Floating for Athletic Performance

Athletes have been enjoying the benefits of Epson Salt baths for a long time and floating as part of sports recovery has been recognized to speed recovery from injuries and ease sore joints and muscles.

In addition, it reduces lactic acid build up, reduces fatigue, relaxes the mind and helps improve concentration and focus.

MLB teams even have float pods in their locker rooms.

What is Floating?

Floating is a way to pause the hectic, saturated world and enter a state of deep mental and physical relaxation. By giving yourself a break from the endless input of sensory experiences, your mind has a chance to recharge, rest, and emerge to face the world with renewed perspective and energy.

Otherwise known as floatation-REST (restricted environmental stimulation technique) or sensory deprivation. Floating is backed by research and offers immense potential for personal growth and healing. A good but dated documentary, “Float Nation” can be found on YouTube.

Floating F&Q’s

How do you clean the water?
The water is filtered 3 times between each float, passing through a 10-micron filter and sanitized by UV, H2O2 and ozone.

What if I’m Claustrophobic?
Being in a suite is more like floating in outer space, your always in control of your environment and may exit at any time.

Can I drown if I fall Asleep?
Some people fall asleep, but the water is so buoyant that you stay afloat. The worst that can happen is maybe getting a bit of salt water in your eyes.

Do I need to bring anything?
You may want to bring a comb or brush and a case if you have contacts. We provide one towel, earplugs, and body wash/shampoo. The room is private, and you can go into the tank unclothed, so you don’t have to bring a suit unless you want to. Robes, flip-flops available only upon request.

Before you float
• Don’t shave or wax prior
• Eat a small amount 1 hr. before
• Remove contacts
• Don’t drink caffeine before

Going into your float
• Arrive and check in (you don’t need to bring anything except a comb or brush)
• Shower and put in ear plugs
• Step into float room, and float
• Step out, shower off salt
• Get dressed and enjoy your post float glow

Health and Wellness
People float to relieve stress, recover from injuries, fight addictions, eliminate chronic pain and much more.

Floating naturally increases your dopamine and endorphin levels, boosting your mood and leaving you with a pleasant afterglow that lasts for days afterwards.

Without the need to fight gravity or take-in external information, you’ll likely experience the most complete relaxation ever felt
