positions allow each of us to do what we need to, and also respect those who are choosing differently?

One thing that allows us to do this is humility. I can acknowledge that I am not an epidemiologist/ economist/ whatever, that I am making decisions based on my understanding of complex subjects and my own personal health and financial situation, that I am not all-knowing, always right, and an expert in all fields, and that each person around me is doing their best too. We can make different choices and still be a supportive community. We can learn and evolve in our understanding of these issues.

Amen! Sounds to me like a response that would please Jesus, who said, "As I have loved you, so you must love one another." And, "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid" (John 14:27)

From Pastor Darrel... This is an article that was included in an email I read.

In the spirit of this article and information from other sources, the leaders of WCC are talking and praying about the timing of opening the church for Sunday Services in a healthy and responsible way as soon as June 7th. We will be discussing if, when and what opening the church would look like on Tuesday June 2nd at our monthly board meeting.

Please be in prayer for your board and your pastor as we:

1. Want to follow God's lead
2. Be sensitive to the spiritual needs of the church
3. Be sensitive to the physical health of our church family

It is a challenging time for all and we need to Lord to guide now more than ever. After the Board Meeting on Tuesday we will communicate the Board's decision in the weekly update. Till then, may the Lord keep and bless you and yours.

Helping Hands Food Pantry

The Helping Hands Pantry would like to express our thanks for the generosity of our community. We have been feeding 100 or more people each week. We thank God for all the blessings we have received from our friends to keep us going.

The Pantry will continue to be open on Wednesday morning from 9AM to 11AM and Thursday evenings from 4-6 for food box pick up.

If you or someone you know needs help with rent, utilities, gas, food or any other need, an application can be found on the church's web-site or at Wiggins Super grocery store and Country Do-It Best Hardware.

Applications will be reviewed weekly by the Helping Hands Ministry committee.

Food Pantry Volunteers Needed!

Want to help out but not sure what to do? We have a job for you! Help is needed on Thursday mornings to pick up boxes from Wiggins Super, on Thursday afternoons (3-4:30) to pack boxes and on Thursday nights (4:30-6:30) to distribute food boxes. If Thursday is not your day, we can also use help on Wednesday mornings 9-11AM. Our Food Truck comes on the 1st Thursday and 3rd Friday of each month at 7:45AM; come help to unload and put away our delivery.

How ever you are moved to help us at Helping Hands Food Pantry - WE NEED YOU! Contact Tracy at 970-380-1888 (voice or text) or call the church at 483-6269 and leave a message.
