A Note From Rick: It was more of the same from markets on Tuesday at TLA. The calf market was a little stronger again this week & shows no signs of slowing down. I say that because typically as we get into milder & more favorable weather, the demand gets stronger in the calf & feeder market. We had several groups of Holstein heifers that were ready to breed & they sold very well. Butcher cows & butcher cattle were very strong as well this week. I'm not sure if these prices we've been seeing over the last few weeks will be sustained when we get into better weather & more cattle come to the market. The numbers have been down all around the area due to the Winter weather that has been around over the last several weeks. We've been seeing lots of hay at the market the last several weeks & I look for that to continue until we get to Spring. Have a great week & we look forward to seeing you soon at TLA!!
