A Note from Rick: Markets continue to carry strength at TLA this week. I feel like a broken record when I say that, but the cattle markets are really something lately. Calf prices were steady this week, while slaughter markets crept higher. I would think we'd be getting near the top of the cash market on fat cattle & butcher cows; typically, the market levels off or loses a little steam after Memorial Day. We've sure had a nice stretch of weather, ideal for finishing up the 2023 planting season & perfect for the first cutting hay crop. Now, some rain will be welcomed by all to really make things take off. All things considered, it's been an excellent Spring for farmers, one that we're not always so fortunate to get. Hope you all had a great Holiday weekend and we look forward to seeing you soon at TLA!
