

Terms of Use

The plain-English rules for using this site.

What this is.

Vanguard Scholar is a free educational resource, not a service you sign up for or a contract you agree to. There's no account to create, so there's nothing to “accept” beyond using the site itself. These terms just explain, in plain language, what using this site means.

What you can do.

Use every lesson, tool recommendation, and download on this site, free, for as long as you want. Print, photocopy, and share our Class Kits and PDFs with classmates, teachers, or anyone who'd find them useful — that's exactly what they're built for. Most downloads are watermarked “Free from Vanguard Scholar — share freely,” and we mean it.

What you can't do.

Don't sell our content, claim you made it, or strip our branding and pass it off as your own. Don't use this site to build a copy of itself. Beyond that, we're not precious about it — this is meant to spread.

Content accuracy.

We try to be accurate, but this site involves AI at almost every stage, and AI makes mistakes. Nothing here is guaranteed error-free. See our Content Disclaimer for the fuller picture — treat anything here as a starting point, not a final authority.

Terms of Use (continued)

No guarantees.

We provide this site as-is, run by a small team using AI tools, without warranties of any kind. We're not liable for decisions made based on anything found here — that responsibility sits with you, your parents, and your teachers.

Changes to these terms.

We may update this page occasionally as the site grows. We won't hide changes — if something meaningful shifts, this page will reflect it.