Orange Park Memories

The Historical Society is highlighting Orange Park businesses each month of 2025, sharing stories each month that feature one very old and one more familiar business in the town. This month we feature Hotel Marion and Club Continental.

Hotel Marion was developed from the ruins of another hotel in the earliest days of the town. It had 65 rooms, a golf course, sulfur water baths and welcoming gingerbread trimmed verandas that wrapped two floors. It sat at the corner of Kingsley and River Road and provided entertainment and employment to most Orange Park residents at one time or another.

Club Continental, originally called Mira Rio, was built 1922-1923 as the private residence of Caleb and Elinor Johnson, relatives of Karrie Johnson Ferguson, owner of Winterbourne. Johnson had put over $2 million ($38 million in today's money) into the project. The property became Club Continental in the 1960s when Jon Massee, grandson of Caleb and Elinor Johnson, and his wife, Frica, converted the property to a more public space.

3rd Annual Jacksonville History Fair

On Saturday, June 14, from 10 AM to 3 PM, the Jacksonville History Center will conduct its 3rd annual Jacksonville History Fair at 314 Palmetto Street in Jacksonville. Representatives from area historical societies, including HSOP, will be ready to answer your questions about local history and the services their organizations provide. This event is a great resource to obtain information and an effective way to meet other individuals interested in local history. Tickets are $10 per person, which includes a raffle ticket. Free parking is available.

Opportuni-Tea

On Thursday, May 8, the Society hosted a members-only Tea at the Clarke House. The purpose of the tea was to afford our members a chance to get together, reconnect and share stories in a relaxed setting. By all accounts, the Tea was a success. In addition to long overdue conversations, attendees enjoyed a variety of teas and an assortment of delicious treats. Guests also participated in a trivia contest featuring questions about tea, a fitting topic for the occasion. Our thanks to Cindy Cheatwood for organizing this event and preparing the tea and snacks. She did a tremendous job. With the response we received to this inaugural effort, we plan to make this an annual event. We look forward to gathering for tea, snacks, conversation and fun next spring!

History of First Baptist Church, by Bob Scallan

I always find before and after photos of buildings and landmarks interesting. Here, I would like to share with you the before and after photos of the First Baptist Church of Orange Park. To tell the story about this building, we must start with the history of the Clarke family that moved to Orange Park in 1912. Carrie Clarke is well known for her civic engagement and generosity. If you ever toured the Clarke House located on Kingsley Ave., you probably noticed the very large screen porch. It is well documented that Carrie would hold Sunday school classes on that porch with local children. I suspect that as Carrie's porch congregation began to grow, she eventually needed more space. I also suspect that there was probably some urging from Mr. Clarke to move the sessions elsewhere.

First Baptist Church in the 1930's

As told to me by the First Baptist Church historian, several plots of land were put up for auction by the town of Orange Park in 1930. Mrs. Clarke realized this would be a wonderful opportunity to help establish a permanent church facility and attended the auction. The lot she was interested in was located at the corners of Kingsley Ave. and Astor St. – a mere block from the St. Johns River. As the bidding was about to begin, Carrie leaned over to her friend accompanying her and asked, “How much should I bid”? The auctioneer read a description of the lot and called out, “Let the bidding begin!” Carrie shouted out, “$1.00!!!” At this point, we are not sure why the following happened, but the auctioneer’s gavel fell, and he cried out, “Sold!” Yes, that’s correct. The lot was purchased for $1.00. Carrie then donated it to the church.

Early Baptism in the St. Johns River

With a lot in the heart of Orange Park, the congregation began collecting sand from the river and bringing it to the lot where they made their own cement blocks, stacking them until they had enough to begin construction of the church. Eventually, the church was completed. Electricity lines had been run to Orange Park from Jacksonville only six years prior. The church paid a fee of $45 to have the lines run to their new church building. The first utility bill was a whopping 98¢.

When members of the congregation were ready for baptism, it was only a short walk down the street in the river. (see photo)

The neighborhood was a hub of activity. Right next door to the church, the Woman’s Club building went up the same year. Across the street was the burgeoning Moosehaven. Diagonally across Kingsley Ave. from the church was Wiley’s General Store and post office. Around the corner on Astor St. was the relatively new Renaissance mansion built by Palmolive Soap Company owner Caleb Johnson, Mira Rio – now Club Continental.

The original First Baptist Church building would serve the congregation until the early 1970’s when a larger facility was built on the corner of Kingsley Ave. and Azalea Lane – which is about 50 yards from the driveway to the Clarke house. What a coincidence that is! Maybe Carrie had something to do with procuring that location too. I can see her walking down the sidewalk from her home to church on Sunday morning,...long flowing dress, bonnet covered head, and a dozen kids in tow.

In Memoriam – Kenny Radwanski

Kenny Radwanski, a member and friend of our Society, passed away last month on May 3, at the age of 70. Kenny was a “people person”. He had a knack for engaging with others and was known by many in Orange Park. He loved to be involved in the life of the community and was a fixture at Town meetings. Kenny was often present at community events, visiting with everyone and sharing stories. Kenny was also generous, particularly when it came to the Historical Society. He was happy to donate to the benefit of the Society and even paid the membership dues of some of our members. He was proud of Orange Park. On several occasions he purchased copies of Cindy Cheatwood’s, Images of America: Orange Park, to give away to public servants, friends and sometimes, total strangers to give them an opportunity to know our town better. Kenny proudly served with the United States Air Force for eight years. During a recent renovation of the Veterans Memorial, Kenny made a donation toward the cost of the work. The Historical Society installed an inscribed paver at the memorial to acknowledge and honor Kenny’s service, a small gesture that meant a great deal to him. Life in Orange Park won’t be the same without Kenny. He will be missed.

Kenny Radwanski gives a thumbs up as he receives a certificate acknowledging his new inscribed paver at the Veterans Memorial

Veterans Memorial

Each year, we place one order for inscribed pavers to be installed at the Veterans Memorial. The final day to place an order for an inscribed paver this year is July 31. All pavers ordered by this date will be installed at the Veterans Memorial prior to this year’s Veterans Day Ceremony in November. Paver order forms can be found on our website, www.ophistory.org, and at the Veterans Memorial. The gift of an inscribed paver is a wonderful way to honor those who have served and share their service with the community!

Clarke House Tours

The Clarke House will be open to the public for tours on Sunday afternoon, June 8 from 2 PM to 4 PM. The Clarke House, built in 1912, served as the family home for William and Carrie Clarke for many years. It features hardwood floors, plastered walls and ceilings and large, spacious rooms with many windows for good ventilation. It was a comfortable home and the Clarke family shared many happy memories there. Stop by for a visit and make some memories of your own and feel free to share recollections that the house inspires.
