A Note From Rick: Markets were mixed again this week. Springers & dairy cows were a little weaker; demand is not as strong as it was for most of the year. The calf market, on the other hand, continues to regain strength along with butcher cows & fat cattle. These markets have been back on an upward trend for several weeks now. The hay market has become very active, which is normal for this time of year. Hay prices are definitely higher than they were a year ago. The majority of the hay ranged from $200-$300 per ton. Hopefully everyone had a Merry Christmas & got to spend it with family & friends. We look forward to finishing out 2025 next week. See you soon at TLA!
