Subject: Proposal for a Haitian-Led Crisis Resolution – Citizen Initiative LA VOIX

OEA

Excellencies,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

As Haiti faces one of the most perilous moments in its contemporary history — lacking stable political leadership, plagued by uncontrolled armed violence, and burdened by growing despair — it is urgent to act differently, with clarity, responsibility, and full respect for national sovereignty.

As a committed citizen and bearer of a new political vision through the LA VOIX movement, I have the honor of submitting a concrete, peaceful, and inclusive crisis resolution proposal, structured around four sovereign commissions, grounded in objectivity, ethics, and the popular will:

1. Technical Electoral Commission

Composed of neutral and experienced technicians, this commission would assist the Electoral Council, conduct field analyses, and establish the technical and logistical conditions for credible elections as soon as possible.

2. National Sovereignty Commission

Tasked with initiating political dialogue with all Haitian forces wishing to participate in the elections, this body would gather conditions, demands, and commitments through a digital platform and direct meetings, to reach an inclusive national agreement.

3. Peace and Security Commission

Designed to open a space for negotiation with armed groups, it would offer a negotiated exit strategy to group leaders (monitored exile or reintegration), and propose a structured conversion of street fighters into a future National Guard. The aim is not to wage war against impoverished youth, but to offer a path to national redemption.

4. Constitutional Commission

This commission would transparently evaluate all existing constitutional drafts — including mine — and submit those most representative of the people's will to referendum. My constitutional proposal is based on popular sovereignty, transparency, term limits, and balance of powers.

Unlike past approaches that have failed or divided, this proposal is structured, inclusive, realistic, and rooted in the legitimacy of the people. The LA VOIX movement — supported by several political parties, civil society organizations, and members of the Haitian diaspora — seeks to actively participate in this process, not as a dominant party, but as an architect of a credible framework through which the people may freely exercise their sovereignty.

"Respect for the people begins with trust in their ability to decide their own future."

I remain fully available for any meeting, exchange, or further elaboration of this proposal. I am convinced that Haiti's future must be led by its children, with the wise and respectful support of its international partners.

Please accept, Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen, the assurances of my highest consideration.
