

PhotoArts Journal

September brings forth fond memories of my travels to the pacific northwest. All my visits have been, oddly enough, in September. The weather has cooperated and along with my dear friends, we have explored many locations and events in the magical state of Washington. This composite image comes from Deception Pass State Park in the northwest part of the state with beautiful views of Skagit Bay and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. We made camp and hiked small sections of the park. In the late afternoon, I was lucky to photograph a pod of orca whales moving through the bay toward the strait. Here you see Deception Pass bridge. Driving across the bridge was an experience I will not forget! We gathered at West Beach to witness the sun setting and the crescent moon rising. Photographing the experience was well worth the return walk to camp in the dark. My headlamp was truly a precious piece of gear that night!

In the morning, the Campstuff coffee hut was, sadly closed. We did however score t-shirts at the gift shop commemorating the 100th year anniversary of the park! I hope to visit this great state again next year. Together, with my family and friends I hope to make new memories and adventures along the way. There is so much more to see!

My current exhibit is live at New Health Clinic and Chiropractic through October. Address: 2690 Research Park Dr. #J Fitchburg , WI.

My website is always open: <https://suemerrittphotography.com> and you can message me at: suemerrittphotography@gmail.com with questions, or if you prefer to be removed from my newsletter list...

Until next month...Embrace Your Nature!

All Best Wishes,

-Sue-