Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Pastor Darrel asked the board that when these challenges come, to accept it in the right spirit. The board had prayer around the table to end the devotional.

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Treasurers Report: Sharon Ruyle provided the report to the board. The General Checking Account is standing at $23269.15.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Pastor Darrel asked the board that when these challenges come, to accept it in the right spirit. The board had prayer around the table to end the devotional.

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Financial Secretary Report: A report was provided by Jeremy Reed. For attendance, the average for January 2021 was 57. Income for the month was a total of $19,876.31, well above any previous month. Online giving was at $5629.31 for January.

Treasurers Report: Sharon Ruyle provided the report to the board. The General Checking Account is standing at $23269.15.

Youth Group Report: Ray Meyer provided a report to the board. Recently, there were up to 32 youth at one youth group night. A moving movie night also occurred in January. Shirts for the EPIC youth are ordered.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

WCC Board News

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Pastor Darrel asked the board that when these challenges come, to accept it in the right spirit. The board had prayer around the table to end the devotional.

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Financial Secretary Report: A report was provided by Jeremy Reed. For attendance, the average for January 2021 was 57. Income for the month was a total of $19,876.31, well above any previous month. Online giving was at $5629.31 for January.

Treasurers Report: Sharon Ruyle provided the report to the board. The General Checking Account is standing at $23269.15.

Youth Group Report: Ray Meyer provided a report to the board. Recently, there were up to 32 youth at one youth group night. A moving movie night also occurred in January. Shirts for the EPIC youth are ordered.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Pastor Darrel asked the board that when these challenges come, to accept it in the right spirit. The board had prayer around the table to end the devotional.

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Financial Secretary Report: A report was provided by Jeremy Reed. For attendance, the average for January 2021 was 57. Income for the month was a total of $19,876.31, well above any previous month. Online giving was at $5629.31 for January.

Treasurers Report: Sharon Ruyle provided the report to the board. The General Checking Account is standing at $23269.15.

Youth Group Report: Ray Meyer provided a report to the board. Recently, there were up to 32 youth at one youth group night. A moving movie night also occurred in January. Shirts for the EPIC youth are ordered.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

WCC Board News

Call to Order: Moderator Gideon Oleari called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Absent from the meeting was Glen Gray, Charles Ruyle, Marlin Schroeder, Rick Wymore and Joan Wilson. There was no quorum, so in March, a sweeping motion will be needed to approve all reports and decisions by the board.

Devotional: Pastor Darrel provided the Devotional to the Board. Darrel focused on Daniel and how he put a lot of trust in God, as Daniel had a dream and interpretation given to him. Pastor Darrel asked the board that when these challenges come, to accept it in the right spirit. The board had prayer around the table to end the devotional.

Sunday School Account Report: Jaime Rivera provided the report to the board. Average Sunday School attendance was 23 in January.

Visiting Committee Report: Jaime Rivera provided a report on Christian Education as the Temporary Director effective January 21st. Jaime is working on researching Christian education websites. Her to-do list for February is to find help teaching Sunday School and recruit a teen to run nursery again.

Financial Secretary Report: A report was provided by Jeremy Reed. For attendance, the average for January 2021 was 57. Income for the month was a total of $19,876.31, well above any previous month. Online giving was at $5629.31 for January.

Treasurers Report: Sharon Ruyle provided the report to the board. The General Checking Account is standing at $23269.15.

Youth Group Report: Ray Meyer provided a report to the board. Recently, there were up to 32 youth at one youth group night. A moving movie night also occurred in January. Shirts for the EPIC youth are ordered.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

I remembering pondering our construction project, cutting a hole and letting the sun shine in, and thinking, isn't this what occurs when we give our lives over to Christ? At some point we were made aware there is a better life on the other side of the wall of this life. We may have struggled with the difficulty of access to the light but eventually we allowed a hole to be cut in the wall of our heart so the light of Christ could come flowing into this space. This changed our lives, it changed our views, it changed everything. We are now walking in the light of Christ in our new life.

Not only do we get the blessings of Christ shining in our lives but we also get the privilege of walking through the door into the presence of the giver of the light. "I am the way, the truth and the life..." Jesus said. Jesus is the door we can use to access God, the Creator of the Universe. We can now, "...draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in our time of need." (Hebrews 4:16, NASB)

But the construction phase is not always easy. Allowing walls to be torn down, attitudes to be rewired and even some windows to be removed is hard work. The rebuilding that needs to occur in order for ease of access to our new life is sometimes complicated and strewn with the temptation to quit. But the payoff is a life that is completely rebuilt by the Master Builder Himself. Sonshine, health, spiritual and physical vitality, they are all benefits of a life open to the Master Builder.

Michal and I entered into the happiness brought into our lives by the installation of the French doors in our home but it pales in comparison to the joy brought into our lives by Christ and all He has to offer. I pray each of you are entering into all the joy available to you as you access the Father through the door of a relationship with the Son.

In much love, Pastor Darrel

Pastor's Notes

In a former house, Michal and I put in a French door that opened up to our deck. Actually I should say that Michal and I assisted while a few friends installed the door. It was hard work and there are still some cosmetic things that need to be done but wow, what a difference it made in our home.

First of all let me say it was hard work as those who helped will testify. Cutting out section of an outside wall in your home and putting in a double door is not for the faint of heart. It was not nearly as easy as I thought it might be. We began by tearing out a window, a wall, an outlet, siding, insulation and everything else we ran into that was in the space we wanted to place the door. Then there was the process of rebuilding part of the wall, the floor, the header and the many other things needed for the installation of the door.

But the door went in and the amount of light that flowed into the back part of our home was incredible. It changed the look and the feel of the room. In fact it completely changed the room. Not only this but it gave us easy access to the deck and the backyard. We received a lot of joy flowing from the view, the sunlight and the ease of access to the deck and backyard.

Pantry Report

In the last 30 days Helping Hands Food pantry has served 127 individuals. We have been very busy! In addition to those served in the pantry, we were able to distribute 45 USDA Farm to Family food boxes donated through North Metro Church on February 6. We gave out another 72 meat and dairy boxes from the Food Bank of the Rockies on February 18. Thanks to everyone who helps with distribution, unloading of the trucks, cleaning and stocking and shopping! We appreciate every bit of help we get! We are beginning to get low on plastic shopping bags. If you have extras, feel free to drop them off at church.
