A Note From Rick: A tough week for markets at TLA. I don't think I've said that in a weekly market report in 2025, but it definitely applies to this week's markets. Across the board, everything was weaker on Tuesday at TLA. I'd say that all the markets lacked the consistency from start to finish or top to bottom that we've seen for the last year. Top prices weren't off all that much, but the overall averages showed the most decline. I don't really know what to think other than we were long overdue for a stumble in the markets. It will be interesting to see how the markets respond over the next couple of weeks. I look for this to level off a bit and I think we will regain some of the losses from the last couple of weeks. Have a happy Thanksgiving! See you soon at TLA!
