

Education and Accreditation Verifications

The verification of educational and professional accreditations is essential when conducting background checks for organizations to remain compliant and competitive in their respective fields.

Ensuring that appropriately educated and well-trained individuals are working at an organization can be a key to growth and success.

Trusted Results

With so many diploma mills and the sheer ease of 'stretching the truth' when it comes to educational accomplishments, it is imperative to verify a candidate's credentials or education directly with the institution.

Brand Protection

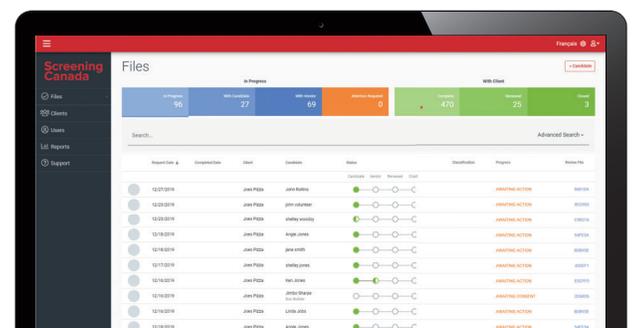

Reduce liability by verifying education and professional acceditations before an individual misrepresents themselves or an organization, negatively impacting their brand.

Speed & Accuracy

The ScreeningCanada platform creates relationships with individual educational institutions. Our technology allows us to go directly to the registrar, providing results in industry leading turnaround times and verified information about your candidate's education.

Types of Degrees

Education and accreditation verifications will look at a candidate's high school, undergraduate, graduate, post-graduate degrees or whether they have the required licenses or certifications for certain positions.

Education is one of the most exaggerated aspects of a candidate's resume. More individuals lie about their educational credentials than any other credential.
