Professional Experience

- Fall 2020 Full-Time Visiting Instructor of Italian, Loyola University of Maryland, Baltimore Maryland
- 2013 - present Adjunct II Instructor of Italian, Towson University, Baltimore Maryland
- 2012 - 2019 Instructor of Italian and Coordinator of the Italian Program, Goucher College, Baltimore Maryland
In charge, besides teaching the 100-level classes, of re-writing the language assessment test and counselling students on their course choice before their study abroad semester in Italy (in collaboration with Goucher's Office of International Studies). During the 2016-2017 redesigning of the Goucher Commons Curriculum, I contributed towards redefining and reworking the Foreign Language and Culture Requirement for all the languages. As far as Italian was concerned, I proposed two new 2-credit special topic courses ("Italian Food and Culture" and "Italian through the Advertising World") that were eventually offered in the Fall of 2018 and Fall 2019 and had some of the highest student evaluations.
- 2012 Affiliate Instructor of Italian, Loyola University of Maryland, Baltimore Maryland

- April 2017 Presentation on “Teaching Italian through the Advertising World in a course across the curriculum” at NEMLA (Northeast Modern Language Association)’s Annual Conference in Baltimore.

Volunteering and courses

During the period 2007-2012 I was not allowed to work due to my H-4 dependent-type visa status. Nevertheless, I carried out numerous personal projects and activities, such as writing a blog, attending courses at Johns Hopkins Odyssey Program, Coursera, and volunteering for our local public schools, teaching Italian language, art, culture and cooking classes.

Foreign Languages

Italian (native speaker)
English (Fluent)
French (Advanced)
Spanish (Conversational)
Latin and Ancient Greek (5 years in high school)

Citizenship and Immigration Status

Dual Citizenship (Italian and American).

Personal interests

I sang Soprano in the Johns Hopkins Choral Society for four years. I played in a small theatre company in Italy during university. I enjoy studying Linguistics and Geography, writing, photography, cooking and traveling.
