A Note from Rick: More of the same from the markets at TLA this week. There were no big changes that really stuck out. The calf market was slightly higher again for the third week in a row. Butcher cows were slightly lower after last week's gains. The hay market has had stronger prices compared to a month ago; this does not come as a surprise to me. Prices were pretty soft throughout the Summer. As hay making comes to an end & we get into the season of a little better demand, I look for prices to continue to get stronger. Fall is definitely in the air & the weather has been ideal for harvest. We're looking forward to a couple big sales coming up this month in the horse arena! Hope to see you soon at TLA!!
