

PAUL MILLER

Paul Miller, a beloved actor of The Pro Bono Group, has generously lent his voice for Public Service Announcements on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross and Feed Ontario. Several of those PSAs went on to win prestigious advertising awards.

After graduating from high school in Montreal, Paul pursued formal acting training at the National Theatre School of Canada. Following his graduation, he joined the renowned Stratford Festival, where he performed in several Shakespearean productions during the late 1980s and early 1990s. Like many Canadian actors, Paul has been busy with recurring television roles, including appearances on Traders, Due South, Goosebumps, Murdock Mysteries, The Good Witch, Suits, Boston Blue, and Covert Affairs. His breakthrough role came with the Canadian science fiction series Psi Factor: Chronicles of the Paranormal, where he played Professor Connor Doyle. Dan Aykroyd, a lifelong paranormal enthusiast, served as Executive Producer alongside his brother Peter, and also hosted the series.

Paul is an active person in Toronto, often biking to our recording sessions, even in the winter.
